VINCENT ASTOR BACKS PROJECT FOR NEW DEAL

First Break Among 'Brain Trust.'

To Speed Spending

Monthly issuance of money, a different color for each month, with taxes on money deposited in banks, etc., are urged as means to force every one to spend. Dr. Arthur Dahlberg, author of the plan, urges progressive depreciation of "old money," so spending would be as nearly as possible on a monthly turnover basis. He's an aid of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson. BY JOHN HERRICK.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 27.—[Special.]—The first defection from the official ranks of Roosevelt advisers was signalized today when the President at his summer home here announced the resignation of Assistant Secretary of State Raymond Moley, the acknowledged star of the presidential professoriat.

The retirement of the leading figure in the Roosevelt brain trust came as the not unexpected climax of the long standing quarrel between Prof. Moley and his nominal chief, Secretary of State Cordell Hull. It followed the Columbia professor's relief from departmental duties and his assignment, a month ago, to study the field of federal enforcement in racketeering, kidnaping, and similar criminal cases.

Astor's Plans Announced.

Prof. Moley's resignation served to announce also the plans of Vincent Astor, millionaire follower of the President, to found a new magazine devoted editorially to espousal of the new deal and its principles. Mr. Moley, it was explained, will serve as editor of the new publication. In his letter of resignation he told the President that he hoped to serve the administration even more effectively in his new capacity.

Though press agented by Mr. Astor as an "adventure in independent political journalism," it was made clear that the magazine is intended to be an organ of expression for Democratic policies of Rooseveltian mold.

News of the resignation was given out here following a visit by Prof. Moley and Mr. Astor with President Roosevelt at the summer White House.

Effective on Sept. 7.

It was not believed here that President Roosevelt forced the resignation which is to become effective Sept. 7. His action, however, in sidetracking Prof. Moley out of the state department was considered an important factor, making it evident that the President intended to support his secretary of state rather than the brain trust head, and seeming to serve notice that Mr. Moley could not look for eventual advancement to the cabinet itself. This being so, it is supposed that a handsome salary offer by Mr. Astor determined the professor in his course.

There was no hint of these factors in the letters which passed between the President and the professor. The missives teemed with expressions of mutual regard.

Tells of His Regret.

"The regret that I should otherwise experience at severing my official tie with your administration," Prof. Moley wrote, "is absent on account of the fact that this new work permits me not only to further the ideals common to us both but to continue to enjoy the friendly association with you that has marked the many months both before and since your inauguration."

Writes of His Regret.

In his letter of acceptance President Roosevelt wrote:

"Dear Raymond:

"It is with a sense of deep personal regret that I accept your resignation as assistant secretary of state.

"I need not tell you that I appreciate and shall always remember your participation during these two years in the development of policies based on our common ideals. You have rendered a very definite service to your country; and your departure from an official position to undertake

ROOSEVELT ORDERS U. S. PLANES TO HUNT 3 YOUTHS ON BOAT

New York, Aug. 27.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt mobilized the ships and planes of the coast guard today into a thorough search of the Atlantic coast for the son of a Manhattan neighbor who, with two other youths, were aboard the sloop Postscript, missing since Aug. 20.

Upon receipt of word from the President, coast guard headquarters sent out a general order that set into motion a sweep of the coast from Portland, Me., to the Delaware capes.

The 23 foot sloop set out from Manasquan, N. J., bound for Nantucket in the teeth of the nor'easter that raised havoc last week with stouter vessels. She was sailed by Pierre P. Irving, son of L. Du Pont Irving, stock broker and grandnephew of Washington Irving; Charles L. Niles, son of Dr. Walter L. Niles, and his brother, John L. Niles, owner of the craft.

If the sloop is still afloat the search begun by the coast guard will locate her at least within a day or so, officials said. Ten seaplanes, six from the Cape May base and four from the one at Gloucester, began combing the coast and the adjacent sea, swinging in and out in broad circles.

Insull Fights for Liberty in Athens Today

ATHENS, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Deputy Pericles Rhalli has been engaged to assist in the defense of Samuel Insull, former Chicago utilities magnate, who was detained Saturday in a second move of the United States to extradite him to face charges in connection with the financial collapse of his interests.

Refreshed by a good night's sleep and a nap this afternoon, Insull, who was taken to a nursing home, awaited the decision of an appeals court tomorrow whether he would be released or continue in detention pending the extradition proceedings.

He refused to make any formal statement, although he complained that the secrecy maintained concerning his case had handicapped defense preparations.

Not Surprised by U. S. Action.

The move of the United States government came as no surprise, since rumors to that effect had been in circulation before two plain clothes men approached Insull in his hotel. The former Chicagoan had been advised by friends of the expected visit of the plain clothes men and spent the intervening time writing letters and putting his papers in order.

As soon as the police arrived Insull telephoned his lawyer, Lazarimos, and requested his immediate presence. The attorney came to the hotel, later following Mr. Insull to the police chief's office.

Hinges on Greek Law.

Lazarimos contends that only the Greek law will be taken into consideration whether the appeals court grants his client liberty tomorrow or not pending the extradition trial.

This statement conflicts with a statement by Forest Harness, a representative of the United States attorney general's office, who contended that it was not necessary to go into the substance of the case, but only its merits.

3,000,000 MADE HOMELESS BY YELLOW FLOOD

SHANGHAI, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Despite recent reports that floods of the Yellow river were receding, the governor of Shantung reported today the disaster had reached grave proportions with 3,000,000 refugees in the western part of the province alone. After an aerial survey of the region he advised the national government at Nanking that 800 villages were under water.

Renewed rains in Shantung and northeast Honan have caused the river to rise again. Advices from Tsinanfu, situated in Shantung on the Yellow river, stated that the renewal rise constituted a serious menace to the city in spite of feverish efforts to strengthen its dikes.

Nanking officials are attempting to organize relief.

IRISH WIN ANNUAL SAUERKRAUT EATING CHAMPIONSHIP EVENT

Four of the five finalists in the championship were Irishmen, while the fifth, C. F. Whitford, postmaster here and a former champion, is part Irish.

Smith consumed 8¾ pounds of kraut in 8 minutes. Donovan was second with 4¾ pounds, James Kelley of Minneapolis took third prize with 3¾ pounds, Whitford was fourth with nearly two pounds, and James Callahan, Belle Plaine, fifth with a small amount.

GUNMEN HOLD UP CHICAGO CLUB; FLEE WITH $700

Five masked bandits held up the Chicago club at 404 South Michigan avenue last night and escaped with $700 in loot. The robbery was committed at five minutes to 12. No guests were present at the time.

The gunmen drove up in a car which they parked in front of the club. Then they advanced in a body to the door. One man remained at the door as a guard and lookout. The four others, all armed, strode into the lobby.

"All right, boys, get over against the wall and let's see your cash," ordered the bandit leader.

Five bellboys and the clerk, T. Bledsoe, obeyed. Then the bandits emptied the cash drawer of its contents, $700. They warned the employés not to raise an alarm and then left. Bledsoe immediately notified police. The robbers acted gentlemanly, he said.

Plow Under Cotton Crop? Not This Faithful Mule!

Hemphill, Tex., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Pole Mason, farmer near Hemphill, has a mule with a disposition extraordinarily docile. For seven years he has walked between the cotton rows, careful not to trample the growing staple. Mason made ready to start plowing up his cotton in accordance with a farm relief agreement. The old mule refused to lean against the collar and pull the plow. No amount of persuasion could move him. Mason and his sons tried all day to force the animal to work. To date the mule has plowed up no cotton.

Thief Drives Showroom Auto Out Through Window

A thief with original ideas stole an automobile from the Milda Auto Sales company at 806 West 31st street early today. He entered the place through a rear door, then got into a new car on display in the front display room. Then he drove straight ahead—through the large plate glass window, on to the sidewalk and into the street and away.

AUTO INDUSTRY WINS POINT IN LABOR CLAUSE

"Individual Merit" Basis Retained.

New Coal Offer

New coal code is offered by northern and southern group of nonunion coal mine owners, labor clause providing for arbitration, but tending toward company unions, if any. Code will be presented to NRA for action at an early date. Details on page 7.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 27.—[Special.]—The automobile code, with its labor clause signifying victory for the automobile manufacturers over organized labor, was made public here tonight after its approval last night by President Roosevelt.

The clause which provoked the bitterest struggle between the forces of capital and labor which has yet featured the activities of NRA was put in the code immediately after the statutory labor section was inserted.

Text of Moot Clause.

The much fought over clause follows:

"Without in any way attempting to qualify or modify, by interpretation, the foregoing requirements of the national industrial recovery act, employers in this industry may exercise their right to select, retain, or advance employés on the basis of individual merit, without regard to their membership or nonmembership in any organization."

The language itself appears as innocuous as Gen. Hugh S. Johnson and NRA Counsel Donald Richberg insist it is, but the automobile men were jubilant tonight over its acceptance, and they hailed it as a great victory in their battle to continue operating their plants, as they have from the very beginning, on an open shop basis.

Gen. Johnson Explains.

Gen. Johnson, discussing the clause tonight, declared that the automobile manufacturers had never represented to him that they wanted it in the code to use as a club against organized labor.

"They wanted it to prevent misrepresentation of the language of the labor sections of the code," he asserted, and then Attorney Richberg chimed in, saying:

"There have been claims made by union agents that workers had to join the unions in order to get the benefits of NRA. The automobile men wanted it established in the code that this was not so."

The automobile manufacturers verified this attitude of theirs, but they also disclosed their plans to placard their factories and shops freely with copies of the clause, especially the last part of it.

Labor Finally Approves.

The members of the labor advisory board, led by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, put their approval on the clause, but they did so with the greatest reluctance and only after they had been informed that the administration intended to approve it anyway, and that their opposition would only intensify the sting of their defeat.

So finally the labor board gave its approval, but appended with it a statement that it did so with the understanding, first, that the clause should not be taken "to modify, qualify, or change" the regular statutory guarantee of the right of workers to bargain collectively with their employers through representatives of their own choosing, and second, that the clause "does not establish a precedent to be followed in the preparation or acceptance of any other code."

Others Want Same Rights.

It was learned that the coal operators, eager to seize upon the victory of the automobile men, will insist upon the same clause in their code, and eight other codes of important industries are pending in which similar language is to be sought.

Alvan Macauley, president of the national automobile chamber of commerce and president of the Packard Motor Car company, announcing the acceptance of the code tonight, said with respect to the labor clause:

"All that we have sought has been a clear expression of our right to maintain operations for the best interests of our workers and our companies. We felt this was necessary because of the misunderstandings and

Fire Destroys Chicago Coast Guard Station

The old Chicago coast guard station, at the mouth of the Chicago river, was destroyed by fire last night. The flames broke out shortly before dark below the docks on which the various buildings were situated, and spread rapidly with the aid of a brisk northeast wind. Three hours later the wooden structures and dock were still burning, but under control, and it was estimated that the station would be a total loss, amounting, financially, to more than $75,000.

True to tradition, the coast guards, after putting ashore a number of guest visitors, saved their boats and other valuable equipment before trying to save themselves or their own personal belongings. One of the crew, John E. Horvath, was injured when he was knocked into the water by a swinging fire hose. He was taken to the Marine hospital.

Thousands Watch from Piers.

Thousands of persons lined Navy pier and the shore to watch the spectacle. Hundreds of others looked on from the better vantage of pleasure boats, and still others viewed the fire from the cabins of the two blimps which ply out of the World's Fair grounds.

About forty persons were at the station when the fire was discovered. They included Capt. John O. Anderson, veteran commanding officer; Chief Boatswain's Mate Carl Howell, members of the crew, Mrs. Anderson, and about twenty visitors. Howell discovered the fire in the subdocks on the northeast corner, and immediately sounded the alarm.

All but the crew members and officers were put ashore in boats. Capt. Anderson saved five of the coast guard's expensive power boats by kicking them from their moorings. He fell into the water in this endeavor, but swam to safety. The crew then began tearing up the dock surface planks to get at the flames, but were driven back. In a few minutes the fire spread to the men's quarters, the lookout tower, and the United States engineering building. These were destroyed.

Schooner Sends Help.

Help came from many sources. The Canopus, tender for the Gloucester fishing schooner, Gertrude L. Thebaud, and the tug W. L. Mercereau were first on the scene. Firemen stopping at the shore were carried to the station by cruisers and speedboats. Soon the fire tug Joseph Medill arrived and helped check the flames. The fire boat Graeme Stewart was an hour and a half late, due, it was said, to low steam pressure.

Capt. Anderson's personal effects were burned, as were those of his men. Some of the men lost several hundred dollars in cash. Capt. Anderson said the fire started probably from a cigaret or cigar stub, or possibly from a short circuit in the submarine electric cable. The station, he said, was built in 1903. He has commanded it for over 16 years. Capt. Anderson notified his superior officer at Green Bay, Wis., and then set up an emergency station on the dock where his men could handle any distress calls during the night.

FEDERAL POWER IS PUT BEHIND WAR ON GANGS

State's New Hoodlum Law to Be Tested.

Try Police Killer

The final week of the war on murderers, gunmen, and other dangerous criminals, under the leadership of Chief Justice Prystalski of the Criminal court, opens today. The most important case scheduled for trial is that of John Scheck, who killed a policeman while attempting to escape from a courtroom. Details on page 2.

Machine Gun Jack McGurn, the golfing gunman, is to be turned over to federal agents by police today for questioning about the kidnapings of Jake Factor and other victims of gang ransom demands.

The same procedure is to be followed in the case of 25 other public enemies for whom Municipal Judge Thomas A. Green has issued warrants under the new criminal reputation law, and will also be applied to between 200 and 400 other criminal characters for whom warrants are yet to be issued, Chief of Detectives Schoemaker disclosed yesterday.

U. S. Enters Campaign.

The entrance of the federal agents of the department of justice, led in Chicago by Melvin H. Purvis, into the police campaign against gangsters was seen as an enlargement of President Roosevelt's policy of throwing every resource of the federal government into the fight to stamp out crime and racketeering throughout the country. Purvis was reported in Washington over the week-end conferring with his superiors in the justice department.

The racketeering situation in Chicago will be given a thorough investigation when the senatorial committee on racketeering opens public hearings in Chicago on Oct. 3. The committee is headed by Senator Royal S. Copeland [Dem., N. Y.].

Before the committee held its recent hearings in New York, at which it was told that racketeers can exist only through coöperation of corrupt political leaders, one of its members, Senator Louis Murphy [Dem., Ia.], came to Chicago.

Talks with Law Enforcers.

He discussed racketeering with police officials, local federal operatives, Mayor Kelly, and State's Attorney Courtney. As a result of his investigation he stated that most of the 35 industries in Chicago which are the victims of major rackets are engaged in interstate commerce, giving the federal government an entering wedge for prosecution of gangsters.

While the major federal activity to date has been against kidnapers, as typified by the arrest and federal indictment of Roger Touhy, head of the Touhy gang, and three of his aids for the kidnaping of William Hamm Jr., St. Paul brewer, the Copeland committee and President Roosevelt himself have indicated that it is to be expanded to oppose all forms of racketeering.

Codes to Give Jurisdiction.

In this connection it is expected that provisions will be inserted in codes under the national recovery act to give federal prosecutors and courts jurisdiction over gangsters who prey on business.

The state warrant under the new gang law which was issued for McGurn had not been served on him last night, and will not be served perhaps for several days, police said. The same procedure was followed in the case of Walter Guida, a minor hoodlum for whom Judge Green issued a warrant and who was picked up Saturday.

Both men are to be questioned today by department of justice agents. Neither has been mentioned in connection with kidnaping activities, but federal agents have a custom of keeping their evidence secret until they arrest their suspects, it was pointed out. Every man picked up in the new Chicago gang drive is to be run through the mill of federal inquisition to determine what connections, if any, he has with kidnaping or other federal crimes.

Golf Game Ends Abruptly.

McGurn's competition in the western open golf tournament at Olympia Fields Country club came to an abrupt end Saturday when a police squad took him off the links. He had been shooting one under par for the first seven holes of the round, but after the arrival of the police he got an 11 on No. 8, a par 4 hole. The intention of police to extend the "criminal reputation" warrant drive to every known gangster in the city was disclosed when McGurn appeared yesterday at the detective bureau showup.

When he was placed on the showup platform McGurn complained to Schoemaker that Judge Green's warrants named only minor figures in the hoodlum world and that many of the real gang leaders were not included. Schoemaker said this was true but added that another gang list is in preparation for submission to Judge Green, which will name many of the big shots. Additional warrants are to be issued, Schoemaker said, until from 200 to 400 men of criminal reputation are named.

Provide for Auto Search.

The new state laws, under which the authorities are proceeding in their drive on gangsters, provide that any person with a criminal reputation, as a result of violation of state or federal laws, may be arrested and tried as a vagabond. If found guilty the defendant would face imprisonment for six months. The new laws also permit the search of the person or automobile of a reputed criminal. Search warrants were issued by Judge Green for each of the 25 hoodlums named in the vagabond warrants.

U. S. FIREARMS LAW IS SEEN BY COPELAND

Washington, D. C., Aug. 27.—[Special.]—Legislation to control the sale and use of firearms, carrying a clause absolutely outlawing the subcaliber machine gun, will be passed in the next session of congress in the opinion of Senator Royal Copeland of New York, chairman of the senate committee on racketeering. The legislation, he said, may also include a universal finger printing clause and a plan for the organization and maintenance of a federal police system patterned after Scotland Yard.

"Many are asking," said Senator Copeland, "just what they should do if there is real evidence of an attempt at extortion or a genuine threat of violence. The answer is simple. Notify the police at once if you live in a city. If your home is in the country, telephone the sheriff, constable or state troopers. In addition, if there is a suspicion of an effort at kidnaping, telegraph the department of justice, bureau of investigation Washington, D. C."

HUTTON EGGED ON STAGE; HE'S PHILOSOPHICAL

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Dave Hutton, portly husband of Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, was philosophical today about his second experience on the receiving end of an egg barrage.

"Thank goodness," said the 250 pound baritone, "there are no ostrich farms in this part of the country."

Hutton was "telling his side of the story" at a vaudeville performance last night when the eggs started to fly. He neatly dodged the first shot, possibly from similar practice gained on a California stage.

The second hit Don Smith, orchestra leader, squarely on the chest.

Then H. W. Pickrem, 26, decided his aim was so bad he'd better leave the theater, police said later. Intercepted, he posted a $25 bond on a disorderly conduct charge.

Gardenas is campaigning for the National Revolutionary party's nomination for president, and Tejeda is expected shortly to announce his candidacy on a Socialist platform.

TRIAL OF SCHECK, POLICE KILLER, TO START TODAY

'Blonde Tigress' and Two Pals to Face Court.

The final week of the crime war under the leadership of Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court will open this morning with eleven judges sitting in the various branches of the Criminal court striving to establish a new record for the speedy disposition of cases. Judge Prystalski relinquishes the reigns of the court a week from today to Judge Philip L. Sullivan.

In addition to attempting to dispose of three important murder cases the eleven judges, the largest number to have held court at once during the drive, will also endeavor to dispose of robbery, burglary, and automobile theft charges pending against many of the 1,200 or more prisoners now in the county jail.

Judge Miller to Try Scheck.

John Scheck, who killed Policeman John Sevick more than three weeks ago when attempting to escape from a detention room in Judge Charles P. Moltrop's court, is scheduled to go to trial today before Judge Harry B. Miller. It was this case which caused Chief Justice Prystalski to call for volunteer judges to carry on the crime drive.

Assistant State's Attorney Mal Coghlan, who is in charge of the prosecution of Scheck, announced that the state is ready for trial. Public Defender Benjamin Bachrach will defend Scheck. Judge Miller has cleared his court calendar for the trial of this case.

Mrs. Eleanor Jarman, 30 year old divorcee and the mother of two children, who has been characterized as the "blond tigress" by the police, is scheduled to go to trial this morning with George Dale, alias Kennedy, 28, and Leo Minneci, 27. This case is set before Judge Marcus Kavanagh.

Crowley to Prosecute Trio.

Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert Crowley, who last week prosecuted Morris Cohen, slayer of Policeman Joseph Hastings, sentenced to the electric chair in the quickest murder trial in the history of Cook county, is to be in charge of this prosecution.

Public Defender Joseph Power, who is to defend Kennedy, accused of firing the fatal shot in the murder of Gustave Hoeh, 71 year old haberdasher, during a robbery of his store at 5948 West Division street, three weeks ago, said he is ready for trial and will n ' ask for a continuance. Mrs. Jarman and Minneci are represented by private attorneys. An insanity petition filed in behalf of Minneci has been withdrawn. Alienists found him sane.

The third murder case is that against Chester Gallas, 28, and James Kuratko, who are charged with slaying Jacob C. Pederson, a Cicero avenue street car conductor, during a robbery. These defendants have filed a petition for a change of venue from Cook county because of the alleged prejudice of the citizens, the judges, and prosecutors against those charged with crime as a result of the recent campaign. Judge Kavanagh will rule on this petition this afternoon.

Demand Death Penalty for All.

The assistant state's attorneys in these three cases have been instructed not to bargain with any defendants, but to insist on the death penalty. The defense attorneys have indicated that they will all be jury trials.

Dr. Francis W. McNamara, veteran jail physician, yesterday said the crime war has the criminals incarcerated in the jail in a state of panic. The prisoners hold to one ray of hope, the physician said, and that is that the war will cease when Chief Justice Prystalski ends his term of office.

"In all my experience I never saw the criminals in such a state of panic," said Dr. McNamara. "The prisoners are actually terror stricken. "They hope the war will be over this week and they will then be able to bargain again for light sentences in return for pleading guilty or taking bench trials. You do not hear them boasting now that they can do this sentence or that sentence 'standing on one leg.'"

The state of mind of the prisoners is best demonstrated, the physician said, by a story told by a jail official, who recently heard two prisoners discussing the change in conditions in the Criminal court. The prisoners were discussing a certain judge, who is noted for his sternness.

"That judge goes into his drawer every day before he goes on the bench and takes out two hundred years," said one of the prisoners. "He hands that around to the prisoners who come before him and he has to get rid of the two hundred years before he can call it a day."

Eleven Judges on Bench.

The judges, who will be on the job this week, are as follows:

Walter J. La Buy	Benjamin P. Epstein
Marcus Kavanaugh	Charles P. Molthrop
Harry B. Miller	Kickham Scanlan
Donald McKinlay	John Prystalski
Denis E. Sullivan	Philip Finnegan
George Fred Rush

Gun toting robbers, whom the judges characterize as potential murderers, received most of the 59 sentences imposed by the judges in the last week. The judges imposed maximum sentences of one year to life on 26 defendants convicted of robbery with a revolver. Three others were given flat life imprisonment terms under the habitual criminal act.

A table of the charges and penalties inflicted on defendants since the crime war started Aug. 3 follows:

Robbery sentences with maximum punishment of 1 year to life	76
Robbery sentences of 1 to 20 years	19
Habitual criminal sentences of life imprisonment	7
Murder sentence of death	1
Murder sentences of life imprisonment	4
Murder sentences of 100 years each	3
Murder sentences of 20 years each	2
Murder sentence of 25 years	1
Murder sentence of 14 years	1
Manslaughter sentences of 1 to 14 years	11
Accessory to murder 1 to 2 year sentences	2
Burglary sentences of maximum of 1 year to life	14
Burglary sentence of 1 to 20 years	1
Burglary sentence of 1 to 10 years where crime was reduced to larceny	1
Automobile larceny maximum seniences of 1 to 20 years	19
Automobile larceny where penalty was reduced to 1 to 10 years	8
Assault to murder sentences of 1 to 14 years	12

The other sentences making up the total of 209 since the war started were inflicted on cases of receiving stolen property, rape, arson, and embezzlement.

FRENCH SAILORS SEIZE COLONY TO STOP TAX RIOTS

Mob Violence Brings Two Warships to St. Pierre.

ST. PIERRE, St. Pierre and Miquelon, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Rioting by the populace of St. Pierre in protest against the imposition of taxes by the governor of this French colony has resulted in the rushing of two warships to this port, 15 miles off the southern coast of Newfoundland, and the occupation of the city by armed sailors.

The first violence occurred last Monday when a large part of the populace besieged the government quarters to protest against the imposition of taxes by the provincial governor in disregard of the protesting vote of the elected member of the government council. Windows were smashed by the crowd.

Mob Smashes Jail Doors.

The next day the police arrested four former prisoners to whom liberty had been granted until December. A mob promptly assembled at the prison door and, after conferring with the authorities and receiving a refusal to open the doors to the prisoners, smashed down the doors and released the men.

Two French warships were dispatched to St. Pierre, the D'Entrecasteaux arriving in the harbor on Thursday and the warship Ville D'Ys reaching port Friday. Sailors went ashore and were deployed through the streets of the city.

World war veterans in the colony have voiced indignation over the occupation of the city by armed forces. News now is awaited from Paris by the populace. Leaders of the rioters expressed confidence that the French government would support their stand and that what they described as the "scandalous wasting of public funds" would be ended.

Link Riots to Bootleg Slump.

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Reports of serious rioting in protest against heavy taxation in the French colony of St. Pierre and Miquelon, off the Newfoundland coast, reached St. John's today.

The troubles are attributed by observers in St. John's to a serious depression in the islands resulting from a falling off in the liquor smuggling trade.

Rum Capital of World.

The islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon have been called "the rum running capital of the world." Newspaper correspondents have reported that after Canada passed laws tending to coöperate with the prohibition laws of the United States, huge rum syndicates transferred their base of operations to St. Pierre, and that much of the liquor smuggled into America cleared through that port.

High, rocky and comparatively barren, enveloped much of the time in fogs and mists of the grand banks which they border, the islands are the last remnant of the French empire in North America. Their combined area is 93 square miles.

Prior to the era of prohibition in the United States, the main industry of the islands was fishing.

Whisky Tax Brings Funds.

During the heyday of bootlegging the colony accumulated millions of francs in revenue through the imposition of an import tax of 40 cents a case on whisky, which was sold to rum runners for as little as $5 a case.

Dredging of St. Pierre harbor became a most important necessity with the increasing use of the port and work was undertaken to permit large steamers to dock at the public quay.

The depression has drastically hit the rum runners and the administration was forced to cease operations before the dredging was completed.

Gov. Barrillot was placed in supreme control of the islands by the president of France and he announced a new and drastic schedule of taxes.

Reports from the islands indicated that these taxes included such imposts as 400 francs annually on dogs; 1,000 francs on automobiles, of which there are 120 in the colony, which has only six miles of roads; 500 francs annually on motorboats, and 300 francs on pianos. [The franc currently is worth 5.6 cents].

TAX RIOTS FLARE

Arrows point to islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon which comprise France's North American colony of that name. Armed sailors and warships arrived yesterday to quell riots in St. Pierre against the imposition of taxes.

BURGLARS LOOT ONLY $3.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 27.—[Special.]—Entrance was gained to the Badger Brass Foundry company at 1545 West Pierce street during the night by a burglar who broke an office window with a brick. The thief took $3.

PLANS TO BRING CAPONE BACK FOR RACKET TRIALS

Plans for the prosecution of the racket conspiracy case involving twenty-four defendants include the appearance here of Al Capone, who would be brought back from the Atlanta federal prison, Assistant State's Attorney Edwin J. Raber announced yesterday. Mr. Raber said he expected no difficulty in obtaining the federal government's consent to the plan to bring Capone here.

Under ordinary circumstancs the state would be ready for trial about the middle of September but Prosecutor Raber expects some delays. Aaron Sapiro, lawyer and former head of a farmers' cooperative society, who is one of the defendants, is fighting extradition in New York.

Murray Humphries, known as public enemy No. 1 since Capone went to prison, is a fugitive. Mr. Raber has asked the police to broadcast throughout the country a request for the arrest of Humphries.

Salesman Killed as Auto Goes Through Bridge Rail

Manitowoc, Wis., Aug. 27.—[Special.]—Norman Haffeman, 21, of Wausau, a tobacco salesman of the Liggitt and Myers Tobacco company, was killed today when his automobile went through a guard rail of a small bridge over a creek and landed on the bank of a stream 20 feet below on highway 141, 17 miles south of the city. The impact forced him through the top of the car. He was dead when other automobilists reached him. Authorities here believe he fell asleep while driving. The body was taken to Wausau this afternoon. Hoffman was not married.

IDENTIFY RIVER CRASH VICTIMS AS OHIO FAMILY

Bodies of Father and Son Are Recovered.

The three persons who were drowned Friday night as the result of a boat collision in the mouth of the Chicago river were identified yesterday as Attorney and Mrs. John H. Schultz and their son, John Jr., 7 years old, of Cleveland, O. They had been visiting the World's Fair.

Coast guards recovered the bodies of Mr. Schultz and the boy yesterday a few hours after the body of Mrs. Schultz had been identified at Shute's undertaking rooms, 716 North State street. Her body was recovered on the night of the accident. Official identification of the three bodies was made last night by H. P. Schultz of Youngstown, O., a brother of Attorney Schultz; R. H. Bostwick of Chardon, O., and Attorney W. A. Dougherty of Cleveland, who flew here for that purpose.

Telephones to Chicago.

A phone call from Bostwick, a friend of the family, led to the identification of Mrs. Schultz's body. Receiving no answer from the Schultz rooms in the Stevens hotel, he notified the management.

Miss Harriet Simpson, floor clerk, recalled that she had not seen the family since 7:30 o'clock Friday night and that Mrs. Schultz had remarked to her that "Johnny could not sleep without going for a boat ride." Yesterday Miss Simpson went to the undertaking rooms and identified Mrs. Schultz's body.

Not long afterward the bodies of Attorney Schultz and his son were recovered. Cards and a convention badge which was pinned on the attorney's coat lapel bore his name. This information was relayed to Cleveland, and Bostwick, Attorney Dougherty and Schultz's brother immediately started for Chicago by plane. They will take the bodies back home today.

Attorney Schultz, who was a vice president of the Ohio Bar association, came to Chicago to visit the Fair and to attend a convention of insurance counselors. It was a badge of this convention which was found on his lapel. He brought his wife and son with him on the trip. The Schultz home is at 3350 Lansmere road, Shaker Heights, a Cleveland suburb. Mr. Schultz was 41 years old and his wife was 35.

Resume Inquest Today.

As a result of the recovery of the bodies, the inquest, which had been continued indefinitely Saturday, will be resumed at 1 o'clock this afternoon. Among the expected witnesses will be Walter Pomper, pilot of the speedboat Miss Chicago, and Anthony J. O'Malley, owner of the cabin cruiser Visitor. These boats were involved in the accident.

The Miss Chicago, carrying ten passengers, including the Schultzes, from the Fair, crashed into the port bow of the Visitor. Both boats sank. Pomper, O'Malley and thirteen passengers were saved. Pomper charges that O'Malley precipitated the accident by illegally cutting across his path. O'Malley asserts that Pomper was racing another speedboat and is to blame.

Several of the survivors have stated that Pomper apparently was trying to pass the other speedboat. These charges will be gone into at the inquest, which, it is expected, will be attended by federal navigation officials.

Two Rescued When Canoe Capsizes Off Fair Grounds

The $100,000 alienation of affection suit filed by Mrs. Read against the actress will go to trial in Los Angeles this week and these pictures, with others, will be introduced as evidence. Mrs. Read charges that Miss Windsor lured her husband away from her and their three children. [Acme Photo.]

U.S. FLYER KILLED; PILOTLESS PLANE CRASHES IN TOWN

Forced to Leap When He Runs Out of Gas.

Stamford, Conn., Aug. 27.—(AP)—A blind leap into the darkness brought death to Capt. E. E. Harmon of Washington, D. C., United States army flyer, as his plane plunged to destruction tonight at Turn-of-River, a Stamford suburb.

Capt. Harmon's body was found an eighth of a mile from his demolished ship after the plane, its cockpit unoccupied and the gasoline tank empty, had swooped out of the darkness, struck two trees, and buried itself in the earth.

Authorities said Capt. Harmon took off from Washington early this evening for Mitchel field, Long Island, and that they believed he had been forced to abandon the ship, leaping into the night in a parachute after he lost his way and ran out of gas.

Authorities said the plane had been wrecked so completely that they were at first unable to find any distinguishing markers, but that they finally identified it as Capt. Harmon's ship by the number 28 it bore.

A search through the heavily wooded region was instituted immediately and Capt. Harmon's body was found.

Police said a machine gun was mounted on the plane and that one parachute was found in the ship. It was a two seated biplane. The wings were torn off in the crash and the engine was buried in the ground about 100 yards from the central heap of the wreckage.

3 Killed; Plane Hits Wire.

Bath, N. Y., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Two men and a youth lost their lives today when an airplane crashed after hitting a high tension wire while the pilot was seeking a landing on a farm. The dead were Donald R. Macormic, 28, of Rochester, pilot, and Paul Harris, 50, inmate of the Bath soldiers' home, and Bernard Clark, 17, of Avoca, passengers. Clark's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Clark, and three brothers and a sister witnessed the accident.

Parachute Jumper Killed.

Wahoo, Neb., Aug. 27.—(AP)—John Adams, about 25, professional parachute jumper from Fort Collins, Colo., was killed here late this afternoon in making what he had said would be a "delayed jump to give the crowd a thrill."

He "baled out" of a plane at 1,500 feet. The chute opened just before it struck a large tree.

Stunt Flyer Burns to Death.

Ely, Minn., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Malcolm Dunlop of Duluth was burned to death this afternoon when his plane crashed while stunting at the dedication of the local airport. Dunlop was at a height of 75 feet when the plane went into a tail spin, crashed and burst into flames. Five thousand persons saw the crash.

FOUND UNCONSCIOUS IN ALLEY.

George Bryant, 28 years old, a soda dispenser, was found unconscious yesterday in an alley beside the State hotel, 553 South State street, below the window of his third floor room in the hotel.

STUDENTS PAY FOR COLLEGE IN NOVEL WAYS

Bloomington, Ill., Aug. 27.—[Special.]—Students who will attend Illinois Wesleyan university this fall will pay their tuition in thirty-two different ways. This was announced today by Virgil Martin, business manager.

One girl, Eloise Birney, will have her tuition paid by her father's landscaping the Wesleyan campus. He will do $400 worth of work and she will walk under trees he plants.

Jimmy Ellis will have his fees paid with $400 worth of wall board furnished by his father, C. H. Ellis, a salesman for a Peoria lumber company.

One girl is able to matriculate this fall because her father, an insurance man, is carrying the insurance on some of the Wesleyan property.

One hundred eighty dollars worth of butchered veal, mutton, and other meats will permit Marjorie Dower to enter Wesleyan music school. Her father will bring the meat into Bloomington and deliver it to the five cooperative houses on the campus for the use of the students.

Other students will bring farm produce, script, etc. The college is drawing so many students this year because it offers a five per cent premium above the market value for farm products and pays a rate slightly above the regular hour fee of the workingmen.

FLIES 3 HOURS UPSIDE DOWN; BREAKS RECORD

Italian Lieutenant Wings from St. Louis to Joliet.

Lieut. Tito Falconi, acrobatic ace of the Royal Italian Air force, landed at Joliet at 4:55 o'clock yesterday after flying upside down all the way from St. Louis in a nonstop trip. His feat established a new record of three hours, six minutes and 39 seconds for inverted flying, bettering the previous mark of two hours and 20 minutes held by Milo G. Burcham of Long Beach, Cal.

Flies Upside Down Over Fair.

From Joliet Lieut. Falconi flew to Chicago, where he made a circuit of the grounds of A Century of Progress still flying upside down and still escorted by three planes which had accompanied him from St. Louis.

Lieut. Falconi left the Missouri metropolis at 11:45 o'clock and turned his plane over at 11:51. The observers for the American Aeronautical association piloting the escorting planes were Capt. Ralph Hall, manager of the Curtiss-Reynolds airport, where the foreign flyer landed after leaving the Fair; Capt. Clarence Clabaugh, vice president of the North Shore Airways; and John Porter of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

Greeted by Vice Consul.

Falconi went through a few stunts, loops, wing overs and flying on the side, for the entertainment of some 5,000 spectators before landing at the airport at 5:35 p. m. He was greeted by Antonio Ferme, vice consul of Italy in Chicago; Luigi Ranieri, royal Italian commissioner to the Fair, and other prominent Italians. Dr. Harold Hamnett examined the flyer and found his condition good, with normal blood pressure.

Falconi told inquirers that his inverted position caused him no difficulty in flying after the first twenty minutes.

Two Suspects Arrested as Drug Store Robbers

Louis Stedman, 32 years old, 4108 Kenmore avenue, and Ray Dyars, alias Elmer Deal, 28, of 439 Webster avenue, were held by Irving Park police last night as alleged drug store bandits. Also held is Ola Deal, 24 years old. The three were arrested by Detectives Ignatius Brandt and Edward O'Malley of the Irving Park station, while driving a car that carried fictitious license plates. Police said that Stedman and Dyars admitted getting $47 in a robbery of the Walgreen drug store at 800 Wilson avenue last week. The two absolved the Deal girl, police said.

$1,500 LOSS IN WEST SIDE FIRE.

Flames starting supposedly in a defective chimney of a two story frame building at 618 West Madison street last night caused a loss of $1,500.

FOREST CAMP BOY GETS LIGHT FROM A FAMOUS VISITOR

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 27.—(AP)—President Roosevelt was asked for a light today by one of the carefree boys of the civilian conservation camp on Bear Mountain as he stopped there for a chat with the youths.

The unidentified boy first noticed Robert Clark, secret service man standing by the presidential car, light up. He asked for a smoke.

Getting one, he calmly turned to Mr. Roosevelt, who was smoking, and asked him for a light.

Laughing, the President flicked his cigaret and handed it to the boy, who puffed a light from it.

"Okay," said the President.

BRAIN TRUSTER URGES TAX TO FORCE SPENDING

Favors Levy on Deposits and Currency.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 27.—[Special.]—One of the great minds in the NRA brains trust of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson has worked out the solution to all of our economic troubles.

It is really a pity that President Roosevelt has gone to such strenuous lengths to start the country on the way to prosperity when he might have saved so much time and energy by listening to Dr. Arthur Dahlberg, Ph. D., a research fellow of the Social Science Research council, who was drafted from his deep studies and made an assistant to Dr. Alexander Sachs, Ph. D., chief of Gen. Johnson's division of planning and research.

Huey Long will be kicking himself, too, when he hears about all this.

Sees End of Economic Ills.

Dr. Dahlberg's discovery spells the doom, he says, of every evil in the American economic system, including recurring depressions, unemployment, poverty, hoarding, governmental deficits, the burden of taxation, and general misery.

Unlike most germs from the minds of the brain trusters, Dr. Dahlberg's brain child is astoundingly simple. He proposes to force people to spend money. He will make it easier to spend money than to save it. He doesn't say how people are to get money, except that there will be so much money flying around with everybody spending it foolishly, as he puts it himself, that there will be more than enough, or, as the doctor plans it, just enough for all.

Dr. Dahlberg's means of forcing people to spend money is to tax it. He proposes a tax on bank deposits and a tax on currency. The tax on currency is novel, but simple: Every month a new batch of currency will be issued, and the currency of the preceding month will be worthless at the store or the bank. If you don't spend it, eventually it will be worth nothing at all.

New Color Every Month.

Every month the currency will be of a new color, red, blue, yellow, green and so on, like baseball tickets, so the storekeepers will know by the hue whether the dollar you hand him is worth 98 cents or 89 cents. If the dollar is old and frayed he may have to look up in the book to make sure whether it is a 58 or a 59 cent dollar.

But perhaps it would be more lucid to quote directly from Dr. Dahlberg's report, which has been submitted to Prof. Rexford Guy Tugwell, assistant secretary of agriculture and generally accepted now as the head of the Roosevelt brains trust, and which Dr Dahlberg expects next to propose to Budget Director Lewis Douglas, and finally to the President, who is expected by Dr. Dahlberg, to present the matter to congress.

"Suppose," says the doctor in his report, "that we set up a mechanism for reducing, say, ¼ per cent, ½ per cent, or 1 per cent monthly the value of all money—both paper currency and bank deposits—still in the hands of our American people at the end of each month.

Older Currency Discounted.

"At the beginning of every month new currency of a different color, and dated with the month and year, is made available at the banks. These bills would be the only paper currency accepted at par during the coming month. The paper currency of the preceding month would now, on the basis of a 1 per cent monthly forfeit, be worth only 99 cents on the dollar when it is exchanged at the bank. Currency two months old would only be worth 98 cents on the dollar, etc."

Dr. Dahlberg doesn't say how the storekeeper would take out a quarter of a cent, on the basis of a ¼ per cent forfeit, but he might issue paper tokens to take care of this minor detail.

"Suppose," continues the doctor, "that John Jones on Jan. 1 has $30 in January currency and $3 in metallic change in his pocket; that he also has a deposit of $1,000 in his bank. Then, under our scheme, if John Jones has not spent his $30 worth of currency by the first of February he knows that the bank will give him only $29.70 worth of February money for his January currency. Retailers, too, will discount its worth. January money may be red and February may be blue, so that retailers will readily notice the age and issue of the paper."

Bank Balances Taxed.

On the matter of John Jones' $1,000 in the bank, the Dahlberg report says:

"The government needs simply instruct the banks to deduct, say, 1 per cent from the balances of all its depositors at the end of every month when the monthly statements are made up. This 1 per cent, the banks could be directed to credit to the account of the United States government.

"These sums would, of course, provide a nice revenue. Bank deposits in 1929 were about 55 billion; in 1932, about 43 billion. A drastic monthly tax of 1 per cent on the sums would net the government between five and six billion dollars annually. Such revenues would run the government."

This revenue, says the doctor in another section of the report, "would be a veritable gift from heaven; pardon me—from the hoarders."

Points to Heavy Discount.

Returning to John Jones' $1,000 in the bank, Dr. Dahlberg points out that it would be worth only $990 to him, "if, for one month, he delays spending it."

"The penalty for one year for not spending his $1,000," the report states, "turns out to be $112.86. Can you conceive of Jones, or anyone else not spending under such conditions? Everyone would practically be forced to buy goods, services or plant, as soon as he received his money income.

"And therein lies the virtue of this plan. It would obtain the same result as shortening the hours of labor in the one respect that it would facilitate spending. In the one case huge incomes would be forced into action and perhaps into being foolishly used by the rich.

"In the other, income would be diverted to those who would all too willingly spend it rationally without any forcing. In both cases income would be quickly spent in hiring labor; it could not feasibly be left in the form of an unexercised command over labor."

Urges "Increasing Foolishness."

Reasoning that the increasing substitution of machines for man power has destroyed purchasing power, Dr. Dahlberg writes that restoration of this purchasing power, under the present system, is dependent on an "increasing foolishness in spending among our rich," and he adds:

"Well, they are not so foolish as our situation demands, and our system crumbles."

Assailing the economists who are trying, as the doctor says, "to try to 'kid' the rich into believing that the 'corner has been turned,' and that now is the time to spend and invest," Dr. Dahlberg writes:

"No, we must smoke out purchasing power, not coax it out. We must force people—not coax people—to spend. Not only now, but in the past as well, have we given too great a legal privilege to the holders of money."

Dahlberg Anticipates Protests.

Anticipating protests that people will not be able to save for a rainy day, Dr. Dahlberg says, yes, they could. He would advise John Jones to invest his $1,000 in real estate. By selling the real estate, he could cash in at any time. Nothing is said about the millionaires buying up all the real estate.

At one point in the report, which Dr. Dahlberg intends later to publish for general consumption, he warns the readers as follows:

"The layman is advised to skip the slightly theoretical material that follows and to resume his reading on page 10."

But, by risking a perusal, the layman learns to what degree the doctor wants to tax money.

"Just how strong an annual forfeit rate would be needed, whether 1 per cent or 12 per cent, I do not know," he writes. "My personal guess would be that a rate of ½ per cent per month, about 6 per cent per year, would do nicely as an opener. It would depend upon the hands into which the national income were diverted. The very rich might need a powerful coercive measure to force them to spend; the poor, I believe, would need none at all."

In the same slightly theoretical passage Dr. Dahlberg observes:

"With money on fire, burning up in monthly forfeits, people would scramble and bid against one another for goods. It is safe to guess that on the exchanges the value of commodities, stocks, and bonds would shoot heavenward."

Returning to the lowlier realms of lay understanding again, Dr. Dahlberg proposed that the determination of the forfeit rate be made a duty of the President of the United States.

Sees Buck Passing End.

Proposing that congress give the President authority to take this step, Dr. Dahlberg notes that "political buck passing would then be impossible, and the public would know with the greatest exactitude in whom the responsibility was located."

If any one is thinking that he could beat the Dahlberg plan by investing in foreign money, or in metallic coins, the doctor has him there, because he says that "the Englishman would not want to buy dollars subject to taxation unless he received more of them for his pounds." Anticipating objections that foreign trade would be in a mess, Dr. Dahlberg is calm in saying that the world powers will simply have to adopt a similar forfeit rate and force their rich also to spend foolishly to employ the poor of the world.

Pointing out that it is already a felony to own more than $100 worth of gold, Dr. Dahlberg would make it another felony to hoard more than $50 worth of silver, and so nobody coud beat the currency forfeit that way.

BANKERS WILL VISIT ROOSEVELT; PLEA FOR STABILIZATION SEEN

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 27.—[Special.]—A new British-American banking effort to win the administration over to a policy of international monetary stabilization is looked for when Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, and George L. Harrison, governor of the federal reserve bank of New York, come here tomorrow to the summer White House to confer with President Roosevelt.

The two bankers are to arrive at Hyde Park tomorrow afternoon. Officially no notice of the topic of the talk has been given, but that its main purpose is agreement upon some method of stabilization is taken for granted. The British banker and the American, who have worked together for a number of years, sought energetically during the London conference to bring about a stabilization between the dollar and the pound. The President refused to countenance any official agreement, however, though he said he would welcome a program to "steady" exchange to be worked out by the banks.

Two other visitors tomorrow are to be Secretary of the Interior Ickes, with whom the President will discuss the progress of the public works program, and Postmaster General Farley, who will come presumably to confer on patronage.

During the afternoon, the President and Mrs. Roosevelt took a ninety mile drive, going first to visit camp No. 17 of the civilian conservation corps in Bear Mountain state park. They found there 160 young men, now on the federal pay roll for the jobless, who are building a dam for the creation of a reservoir to supply the Bear Mountain park and West Point.

Following this visit, the presidential party motored to Camp Smith, near Peekskill, where President Roosevelt reviewed the 71st and 174th regiments of the New York National Guard as they passed in a colorful parade.

REPEAL ASSURED BY NEXT NOV. 7, FARLEY CLAIMS

Texas Wet; Washington Votes Tomorrow.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 27.—(AP)—The possibility that the eighteenth amendment will be voted out of the constitution within the next 11 weeks became stronger today when Texas recorded itself heavily as the 23d successive repeal state, while 16 others prepared to ballot.

With scattered returns bringing the "Lone Star" state's anti-prohibition majority above 110,000, interest swerved to the ballot in Washington on Tuesday. A similar vote there would bring the repeal tide to the two-third mark.

The Texas vote drew a statement from Postmaster General Farley in New York that he felt sure "repeal of the eighteenth amendment" would be assured by Nov. 7. Even if the required 36 states had voted by that date, however, repeal would not become legally effective until all of the state conventions had met several weeks later.

39 States Vote by Nov. 7.

Virtual assurance that at least 39 states in all—or three more than necessary for repeal should all go wet—will ballot by Nov. 7 was given during the week by legislative actions in Virginia and Kentucky.

The Virginia assembly, in special session, set Oct. 3 as a voting day on the repeal question, while the Kentucky date has been tentatively agreed upon as Nov. 7.

In addition, Gov. Landon of Kansas has called a special session of the state legislature to meet in September, Gov. Allen of Louisiana has announced he would call such a session, and Gov. Cooney of Montana has said he would call a special meeting of the legislature if it was necessary for repeal.

Even should the present repeal trend continue, however, it would appear improbable that the 36 repeal ratifications necessary to bring the twenty-first or repealing amendment into effect could be deposited in the state department before Dec. 6.

Of the 15 states in which voting days have been definitely set, four will not hold conventions until Dec. 5, while two other conventions will not gather until Dec. 6.

Missouri Ratifies Tomorrow.

While Washington voters are balloting on Tuesday, the Missouri convention will go through the formality of holding session. Although the vote in the "show me" state is not yet complete, the totals aside from the few missing precincts stand at 497,387 for repeal to 146,004 against. Sixty-eight wet delegates were elected and will sit unopposed.

Aside from the tentative Kentucky vote date, those definitely listed for the other 15 state elections and conventions, follow:

State—	Election.	Convention.
Washington	Aug. 29	Oct. 3
Vermont	Sep. 5	Sep. 18
Maine	Sep. 11	Dec. 6
Colorado	Sep. 12	Sep. 26
Maryland	Sep. 12	Oct. 19
Minnesota	Sep. 12	Oct. 10
Idaho	Sep. 19	Oct. 17
New Mexico	Sep. 19	Nov. 2
Virginia	Oct. 3	Oct. 25
Florida	Oct. 10	Nov. 14
North Carolina	Nov. 7	Dec. 6
Ohio	Nov. 7	Dec. 5
Pennsylvania	Nov. 7	Dec. 5
South Carolina	Nov. 7	Dec. 4
Utah	Nov. 7	Dec. 5

New Hope for Drys—Sheppard.

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Defeated in his effort to make Texas the first state to vote for retention of the 18th amendment, Senator Morris Sheppard said tonight prohibitionists should receive "fresh hope" from Saturday's referendum despite the majority of more than 110,000 by which the state went wet.

"The militant and aggressive fight made by the drys in Texas and the relatively large vote they polled in the face of such tremendous odds ought to give fresh hope and enthusiasm to prohibitionists everywhere," Sheppard said.

White Burley is the kind of leaf tobacco best for pipes..Wellman's Method is the way to make pipe tobacco

a sensible package
10 cents

THERE are a lot of different kinds of tobacco grown in the world—over two hundred of them they say—but there are only a few that smoke right in a pipe.

Now if you go down into the Blue Grass region of Kentucky you'll find a kind of tobacco that's just right for pipe smoking. They call it White Burley.

There is a type of White Burley that is best suited for pipe smoking. It is not light and chaffy and at the same time it is not rank or strong. From the right place on the stalk we pick out the tobacco leaves that we use to make Granger Rough Cut.

Then after we have the right leaf tobacco, it's a question of making pipe tobacco out of it.

In making Granger we use Wellman's Method (discovered by Mr. J. N. Wellman away back in 1870) because old man Wellman knew how to make pipe tobacco. And no method that has yet been invented seems to be as good.

White Burley is the kind of leaf tobacco best for pipes, and Wellman's Method is the way to make tobacco to smoke in a pipe.

EX-WIFE WINS BATTLE TO SHARE WILLETT ESTATE

Ruling Sets Precedent in Divorce Litigation.

Alimony payments to a divorced wife must be continued from her ex-husband's estate if dower rights have not been waived. This ruling, made by Master in Chancery Cornelius J. Harrington in a report to be filed today in Superior court, is said by lawyers to establish a precedent in Illinois divorce litigation.

The finding of Master Harrington is one of the final steps in a two year court battle over the $1,000,000 estate of the late Walter Davidson Willett, head of the large trucking and bus concern. Only the signature of Judge Robert E. Gentzel is necessary to close the case. The judge has indicated he will sign the report at the opening of the fall term of court on Sept. 18.

$100 Month for Life.

The decision is in favor of Mrs. Marguerite T. Willett of 14 West Elm street, second wife of Willett. She is to receive $100 a month for the remainder of her life, which is a continuation of alimony ordered when she secured a divorce in 1921.

Mrs. Willett obtained a divorce on charges of cruelty. The late Charles E Erbstein was her attorney. In the decree, which gave her a cash settlement of $15,000 in addition to the alimony, there was no waiver of dower rights.

Under the law of this state dower rights are canceled only against the offending party. If Willett had secured the divorce, attorneys explained, Mrs. Willett would have lost her dower rights.

After his second wife divorced him Willett married again, the third wife being Mrs. Flossie Collins Willett. Alimony payments to Mrs. Marguerite Willett were stopped on his death on June 10, 1931.

Sues for Widow's Share.

Mrs. Willett brought her action for a widow's share in the estate shortly after payments ceased through the law firm of Socrates, Davis & Cohen. She named as defendants the third wife, her minor daughter, Charmaine; Alvin and Helen Willett, children of Willett's first wife, Mrs. Rose Frances Willett, and the executors of the estate, Howard Willet, brother of her former husband, and Frank T. Jordan.

In opposing the claim attorneys for the estate carried the case to the Illinois Supreme court. The higher court ruled Mrs. Willett's action to be proper. Judge Gentzel ordered Master Harrington to determine what Mrs. Willett should receive.

4 ESCAPE JAIL, USING PASTOR, GIRL AS SHIELD

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Slugging two guards and forcing a minister and a girl pianist ahead of them as human shields, four prisoners escaped from the Wayne county jail during church services today. Ten minutes later three of the four prisoners were recaptured after one of them had fought a gun battle with officers in the heart of the downtown district.

The prisoners, Irving Pyle, 44; Julius Wild, 35; William Ryan, 44, and Steven Andrews, 27, slugged Guards Alex Niedzielski and William McLeod with improvised blackjacks, took their keys and forced the Rev. Ernest C. Fackler and Miss Irene Outland, 20, a pianist, to precede them from the jail. More than 100 other prisoners were in the assembly hall at the time.

Gaining the street the prisoners separated. Pyle, cornered by Deputy John C. Moon in front of a theater, exchanged pistol shots with the officer until his ammunition was exhausted and he surrendered. Wild and Ryan were captured in the lobby of a nearby building. Andrews still was at large tonight.

Charges Woman with Cane Is Trapped as Purse Thief

A gray haired woman, about 45 years old, who walks with a limp and carries a cane, was paraded before crime victims at the detective bureau yesterday. She identified herself as Miss Rose Leona Schneitzer, living in Hyde Park boulevard. Miss Schneitzer was seized Saturday in the main dining room of the Drake hotel by House Detective James McMurdy as, according to McMurdy, she was taking from a chair a purse which had been placed there as a trap.

JACOBS ORDERS 2 Y. M. C. A. HOTELS PUT ON TAX ROLLS

Find Buildings Go Beyond Charter Powers.

Two hotels owned by the Y. M. C. A., which has been tax exempt under a charter granted 72 years ago, will be placed on the 1932 real estate assessment rolls, County Assessor J. L. Jacobs announced yesterday. The properties are the Lawson Y. M. C. A. at 30 West Chicago avenue and the Y. M. C. A. hotel at 826 South Wabash avenue.

Mr. Jacobs said that an investigation by his office had convinced him that the buildings were being used for purposes beyond the provisions of the charter. The charter states that buildings dedicated for use af free libraries and reading rooms and for benevolent and religious purposes shall be tax exempt. Jacobs says, however, that the Y. M. C. A. has been catering for years to the public in its hotels.

Hotels Make Protest.

Recently, the association started an advertising campaign to induce visitors to the Fair to stop at its hotels, listing 6,000 rooms as ready for occupancy. Regular hotels protested to the assessor that this was unfair competition because their taxes constitute a large part of their overhead.

The assessor said that his investigation so far had been confined to the two hotels, but further inquiry would be made on all the other Y. M. C. A. properties. Mr. Jacobs said that his associates had reported that the two hotels "are the most flagrant cases wherein the association has departed from its charter powers and entered into competition with commercial tax-paying enterprises."

"Obviously, the advantage of tax exemption enjoyed by the Y. M. C. A. is unfair, at least in these two instances," Mr. Jacobs said, "and it now becomes my legal duty to place these properties on the 1932 assessment rolls."

Profit from Operations.

Mr. Jacobs' report contained the 1928 balance sheet of the association's cafeteria and dining room accounts. The total income was $1,130,538. The expenses were $1,083,356.

"This profit of $47,182 does not indicate a benevolent or religious use of their dining rooms," the report said, "when in the downtown cafeteria alone was was a total income of $228,207. These figures show other than an incidental utilization in the pursuit of the corporation's objects of religious and benevolent purposes. How can an independent taxpaying restaurant compete with these tax free chain restaurants and cafeterias?

"An examination of the prices charged in these cafeterias for food shows that they are comparable with those of other commercial cafeterias in this city and consequently would lend no pecuniary inducement to the fortunate or unfortunate young men of this city to patronize the association.

"Most of the Y. M. C. A. real charity and religious work has no connection with its buildings, while the buildings, aside from such educational work as it carries on, are used almost wholly for club and social purposes. There is nothing to show what religious worship, if any, is carried on in the hotel on Wabash avenue or in the other buildings.

Weekly Bible Classes.

"While it is contended that there are weekly Bible classes and discussions and religious meetings held, such classes and meetings do not necessarily constitute religious worship. If they do, they are infinitesimal in the time and space they occupy in comparison with the other social activities and commercial uses of the association's properties. The acts of charity in connection with the use of this building is the exception rather than the rule.

"There is no attempt on the part of the assessor to disparage the really important work done by the Y. M. C. A. The point is made, however, that most of the activities embraced in its charter could be carried on in humbler surroundings, and with less loss of revenue to the city than is caused by exempting its very expensive properties from general taxation. So far as it exercises purely the functions of a club, it is no more entitled to exemption than any other club and there is nothing in the suggestion that a superior moral atmosphere entitles it to such exemption."

Exceeds Corporate Object.

The report stated that hotel accommodations offered by the Y. M. C. A. might be sanctioned they were incidental to the other work of the association, but the showing that 56 per cent of the association's total income of $4,605,142 in 1928 was from room rent and cafeteria revenue is evidence that the association "has entered the hotel and rooming house business in a big way and has thereby exceeded its corporate object."

The report says that in its newspaper advertisements, the Y. M. C. A. does not attempt to attract poor youths, for whose benefit it was founded, but caters to people who are able to pay prices charged by commercial hotels.

WOMEN CAUSE OF WARS, ONE OF THEM ASSERTS

New York, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Mrs. Annie Riley Hale, defeated opponent of Senator William Gibbs McAdoo in the last California Democratic primaries, said today that women cause wars.

"Women are responsible for wars," Mrs. Hale asserted at a meeting commemorating the fifth anniversary of the signing of the Kellogg pact.

"But one generation of intelligent mothers," she added, "who trained their sons to look for higher things could end war."

Dr. Sydney Strong, writer on international affairs and former Congregationalist minister in Chicago and Seattle, opposed Mrs. Hale's viewpoint and said that "the maintenance of peace depends upon the women."

We Do Our Part—and More!

A $267,960 Increase in Pay Roll!

Since August first our increase in employees and wages has produced an increased pay roll at the rate of $267,960 per year, and we believe that this will increase even further in the future.

This means our employees will have more money to spend.

We Add More Employees:

Although we retained a very large proportion of our employees during the dull times, we have already added 273 names to our pay roll since August first, or 392 in excess of this time a year ago. We hope within the next 60 days to have a number equal to the highest peak in our 78 years of business. That, too, builds greater buying power.

We Follow the President:

In spirit, as well as to the letter, we carry out the wishes of the President, doing everything we can to aid in the return of prosperity.

We Hold Prices Down:

We pass on to our customers every possible saving in purchases. Every contract we placed before commodity prices skyrocketed means lower prices than you'd expect to pay. Mandel Brothers will protect your pocketbook to the limit of their ability.

We Maintain Quality:

We believe that it is more important than ever to sell quality merchandise up to the Mandel standard; we feel that good quality is the least expensive thing you can buy.

Business Is Better:

Our own business has increased greatly so far this August, as compared with August, 1932. We're grateful to our customers and thank you for this recognition of Mandel's policies and values.

We make this announcement to help accelerate the rising tide of Prosperity in which all progressive organizations should share.

MOLEY RESIGNS HIS U. S. POST TO EDIT MAGAZINE

Adviser of Roosevelt for Last Two Years.

an editorship will give you opportunity to carry on the task in an equally wide field.

"The ending of our official relations will in no way terminate our close personal association. I shall count on seeing you often and in the meantime I send you every good wish and my affectionate regards."

Once Mentioned for Cabinet.

As remarked on in the exchange of notes, the resignation of the chief of the brain trust marks the first break of any sort in an association that took active form two years ago. Since that date the Columbia professor of public law, a post he still holds, has had a hand in the formation of virtually every policy undertaken by the President. Prior to March 4 it was considered more than possible that Mr. Moley would be given a cabinet place—probably that of secretary of state.

That Mr. Moley was relegated to a position in the little cabinet—even though he continued to serve as a foremost adviser on the whole administration program—was laid by those who professed to know to the fact that he was not noted for tact and patience, but rather for a brilliant but sometimes emotional activity.

Open Break at London.

The place given him as assistant in name to Secretary of State Hull was considered by some as bound eventually to result in friction. The former Tennessee senator was noted for his idealistic and internationalistic views. The theories of the college professor were by contrast of a more practical sort and were based primarily on a nationalistic policy. The open break between the two came during the London conference to which Mr. Moley was rushed as a special presidential emissary at a time when it appeared that the American delegation was about to go beyond the President's views in negotiating an agreement for stabilization of international exchange.

Prof. Moley's manner in carrying out his mission was notable for lack of tact, his tactics causing Secretary Hull to feel that his subordinate was trying to usurp his authority and run the show. From that time on it was taken for granted that one of the two must go. Though it was protested at the time that nothing lay behind the move, the transfer of Prof. Moley to head of the crime study was interpreted as being the first step toward eventual resignation.

Victory for Hull Seen.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 27.—(AP)—A victory for Secretary Cordell Hull which may strengthen his hand in the conduct of America's foreign policies was seen by his associates today in the sudden resignation of Raymond Moley as assistant secretary of state.

Mr. Hull himself learned of the development through an Associated Press telephone call to the remote section of the Virginia hills where he has been fishing and resting for about two weeks, but made no immediate comment.

Other officials here expressed the belief that the post would be filled before long as the state department will be busy this fall with war debt conferences and tariff negotiations.

MAN WHO CONQUERED MOUNT RAINIER WILL BE HONORED SEPT. 2

Paraside Park, Mount Rainier, Wash., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Almost 100 years ago today a young Scotsman planned a daring hunt for flowers on the slopes of terrible Mount Rainier.

He was Dr. William Fraser Tolmie, and on Sept. 2 the United States government will commemorate his feat in starting the conquest of the mountain, which the Indians believed was the home of demons.

Dr. Simon Fraser Tolmie, premier of British Columbia and son of the explorer, is to be the central figure in the centennial celebration at the opening of a new entrance to Rainier National park.

The great volcanic mountain, which used to reupt when "the gods" were angry, is 14,408 feet high and has 28 glaciers on its sides. It was discovered by Capt. George Vancouver and named after Admiral Peter Rainier of the British navy.

Tolmie, an employé of the Hudson's Bay company, only wanted to botanize on Rainier's slopes, but he left his name in history and on maps, since he played a prominent part in negotiation of the British-American treaty which set the international boundary line.

Slays Estranged Wife and Self After Quarrel

Anton Valentincic, 40 years old, of Waukegan, shot and killed his wife, Louise, yesterday, and then committed suicide. The Valentincics separated several months ago, and yesterday Valentincic called at the home of his wife at 316 George street, Waukegan, evidently to discuss a reconciliation. The visit turned into a quarrel, and he shot her in the heart. Then he fled to Roosevelt park, near his own home at 223 Belvidere street, and fired a bullet into his head. The Valentincics' son, 20 years old, and daughter, 18, were at the World's Fair at the time.

AUTO INDUSTRY WINS POINT ON LABOR MATTER

Code Is Announced After Roosevelt Signs It.

misinterpretations which have risen since the act was passed.

"Looking at the code as a whole, leaders in the automobile industry feel that it is a distinct contribution to the great objective sought by the administration—that of getting men back to work."

Wages and Hours Fixed.

The other parts of the automobile code went through practically unchanged. The minimum wage rates for factory employés were fixed at 43 cents an hour in cities of more than 500,000 population; 41½ cents in cities between 250,000 and 500,000 population, and 40 cents in cities or towns having less than 250,000 population.

For office workers, the rates were fixed at $15, $14.50, and $14 per week, respectively, in the three population classes.

The industry was put on a 35 hour week, with office emloyés working 40 hours per week, with certain exceptions in both classes.

The code is to take effect on Tuesday, Sept. 5, ten days after the President's approval of last night. National Automobile Chamber of Commerce was designated in the code to act in the administration of the code.

Codes Travel by Plane.

The automobile code, with three other codes for the men's ready to wear clothing, hosiery, and rayon and rynthetic yarns industries, was taken by airplane to the President at his Hyde Park, N. Y., home last night by Miss Frances Robinson, girl Friday secretary to Gen. Johnson. The President signed all four codes without delay, and Miss Robinson returned to Washington with them late last night. It was not announced that the automobile code had been signed, however, until this afternoon.

Civil Legion Votes Today on Resolution Backing NRA

Strict enforcement of the national industrial recovery act will be asked in resolutions presented to the United States Civil legion, which convenes today in the Morrison hotel. The organization has a membership of 20,000 nonmilitary veterans of government service during war times. Gov. Gen. Robert H. Gore of Porto Rico will be a guest today. Charles Edward Russell, editor and Socialist leader in New York, is president of the legion.

RECOVERY COST GROWING DAILY FOR TAXPAYER

Treasury Reveals Sums Spent by Agencies.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 27.—The high cost of recovery is getting higher for the nation's taxpayer.

Treasury department figures which were made public today reveal that the various recovery agencies set up for the Roosevelt program now are costing an average of three and a half million dollars a day.

Three weeks ago the recovery program was costing the taxpayer only about two and a half million a day. But, with added steam behind relief and construction projects, the average has jumped a million dollars in about 21 days, the treasury's report shows.

Last Year's Expenses Surpassed.

A total of approximately 194 million dollars has been spent under the so-called emergency budget in the 55 days since the fiscal year began, on July 1, according to the latest treasury checkup which was dated Aug. 24. These emergency expenditures are slightly more than the deficit up to date, indicating that without them the budget would be nearly balanced for the first time since the beginning of the depression.

Emergency expenditures thus far in this fiscal year have at last passed those made during the same period of the previous year. Until recently the treasury has shown the Reconstruction Finance corporation a year ago cost more than all the present recovery administration combined. On Aug. 24 however, emergency expenditures were 90 million dollars more than on the same date a year before. The Reconstruction Finance corporation, however, again leads the list of spenders, having used up 102 million dollars in 55 days, or about $1,830,000 per day. In the last three weeks this average has increased by more than $800,000, as more money has gone to banks and relief agencies through the relief administration, which draws its funds from the R. F. C. account.

The national recovery administration, on which the major hope for licking the depression is pinned, is one of the least expensive of the emergency agencies.

In the last 55 days, it has spent only $222,000, or about $4,000 a day. Only the Muscle Shoals authority which has not yet started on its spending spree, has cost less.

Second to the R. F. C. in spending is the public works easy money fund. It has poured out 42 millions thus far averaging $760,000 a day. Still unable to hit its stride, it has not increased its rate of spending during the last three weeks.

The forest army is third, with average daily costs of $726,000. In 55 days it has used up slightly more than 40 million dollars out of the taxpayers' purse, and during the last twenty-one days its daily costs have jumped $100,000.

Agriculture $120,000 a Day.

Fourth in line is the agricultural adjustment administration, costing a total of six and a half million to date, or about $120,000 a day, compared with $100,000 three weeks ago. Having collected more than eight and a half millions in processing taxes, this administration would have a net profit if both income and outgo were considered, but this condition is not expected to continue long.

The other two classifications of emergency expenditures are loans to federal land banks totaling 3 million, or $54,000 on a daily average basis, and $45,000, or less than $1,000 a day for the first stages of the Muscle Shoals works.

FINED $200 BY JUDGE.

Leroy Moore, 21 years old, 509 North Union avenue, was fined $200 yesterday by Municipal Judge Leon Edelman a few hours after he was arrested as he was about to smash a window of a grocery store at 233 East 95th street.

PARAGUAYANS FREED FROM FOES TELL OF BAD FOOD

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Paraguayan soldiers captured by Bolivia in the Gran Chaco war between the two nations returned to their homes today. They complained of bad food and bad treatment, and declared they had been worked excessively by their captors. At the same time they paid high tribute to the kindliness of a Bolivian captain, Gustavo Lopez, and told that a Señora Aramayo had given them candy before they started their long journey home.

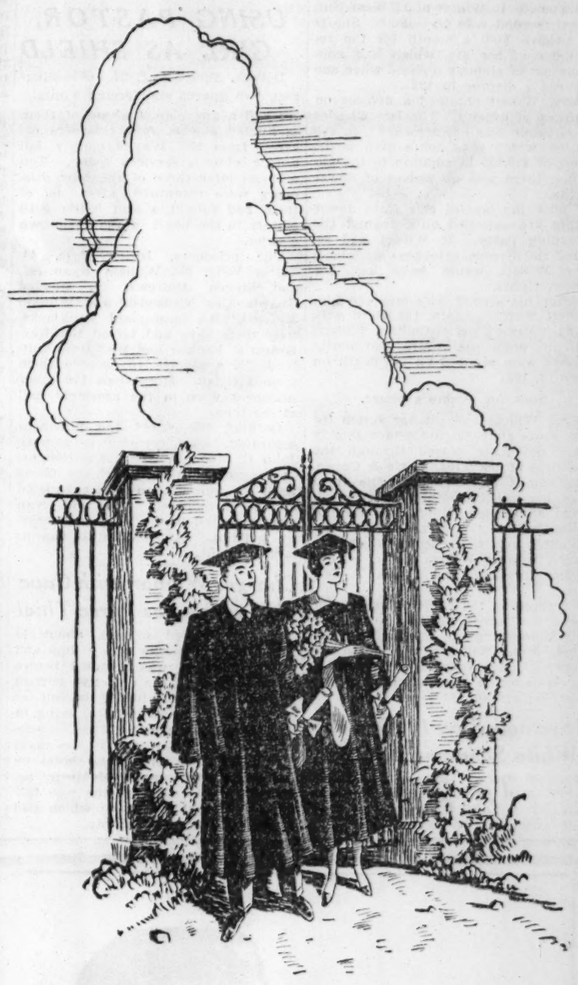
WILL YOU LEAVE YOUR CHILDREN THE KIND OF WEALTH THAT WILL NOT FAIL THEM?



MANY a man who leaves his children only a heritage of money, greviously fails them and does them quite as much harm as he intended good. Unforseeable changes in the economic world may sweep away a fortune, leaving heirs worse off than if they had been born poor.

The best gift a man may leave his children is a good education and special training for the competition of life.

The bigger business gets, and the more complicated industry becomes, the more the world belongs to the experts. Generous compensation goes to the trained specialist. A good general education, plus professional or technical training, will go with your child through life and help him more than anything else you can leave him.

COAL OWNERS SEEK CLEARER LABOR CLAUSE

Offer New Code to Gen. Johnson.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 27.—[Special.]—A new coal code in which the issue of labor relations is more clearly drawn was presented to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson today by the large group of northern and southern nonunion coal operators.

Taking heart from the concessions made by the NRA to the automobile industry in permitting a clause recognizing the industry's right to deal with workers on a basis of efficiency, the nonunion coal operators have inserted a similar clause in their new code.

Text of New Offer.

The wording of the clause in the coal code follows:

"Believing that the best interests of employés, as well as of industry, are promoted by the recognition of ability and efficiency, the members of this code may exercise their right to hire, discharge, promote, and demote employés on the basis of individual merit, without regard to their membership or nonmembership in any organization. This statement of policy is made without attempting to qualify or change by interpretation the requirements of the national industrial recovery act."

This clause probably will bring a new battle with the labor forces, who have protested against holding the insertion of the clause in the automobile code as a precedent for other industries.

In transmitting the new coal code, Walter Jones, secretary of the Northern Coal Control association, and H. R. Hawthorne, secretary of the Smokeless and Appalachian Coal association, quoted the text of an interpretation handed down by Gen. Johnson on Aug. 23 in similar language to that now used by the operators.

Provides Labor Boards.

The new code as offered by the operators' group also sets up elaborate machinery for the settlement of disputes in the industry. The code provides for the election by the employés of any mine of a committee of five to negotiate with the management in case of differences arising between the two.

Inability of the two sides to settle their difference in this manner would be followed by the establishment of a board of mediation consisting of two members in each operating district. One mediator would be named by the industrial advisory board of NRA and the other by the labor advisory board.

If the board of mediation fails to settle this dispute it shall then be referred to a board of adjustment to consist of five members, two to be appointed by the industry advisory board, two by the labor advisory board, and the fifth by the President. Pending final decision of the matter in dispute "no employé shall cease work because of such dispute."

The so called "general" code, submitted by the union operators who recognize the United Mine Workers, still is unchanged. Its proponents represent 120 million tons of soft coal production.

THREE SUSPECTS NAMED IN GIRL'S DEATH IN HOLDUP

Three men, all with minor police records, were sought yesterday by police as suspects in the murder Saturday of Miss Florence Quinn, 25 years old, 5828 Ridge avenue. Miss Quinn, an employé of the B. A. Railton company, 363 West Erie street, was killed in a pistol fight between bandits and Albert Pappas, owner of a restaurant at 658 Orleans street.

Outside the restaurant police found an automobile, believed to have been abandoned by the killers when they fled on foot. License plates in the car, which had never been reported stolen, were issued to David London, 31 years old, 1444 South Turner avenue.

When London was arrested and paraded at a detective bureau showup recently, he had two companions, Sam Kaplan, 710 West 14th street, and Isadore ["Two Gun"] Cohen, who lives on Millard avenue in the Fillmore street police district. Orders were issued for the arrest of the three men and a police guard was stationed at London's home.

HOMEMADE BOAT BRINGING PARTY TO WORLD FAIR

UNION CLUB GOES MODERN IN NEW HOME IN GOTHAM

New York, Aug. 27.—[Special.]—The Union club, one of New York's corner stones of conservatism, has gone modern.

When the new club building at Park avenue and 69th street opens tomorrow the 1,400 members will find within the five story granite and limestone air conditioned structure photoelectric cells, television, radios in every room, a "traffic" system and loudspeaker in the kitchen, and modernistic decorative art.

True, the ancient portrait of Washington is still in place; the gifts from the palace of the czars still are on display; Hogarth and Inness and Stuart line the freshly painted walls, but the solid yew table, blackened by cigar butts, has been moved to the new tap room. Even much of the old furniture has been transferred but modernized.

There are other concessions to progress: Squash courts—three of them—athletic dressing and lounge room designed by Melzer, a Russian, and a lamp room with infra-red ray lamps, sun lamps, and other kinds of lamps. Even the lavatories are finished in black Cararera glass, with maroon doors.

Crew of Five

Fort Worth, Tex., Aug. 27.—[Special.]—A little 26x5 foot home made boat carying a crew of five Fort Worth men is on its way to A Century of Progress Exposition by river. The boat, christened Texas Steer, set out from Fort Worth last Wednesday, the crew paddling and poling it down the Trinity river to the gulf, from where its route extends to New Orleans, up the Mississippi and into the Chicago drainage canal.

Commodore B. M. Hatfield, who built the boat with the aid of four unemployed men who now make up his crew, said he expected the 2,800 mile journey would require 42 days. When the Texas Steer reaches water deep enough to make it possible, a motor will be added to its equipment.

On the way to Chicago Commodore Hatfield, soldier of fortune and veteran of the Boxer rebellion, will make talks at various towns and cities advocating support of the NRA and urging canalization of the Trinity river from Fort Worth to the gulf.

DETROIT BANKING INQUIRY BEGINS 2D WEEK TODAY

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Officials in charge of the one man grand jury investigation of Detroit's banking situation tonight laid plans for another week of testimony which will bring to the witness stand Arthur J. Lacy, attorney for United States Senator James Couzens, and Gov. William A. Comstock.

Lacy is to be the first witness called tomorrow. He is a director of the Guardian National Bank of Commerce. Gov. Comstock, whose proclamation of a state bank moratorium Feb. 14 was followed by similar action in other states, is expected to testify later in the week.

Two score more witnesses are expected before the jury completes its hearings.

START CANVASS OF HOMES TODAY IN NRA DRIVE

Vote Tonight on Strike of 5,000 Milliners.

The campaign to enlist Chicago housewives and the consuming public generally in support of the national recovery campaign starts this morning. Under the guidance of the Chicago Recovery council, of which George W. Rc setter is chairman, volunteer workers will start a house to house canvass of the city.

Those who promise to trade exclusively with merchants who have adopted the NRA code for their employés will be given blue eagle stickers to display in their windows.

The Chicago campaign is a part of a nation-wide effort to be waged by a million volunteers. Hugh S. Johnson, national recovery administrator, opened the campaign with an address in Washington last night.

"Tomorrow marks a milestone in human progress," Johnson said. "For the first time the American people have a chance to test in business a principle that they have long ago proved in government. That principle is the trite old slogan, "In union there is strength."

Warns Against Intimidation.

Johnson asserted that more than 70 per cent of employers now are under the blue eagle and added that the remainder must be before the drive ends. He warned that "even the shadow" of a boycott, intimidation and violence would "spoil this whole endeavor." Every effort for two weeks will be devoted to seeing that obligations of the NRA are understood, he added.

Mandel Brothers' department store officials announced that since Aug. 1 they have increased their working force by 273 employés, while in the same period additions of employés and increases in wages of those already employed have enlarged the pay rolls of the store at the rate of $267,360 a year.

Vote Tonight on Strike of 5,000.

A recommendation for a strike of 5,000 milliners is to be voted upon tonight at a massmeeting of the Chicago Millinery Workers' union in the Masonic hall at 32 West Randolph street. The recommendation was passed yesterday at a conference of shop committeemen and committeewomen in the Capitol building. Max Zaritsky, president of the Millinery Workers' International union, said members of the union here are demanding unionized shops, a minimum wage, and shorter hours.

Max Meyer, banker and technical adviser to the NRA administration, is expected in Chicago today, as a representative of the national labor board, to attempt to settle the strike of 7,500 employés in the ladies' garment trade. The garment workers went on strike a week ago, protesting against wages and working hours and charging that their employers are failing to live up to provisions of the NRA.

Plasterers to Frame Code.

The Master Plasterers' Association of Chicago and Cook County yesterday invited all plastering contractors, plasterers, lathers, shop hands, modelers, laborers, and others connected with the plastering industry, both union and nonunion, to attend a meeting Wednesday evening in Temple hall, 330 South Marshfield avenue, for the discussion of an NRA code for the plastering trade in Chicago.

The Master Plasterers' association concluded an agreement last week with the Plasterers' union providing for a 40 hour week and a wage scale of $1.50 an hour for journeymen plasterers. The proposed code will affect about 6,000 workmen and employers in the county, according to E. P. Waldron, recording secretary of the employers' association.

HINDU MONARCH OPENS RELIGIOUS CONGRESS HERE

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The Maharaja Gaekwar Sir Sayaji Rao III of Baroda, first ruling monarch to visit Chicago during A Century of Progress, dispelled any delusions last night that may have been held by 2,000 persons who heard him speak that all Hinduism is of dream stuff and that the goal of human life is futility.

Quite to the contrary, the gaekwar seemed to have his feet on solid modern ground when he asked that religion be "debunked" if it is to be useful in solving modern problems. He also asserted that religion needs "decoding" as well as debunking.

Opens Fellowship Meeting.

In his address, which opened the world fellowship of faiths convention at the Morrison hotel, His Highness was very specific in saying just what he meant by the debunking and decoding process he recommends. He pointed swiftly to the way new religions arise from old as critical movements because the old religions tend to work themselves off the earth into the clouds. Today, as in other times of change, the gaekwar said, "we need to redefine much."

As one instance of this, he referred to Buddhism's influence on the more ancient Brahminism, "by emphasizing human values and by talking the way the people talked."

"We need to insist that the Absolute expresses Himself in time and space, and that the world we live in is real, that the mind that knows it is of the same essence as the mind that planned it—the mind of a mathematician and a poet; and still more that our bliss is His bliss, our sorrow His sorrow. We blaspheme if we call it Illusion: and I assure you we are not all mystics in India. We have had our materialists even, and many, many realists. If we have no Woolworth towers, we have our Gwalior forts and Delhi mosques.

India Acquires Horse Sense.

"The real practical Indian mind has been perverted by over-subtlety but our great laymen, Sakyamuni, Krishna, Gandhi and our humble saints, Kabir, Tukaram, Tulsidas, have given us what I believe you call horse sense, and called us back to reality, and to human values. These are the practical idealists of India."

Aside from a slight accent and apart from the sound of the names strange to western ears—except Gandhi's—the gaekwar's steady, clear speech revealed thought one would more naturally expect to hear voiced by an American idealist who has become impatient with religious orthodoxy of one sort or another.

The gaekwar condemned "the selfishness of Brahmins"—he meant the Brahmins of India—who "hardened class into caste." He also berated "the priestly and world-denying groups."

Combats Caste System.

His sincerity in condemning the caste system cannot be questioned because it has been learned that in Baroda even the "untouchables" for whose rights Mahatma Gandhi is now struggling have long since achieved all of Gandhi's aims. It was also revealed during the session last night that Baroda is the only sovereign state in the world in which the cabinet has a "minister of moral education."

The maharaja, in his short, driving sentences, spoke of interest in plain human beings as well of his faith in god.

"Man must work for mankind in the world, and not out of it. He must take his place gladly and frankly at the festival of life.

"To do a man's work is to find God.

"God is at work. He is a democratic King, and asks our help.

"Democracy means also the emergence of the common man and his rights.

"Alike in east and west, tyrrany and humbug are challenged, for these deny these rights."

When the gaekwar was asked of his interests in Chicago and concerning his visits to the World's Fair, he startled the inquirers by asking to be escorted through the city's poorer districts "to learn first hand what he could from Chicago's methods in handling problem areas."

TSETSE FLY SEEN AT ST. LOUIS? 3 MORE VICTIMS

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 27.—(AP)—The "sleeping sickness" epidemic continued relentlessly here today, taking three more victims and adding thirteen new cases to the 250 already reported.

The death of two patients in St. Louis county and one in the city brought the total to 39 for the outbreak, as federal, state, and city health experts strove to find the cause of the disease.

William Godin went to the police headquarters today with what he thought might be a clue to the origin of the disease. He said he saw an insect in his yard which he believed to be a tsetse fly, generally believed to be the carrier of the type of sleeping sickness found in Africa.

Godin said he spent some time in Borneo and saw the tsetse fly there. The fly in his yard, he said, bore a striking resemblance. Police will pass his report on to the health department.

Researches made here have not definitely shown that the epidemic is caused by insects, and apidemiologists studying the St. Louis type of encephalitis believe it is not the same disease as that found in the tropics. The tsetse fly has always been thought indigenous to Africa.

FAIR WELCOMES 12 MILLIONTH VISITOR TODAY

Offers Varied Program of Musical Events.

Saturday, Aug. 26, 1933, 213,508.
Saturday, Aug. 26, 1893, 168,036.
Total including Aug. 26, 1933 [92 days], 11,754,304.
The Columbian Exposition opened May 1; A Century of Progress opened May. 27.

BY EARL MULLIN.

Music holds the center of the stage at the Fair today as officials prepare to welcome the twelve millionth visitor as he passes through the turnstiles. Expected to enter the grounds early this morning, this guest will mark the end of a week in which nearly every day's attendance exceeded that of the preceding day. The last million visitors to the Fair will have entered in four days and two or three hours, bettering the record of the last million paid admissions by approximately one hour.

Attendance yesterday ran several thousand behind the preceding Sunday, but had attained a total of 209,025 at 11:30 o'clock. It was the tenth consecutive day of attendances exceeding 200,000.

Aside from the musical features of today's program the attractions at the Fair are only the exhibits and shows that are given every day. Officials are watching the attendance today with more than usual interest to see if the admissions drop off.

Bands and Orchestras to Play.

Today's attendance is expected by the officials to prove that the Fair is drawing crowds with its own attractions, and that special events, drawing crowds to the Fair to acquaint them with the routine attractions, are not solely responsible for the record breaking days.

Three special musical reviews, a dance review and orchestras throughout the grounds will be highlights of today. The rodeo parades will be staged in the grounds, one at noon and the second at 6 p. m., to show visitors a part of the show presented in Soldiers' field.

The Four-H club of Wisconsin will present two band concerts in the Wisconsin exhibit at 2 p. m. and in the Court of States at 7 p. m. The Catholic boys' band of Detroit, 80 pieces, give a concert in the Planetarium plaza at 2 p. m. and in the court of the Hall of Science at 9 p. m. The other special musical feature is the concerts of Frank Grasso's Florida orchestra in the Court of States and on the Floating theater. A double dance revue will be staged on the Floating theater, the first at 5 p. m. and the second at 9 p. m. to round out the day of music. The dancers are under the direction of Mrs. Hugh W. Donaldson.

Three Germanic Groups Parade.

Three divisions of the German group held the spotlight at yesterday's Fair with a program of speeches, parades, drills, and music. In the evening the German and Russian music and the ballet from the opera "Prince Igor," seldom heard in America, were presented as representative of the culture of the Volga German group. The other groups participating in the day's ceremonies were the Austrians and German Hungarians.

The ceremonies opened in the afternoon with a parade of 2,500 nationals in costumes, forming in the Court of Honor and marching through the Avenue of flags. Troops from Camp Whistler led the march. A formal program of music and drills was presented in the court of the Hall of Science with leaders of the national groups making addresses.

CENTURY OF PROGRESS NOTES

Prince Iyesato Yokugawa, a member of the Japanese royal family, and a party of friends arrived in Chicago yesterday for a visit to the Fair. The prince, who for thirty years was president of the house of peers in Japan, is now president of the Japanese American society of Japan, and it is in the interests of this organization that he is here.

A party of 176 newsboys of the Buffalo [N. Y.] Evening News will arrive in Chicago at 5:30 p. m. today over the New York Central lines to spend four days at the Fair. They were winners in a subscription contest.

A series of daily travel talks will begin in the auditorium of the Travel and Transport building at 4 p. m. today. James King Steele, tourist commissioner to the Philippine Islands, who is in charge of the Philippine exhibit at the Fair, will be the speaker the first three days. He will use a motion picture projector, showing scenes from the Philippines to illustrate his lectures. The lectures are free to the public.

A special room for diabetic patients has been opened in the Fair hospital in the Hall of Science. Persons suffering from this disease and requiring frequent insulin treatments may leave their insulin kits ina checkroom at the hospital, returning there for treatment. Dr. Frank W. Baylor's hospital staff of five physicians and six nurses will give free medical assistance when necessary.

The greatest salute yet given at the Fair, and probably the only time during the Exposition that it will be given, will be accorded the Maharajah of Baroda today when twenty-one guns greet his arrival. The greatest number of guns yet fired to honor a visiting dignitary has been nineteen, which is given to governors, ambassadors, and members of the cabinet. The twenty-one gun salute is reserved for Presidents, former Presidents, chief magistrates, and sovereigns of foreign nations, and members of reigning families.

Patricia Ann Manners, radio and screen performer, christened the class H locomotive of the Chicago and North Western railroad as "the locomotive of the century" at the Fair yesterday. The engine is the largest dual locomotive in the world, hauling both passengers and freight on the North Western line between Chicago and Omaha. The engine is on exhibition in North Western park just south of the Travel and Transport building.

All expense trips to the Fair, with the expenses to be paid on the installment plan after the trip is completed, are now offered by the Illinois Central railroad from points along its lines.

The tabloid versions of the Gilbert and Sullivan comic operas, "Pinafore" and "The Gondoliers," will be repeated at 8:30 tomorrow evening in the Court of States by popular request. They were given last Tuesday evening on the Floating theater.

A parade in Michigan avenue of automobiles, old and new, and floats of automotive supply and accessory companies will mark the opening of Automotive week at noon next Saturday.

The New York Central lines ran fourteen extra sections and five special trains yesterday to bring more than 6,000 visitors to Chicago for the Fair.

20 More French Police Arrive to Quiet Andorra

ANDORRA, Republic of Andorra, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Twenty French gendarmes arrived in this tiny state in the Pyrenees today as reinforcements to prevent disturbances in connection with a strike which has been in progress several days. A few minor disturbances have been reported. A general election has been called for next Thursday.

WILL THE AMERICAN PUBLIC BE CAUGHT NAPPING AGAIN ?

NRA MEMBER U.S. WE DO OUR PART

The American Public, it seems—men and women alike, on the Street or on the Avenue—have a fatal fondness for "buying at the top," for waiting until they must pay the highest prices for what they buy. Today, with the increased costs of raw materials and labor, the prices of finished products must of necessity also be increased! So, because it has always been the I. Miller policy to advise our customers not only on questions of style but also on matters of value, we urge you not to be caught napping by this inevitable increase in prices. . . . On September 5th the prices of all I. Miller shoes will be higher. However, we now have in our stores several thousand pairs of new Fall shoes that we can still afford to sell at depression prices. These are the same shoes — suede or pebbled sports shoes in brown, black or new eel grey; reptiles; satin in black and brown; kidskin, in black, brown or blue; also patent leather—that you would ordinarily buy later in the season. Why not look ahead and buy at least one pair of Fall shoes now before prices go up?

INFLATED FRANC PREDICTED NEAR TO FIGHT DOLLAR

French Minister Warns of Growing Deficit.

PARIS, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Grave fear of new devalorization of the French franc has been revived in financial circles here by the downward slide of the dollar and the pound and concern over possible monetary developments in the United States.

The treasury and the Bank of France still vigorously proclaim that France is firmly on gold, but privately many financiers predict the day is approaching when France will be forced to devalorize to revive crippled business and vanishing foreign trade.

Budget Minister Lucien Lamoureaux solemnly pictured a perilous state of the nation's finances in a speech at Boussac today. He warned the country that not only the present cabinet but even the French form of government would be in danger unless France succeeds in the tremendous task of balancing the 1933 and 1934 budgets.

Deficit Larger in 1934.

The budget minister announced that immediate new economies amounting to 1,600,000,000 francs will be proposed in parliament, while the country also will be asked to make "new efforts" which he hoped it would accept "with courage."

[At the close of the unofficial market in Paris Saturday the franc was quoted at 5.68 cents.]

The 1933 deficit, M. Lamoureaux pointed out, is 2,600,000,000, and the deficit for 1934 is roughly estimated at 6,000,000,000 francs, including nearly 1,000,000,000 francs in overdue payments on government loans which if unpaid would threaten loss of public confidence.

"In such a case," he declared, "we would be exposed to dangers so formidable as to endanger the fate of the régime itself."

Premier Eduard Daladier will thus be caught between the vital need of reducing expenses and danger of overthrow when he asks parliament to reduce salaries of government functionaries as the principal available source of economy.

Must Borrow Money.

A cloud of a 50,000,000,000 franc floating debt hangs over the ministry of finance, and in the cash box for months there often has been only a small balance.

The unbalanced budget made it certain money must be borrowed for current expenses. This was done in March at 4½ per cent with bonds sold at 98½. Toward the end of April more money was needed and the chances for a successful loan here seemed so poor the government borrowed £30,000,000 in London.

The danger to the franc, financial experts assert, lies in the combination of the government's need of money and the chance the need will be increased rapidly by falling receipts. Taxation of business has yielded less than estimated, as cheaper dollars and pounds have caused French exports to diminish steadily while imports increased.

OPEN VOLCANOES MUSEUM; SET UP BY U. S. SCIENTIST

FORT DE FRANCE, Martinique, Aug. 27.—(AP)—A volcanological museum founded by Frank A. Perret, American scientist, was opened today at St. Pierre in the northern part of the French West Indian island of Martinique.

The institution, provided for with American and local contributions, exhibits relics dug from ruins of eruptions of Mount Pelee and other famous volcanoes.

Perret, a member of the Volcanic Research society of Springfield, Mass., who has conducted research at Mount Vesuvius in Italy and Sakurajima in Japan, recently was made a chevalier of the Legion of Honor by the French government.

Third Set of Triplets in 5 Years Born to Woman

Whitesburg, Ky., Aug. 27.—[Special.]—Triplets were born to Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Martin at Upper Rockhouse in Letcher county, the third set within a period of five years—which is perhaps a record. The proud father stated that he would name them Franklin D., Al, and Woodrow as the Martin family are dyed in the wool Democrats. The trio are boys.

FRANCE BACKS UP AUSTRIA'S FIGHT AGAINST NAZIS

Daladier Warns Others of French Power.

PARIS, Aug. 27.—(AP)—France's resolution to guarantee the political and economic independence of Austria was proclaimed by Premier Edouard Daladier as he departed today to inspect $100,000,000 worth of new fortifications on the German frontier.

Although France wishes only peace and intends to pursue a policy of international coöperation, the premier declared, it is a duty "to assure our own liberty which will be better respected when it is known we are capable of guaranteeing it."

"We must also be on guard," he said, "to see that decisions of the regular organisms of European life—the league of nations and The Hague court of arbitration—are observed and maintained. They have notably proclaimed and defined the political and economic independence of Austria. We are resolved to guarantee it. The smaller, weaker and less populous states have the same rights to free life as those of larger population and area."

System 125 Miles Long.

The statement was made public just before M. Daladier set out by airplane to Metz for an inspection of the steel and concrete defense chain which has been built in the last three years. Based on France's war experiences, this trench and casemate system extends along a 125 mile front between the Rhine and Luxembourg.

It is so constructed that troops would be hidden from enemy view and well protected by the fortifications against bombardment. The trenches link a series of casemates—shell proof vaults with embrasures through which artillery and machine guns may be fired—from one to 16 miles apart. From this chain, which includes an elaborate system of subterranean barracks connected by tunnels, army officers believe a continuous barrage could be laid down along the frontier.

The new fortifications have been designed to offset the shorter period of army service and Premier Daladier, who is also minister of war, has assured the nation that there will be budgetary saving in the cost of materials and increasing efficiency through reorganization, without sacrificing manpower.

Fears War in Few Weeks.

Fear of war within several weeks if Fascist control should spread to Austria was raised by deputies speaking at Angouleme at a meeting of Socialists, who support the government.

Barthelemy Montagnon said the present régime in Italy, Germany and Hungary "represents oppression of the proletariat, blood and war perhaps in several weeks."

M. Adrien Marquet made this declaration:

"If in several weeks the Hitlerite movement gains ascendancy in Vienna it must be realized there will be a germ of war there."

FRENCH OFFICIALS OUST YANKS FROM CUSTOM HOUSE

CANNES, France, Aug. 27.—(AP)—A number of Americans, including a party in evening dress, who had come from night clubs to meet friends, were ejected from the custom house early today upon the arrival of the Italian liner Rex. An official who ejected the Americans cited "special orders." The group included friends of Harold S. Vanderbilt of New York and his recent bride and also the American vice consul. The police commissioner finally calmed the protesting crowd.

HINDENBURG PAYS KAISER HOMAGE AT BATTLE RITES

Germany Celebrates Its Victory at Tannenberg.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 27.—President Paul von Hindenburg paid homage to former Kaiser Wilhelm today at Tannenberg in recalling his part in the German victory over Russia's invading army there in 1914.

"My thoughts go straight in reverence, loyalty and thankfulness to my emperor, king and master, whose confidence and command then called me here," he said.

The 85 year old president, speaking in the court of honor of the Tannenberg memorial, acknowledged gifts and tributes bestowed upon him by a grateful nation on the 19th anniversary of the battle for freeing East Prussia from the Russians.

21 Gun Salute Roars.

Thousands of delegates from all parts of Germany assembled at the memorial to honor the venerable former field marshal. A salute of 21 guns roared as he stepped from his automobile and was welcomed by Chancellor Hitler, Wilhelm Goering, reich minister and premier of Prussia, and other high state officers.

Wearing his field marshal's uniform, carrying a baton and walking with firm step, Von Hindenburg inspected the guard of honor and then entered the court of the memorial where he was greeted with thunderous cries of "Heil!"

Premier Goering announced the presentation by the state of Prussia of estates at Langenau and Forst Preussenwald to the president. He recalled that it had ever been a proud Prusso-German tradition to honor famed military leaders by linking their names with the soil.

Hitler Thanks President.

Hitler, in his turn, told how fate had kindly permitted him to fight as a simple musketeer for the freedom of Germany. He expressed the thanks of the nation to Von Hindenburg and informed him that the government has decreed his estates shall remain tax free as long as there is a male heir.

In a voice quivering with emotion, Von Hindenburg replied that his first thought on this day and in this place must be to his dead comrades.

All flags sank as the president placed a wreath in their memory while the band played, "I Had a Comrade." A minute of silence and then church bells pealed out.

Von Hindenburg, continuing his address of acceptance, then paid his tribute to former Kaiser Wilhelm and his old comrades, "from the oldest general to the youngest musketeer for their firm will to victory and self-sacrifice for the fatherland."

Acknowledges Tributes.

In acknowledging the tributes paid him for his service to the nation at Tannenberg, Von Hindenburg said:

"I only did my duty. I accept this honor not for my services but because I recognize in it the close linking of my person and my descendants with the old Prussian homeland."

He concluded by calling for the "old soldiers' cry which once resounded on the Tannenberg battlefield—'Deutschland, hurrah!'"

Flys to Niederwald.

Immediately after the Tannenberg ceremony Hitler went by plane 700 miles across Germany to attend another great national gathering at the Niederwald Franco-Prussian war memorial. The purpose of this meeting was to demonstrate the unity of Germany and the Saar territory, which is now under the control of the league of nations. A plebiscite will be held in 1935 to determine whether it will remain semi-autonomous, rejoin Germany, or become part of France.

More than 10,000 Germans from the Saar were present at the ceremony. A message from Von Hindenburg and a speech by Hitler stressed the idea of unity and expressed the hope for complete reunion in the near future.

"We want understanding in all things with France," said Hitler, "but Germany will never relinquish the Saar nor the Saar Germany."

Further honors for former military chiefs were announced tonight, Goering appointing Field Marshal von Mackensen and Gen. Karl Litzmann members of the Prussian state council.

French Protest German Ceremony.

VERDUN, France, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Two hundred members of the Society of Naturalized Frenchmen of the Saar made a pilgrimage here today to protest a German demonstration at Niederwald. They came in ten motor buses, and after visiting forts in this region were welcomed at the city hall by Mayor Victor Schleiter. A wreath then was laid on the monument to the war dead.

Washington State Abandons Daylight Saving Time

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Funeral services were held today for daylight saving time, whose brief career in Washington state proved an affliction—in the minds of most folks. Seattle had to take the blame for starting daylight time and was one of the last to drop it. Aberdeen went on standard time today also. Nearly all others abandoned it in recent weeks.

ARTIST RETURNS MILLION; PAINTS NEAR AN ALLEY

An Idyl of Hollywood and New York.

Hollywood, Cal. Aug. 27.—(AP)—An artist who found and returned another man's fortune of $2,000,000 paints deserts and oceans here in a studio that faces an alley.

He is Oscar Stroebel, son of a Cincinnati banker, and he sums up his philosophical vein in his own words:

"I'd rather be rich in creative activity; rich in my paintings."

F. K. Baron von Koenig-Warthausen, noted German aviator, thought so much of Stroebel's work he obtained for him a scholarship in Berlin's Academie der Kunst. The artist borrowed $3,000 and left for Europe.

Gets Extra Grip.

When the bellboy brought his bags to a room in a New York hotel [The Clinton] Stroebel found an extra grip. It bore the label of an Indiana man, whose name Stroebel declines to reveal.

"The hotel clerk knew of no one by that name," Stroebel said, "so I opened the bag. It contained, among other things, a long red envelope. In it were 1,600 shares of National City Bank of New York stock, $250,000 worth of convertible Liberty bonds, $400,000 worth of Guaranty Trust company stock and enough other securities to total $2,000,000."

Stroebel said he dallied, temptation staring him in the face.

"Then I called a broker and asked him what the National City stock was worth," the artist continued. "He told me $950,000."

So Fortune Is Rescued.

Stroebel dashed over to the National City bank. Yes, they knew the Indiana man. They also knew the bag and securities were lost. The fortune was restored to its owner.

The Indiana man offered him $1,000 reward.

"I don't want any reward," Stroebel said.

Sergeant Drops Dead in Suburban Police Station

Desk Sergeant Joseph O'Donnell, 56 years old, collapsed and died yesterday in the Des Plaines village police station. Heart disease was believed responsible. Sergt. O'Donnell lived at 815 Pearson street, Des Plaines. He was unmarried. Surviving him is his mother, Mrs. Bridget O'Donnell. Funeral services will be held at 9:30 Wednesday in St. Mary's church, Des Plaines. Burial will be at All Saints cemetery.

ROB CIGAR STORE CLERK.

A robber took $30 yesterday in a holdup of the United Cigar store at 122 West Van Buren street, locking the clerk, Henry Koehig, in a closet.

4 FIREMEN DIE IN STORE BLAST IN IOWA TOWN

What Cheer, Ia., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Four firemen were killed in an explosion in a two story brick grocery store and meat market which caught fire here early today.

The four were badly mangled, two almost beyond recognition, by the blast which occurred ten minutes after they arrived to battle a blaze which broke out in the meat market about 1:30 a. m.

Otto Bruhn, 80, owner of the meat market, was probably fatally injured when he sought to enter the store to obtain some money in the safe. He reached the door just as the explosion shattered the front.

MILWAUKEE HOST TO 10,000 VETS OF FOREIGN WARS

Reunion Is Opened with Recovery Jubilee.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 27.—[Special.]—Ten thousand men who followed the American flag into the Philippines, Cuba, China, France, Russia, and Nicaragua answered the bugle call for the 34th annual encampment of the Veterans of the Foreign Wars here, which already has been heralded the greatest in the organization's history.

The encampment began officially tonight with the inauguration of the recovery jubilee on the lake front, and the V. F. W. memorial services at the Auditorium. The jubilee will be celebrated every night until next Friday. Admiral Robert E. Coontz, national commander in chief, opened the jubilee, and the memorial services were conducted by National Chaplain Claude E. Ireland.

Reliving Battles of Years Ago.

It was a day for reunion with old comrades; for remembrances of '98, '99, '05, 1918, 1919, and 1929; for reliving the campaigns and battles these ten thousand took part in. The encampment means seeing men, once together in service, now scattered from New York to San Francisco. It was a day for calling your old captain or colonel their plain first names. Former rank is discarded at the annual encampments.

Milwaukee downtown streets were overflowing with the veterans and their wives, all wearing blue and gold overseas caps, some in army khaki or the navy's blue uniforms. There were countless impromptu parades and concerts. There were chance reunions in the lobbies of all the downtown hotels and at the Auditorium where delegates and visitors were registering; others visited in the thronged taverns surrounding the Auditorium.

Two soldiers of the first regulars who served in the Philippines during the Spanish-American war met today for the first time since they were discharged in 1900. One was Jimmy O'Connor, Binghampton, N. Y., who has hitch-hiked to the last nine encampments, seven of them with his Boston bull dog traveling companion. The other was J. F. Mattson, Highland Park, Mich. The men met each other in the Auditorium.

Receive Hearty Welcome.

Amputated legs and arms, injuries necessitating crutches and wheel chairs did not stop hundreds of veterans from attending the convention. The "Amputation" post of Minneapolis, fifty veterans with at least one war lost arm or leg, arrived at the Milwaukee road station tonight and received a hearty welcome.

During all the reunions and meetings, the national council convened this afternoon for a short time, then adjourned until tomorrow to participate in the festivities. Some of the national officers visited the Milwaukee Soldiers' home in West Allis.

Among the notable arrivals today were U. S. Senator Elmer Thomas [Okla.], currency inflation advocate, and James E. Van Zandt, senior vice commander and probable successor to National Commander in Chief Admiral Robert E. Coontz, Washington. Senator Thomas will address the convention Tuesday. Other personages expected tomorrow or Tuesday include U. S. Senators Rogert M. La Follette [Wis.] and Huey Long [La.].

Representative Wright Patman [Tex.], bonus advocate; Gen. Smedley D. Butler, former marine, also are expected.

A former navy man, Van Zandt expressed the opinion that an "adequate and necessary" national defense should be built immediately, and urged that the National Guards and the R. O. T. C. be kept at their full strength. "Our army and navy must be kept equal to those of other nations, notably England and Japan. The V. F. W. will continue to fight for these."

MILK PRODUCERS PROTEST DELAY IN PRICE BOOST

Threaten to Strike Unless Action Is Speeded.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Two thousand disgruntled dairy farmers assembled in Wing park, near Elgin, yesterday to voice their dissatisfaction with officials of the Pure Milk association who have been unable in more than two months of negotiations with milk companies in Chicago to obtain an increase in the price of milk.

After speeches by Representatives Frank A. McCarthy [Rep., Elgin] and Thomas Bolger [Rep., Woodstock], who are members of the state legislature's new milk commission, the farmers voted to send a delegation to Washington, armed with ten thousand farmers' signatures to a petition expressing dissatisfaction with the milk agreement recently approved by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace. The farmers also voted to withhold all their milk from the Chicago market if relief is not forthcoming in a few days. McHenry and Kane counties, in which the protesting farmers live, produce more than one-third of Chicago's milk.

Demand Hearing in Washington.

After the mass meeting, a group of delegates from nearby milk marketing areas met in a closed session in Elgin to draft a telegram to be sent to Secretary Wallace demanding a public hearing on the milk code. The farmers maintain that it protects the interests of the milk selling companies and of union labor, but has produced no improvements in the dairy farmers' predicament.

Directors of the Kane county district of the Pure Milk association also telegraphed D. N. Geyer, manager of the association, in Washington, saying that "the members in this district have nearly exhausted their patience and demand that the price negotiations that have been dragged along since June be terminated at once."

The Kane county farmers have indicated that if they do not receive the promise of at least $2.21 per hundredweight by Sept. 1 a general milk strike will be called. The farmers are now receiving $1.75 a hundred pounds for milk retailed in Chicago.

Arbitration This Week.

Negotiations which have been continued from day to day since late in June by the Pure Milk association, representing 17,000 dairymen and Chicago milk dealers, were closed Friday night with announcement that differences would be arbitrated this week. The Kane county farmers expressed indignation that the association should need to arbitrate, since farmers have been forced to take price reductions in three of four arbitrations since 1929.

"The milk dealers have been duping farmers for years," declared Representative McCarthy yesterday. He cited figures obtained by the state milk commission to show that farmers received only 2 cents of the 15 cents per half pint paid by Chicago consumers for table cream. "Even today the big companies are buying milk 300 or more miles away, while they tell local farmers there is so great a surplus they can't use it all," McCarthy charged.

BEGIN U. S. INCOME TAX DEFICIENCY HEARING TODAY

Eighty cases are on the docket for hearings beginning today before Commisioner Stephen J. McMahon of the United States board of tax appeals. The hearings will be held in the United States court house and may continue for two weeks. Cases involving income tax deficiency assessments will be considered.

Among the cases on the docket is the appeal of John B. Drake, from whom the government is trying to collect $2,178 for alleged deficiencies in his 1923 and 1924 taxes; Louis J. Behan, former south park commissioner, charged with a $9,000 deficiency for 1924, '25, '26, '27 and '29. Another case is the appeal of Edward T. Blair, from whom the government seeks $45,000 for 1924, '25, '26 and '29.

A claim of $6,667 against the estate of the late Michael Rosenberg, former sanitary trustee and brother of Moe Rosenberg, indicted west side politician, will not be heard at this time, it was said.

IT TAKES HEALTHY NERVES TO FLY THE MAIL AT NIGHT!

● ABOVE—A. M. WILKINS, air-mail pilot for Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., has flown the night air mail over 150,000 miles. It takes healthy nerves to hang up a record like that!

● RIGHT—AT THE END of his night run A. M. Wilkins joins a fellow pilot, W. Niedernhofer, at Newark Airport, the Eastern Terminal of TWA, for a chat and a smoke. "Camels never ruffle or jangle my nerves," Wilkins says.

● EVER NOTICE HOW airplane passengers smoke at each refueling stop? Camels never get on your nerves, no matter how much you smoke, and there's more real enjoyment in their costlier tobaccos.

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand. They are milder, richer in flavor. They never tire your taste or get on your nerves.

A MATCHLESS BLEND

STEADY SMOKERS TURN TO CAMELS

A. M. WILKINS, air-mail ace, says: "It's a steady grind, all right, being a night hawk on the air mail. A man has to have healthy nerves to live up to our tradition that the mail must go through! That's why I smoke Camels. And I smoke plenty! Camels never ruffle or jangle my nerves, and I like their mild, rich flavor."

COUPLE IN AUTO ON WAY TO PICNIC KILLED BY TRAIN

Anthony Dluzak, 50 years old, 11332 Langley avenue, and his wife, Pearl, 48 years old, were killed yesterday when their automobile was demolished by the South Bend limited of the South Shore line, near 130th street, south of Lake Calumet.

The Dluzaks were on their way to a picnic in Parsons' grove. To reach the grove they had to drive along a narrow road, bordered by high weeds. The weeds hid the speeding electric train from them as it rounded a curve. Both bodies were thrown clear of the automobile, which the train shattered, and the Dluzaks were dead when trainmen and passengers ran back to the scene of the crash.

The couple had two daughters, Gertrude, 19 years old, and Agnes, 26. Dluzak, neighbors said, had been employed by the Pullman company for thirty years.

Bus Hits Pole, Four Hurt.

Four World's Fair visitors were cut and bruised yesterday and fifteen others were shaken when a Chicago Motor Coach company bus left the outer drive at 34th street and struck a light pole.

Edward Quirk, the driver, told police the wheels skidded in the sand when he drove over the edge of the pavement. The injured, taken to Michael Reese hospital, were Mrs. Verne Zahn, 30 years old, 807 East 42d street; Mrs. Arthur Kennedy, 35, of Plattsburgh, N. Y., her daughter, Dorothy, 14; and Theron Waldo, 38, of Bach, N. Y.

There were seven other automobile deaths in Cook county yesterday, increasing the toll since Jan. 1 to 660. The other victims:

Rose Wurst, 5 years old, 343 West 29th street. Fatally injured by a taxicab driven by Reuben Barber, 816 Waveland avenue, as she was playing in the street yesterday afternoon at 30th street and Shields avenue.

Mrs. Anna Klemola, 56 years old, 4904 West 31st street. Died in Mount Sinai hospital last night. She was hurt Saturday while crossing Ogden avenue near Kedzie.

Matthew Ryan, 19 years old, 453 North Paulina street. Died in St. Elizabeth's hospital. He was injured Aug. 22 at Paulina street and Grand avenue when Julius Lukaski, 726 Temple street, drove onto the sidewalk to avoid a collision.

William Kennedy, 61 years old, 329 South Homan avenue. Died in the Franklin boulevard hospital of injuries received Saturday night in a collision at Homan avenue and Franklin boulevard.

Nick Furlon, 30 years old, 5729 Merrimac avenue. Died in the county hospital. He was struck while walking in a heavy fog early yesterday on Montrose avenue, west of Chicago.

Frank Trenton, 47 years old, 605 Pennsylvania avenue, Peoria. Died in Oak Forest infirmary as the result of a collision Saturday.

Raymond Kerwin, 6 years old, 1643 Byron street. Died in Martha Washington hospital of injuries received Aug. 14 when he was struck by a truck.

Nebraska Fair Visittor Killed by I. C. Train

Walter Boyll, 38 years old, of Grand Island, Neb., died in the Jackson Park hospital early today of injuries received Aug. 21 when he was struck by an Illinois Central passenger train at 79th street and Exchange avenue. Boyll was a World's Fair visitor, police said.

MRS. MARION WHITEHEAD.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

New York, Aug. 27.—[Special.]—Divorced in Chicago last Tuesday, Mrs. Marion Hughes Whitehead, ex-wife of C. P. [Conkey] Whitehead, millionaire sportsman, announced her engagement today to Andrew Pierce, III., member of a wealthy New England family.

"It'll be love in a cottage," murmured Mrs. Whitehead, whose father, William H. Hughes, is a millionaire Wall street broker.

"Yes, we're both very poor—I've a job and little else," agreed young Pierce, son of the head of the American Woolen Mills, the country's biggest textile concern.

"It was love at first sight," declared Mrs. Whitehead. "I met Andrew at a party in the Hotel Ambassador after the Princeton-Yale foot ball game last fall. It was then that I decided to divorce Conkey.

"We don't know just when we'll be married, but it will probably be soon. I'm going to start buying my trousseau tomorrow."

POLICE BLAME SAME GANG FOR FIVE ROBBERIES

The same gang of five robbers was believed by police to have been responsible for five holdups committed early yesterday and Saturday night on the north and west side.

Two of the robberies were of beer taverns. The bandits took $75 from Ray Oman, owner of a tavern at 2703 Lawrence avenue, and also robbed nine customers, including three women. Lief Vlich, owner of a tavern at 4436 North Ashland avenue, was robbed of $20 and a revolver, after which the bandits took $61 from seven patrons.

Three of the gang entered the Yellow Front grocery, 1559 South Homan avenue, Saturday night, while their two companions waited outside. When Charles Lavitt, the owner, saw their guns, he ran to the rear of the store. One of the gang fired three shots at him before they fled.

The same gang, it is believed, took $70 from Frank Featherstone, druggist at 5681 West Madison street, and $15 and a pistol from Walter Menrolski, who has a drug store at 1658 West 18th street.

AUTO ENGINEERS OF WORLD OPEN MEETING TODAY

Authorities on Transportation Coming to City.

BY HAL FOUST.

An international congress under the auspices of the Society of Automotive Engineers will open a week's session in the Palmer house today. It will be attended by America's leading technical men on vehicles for highway, water and air transportation. Invitations have also been accepted by delegates from England, France, Belgium, Italy, Germany, Japan and Russia.

The congress will hear expert discussions on motor cars, trucks, coaches, aircraft, fuels, lubricants, transportation, maintenance, production and research.

In charge of the week's program are Fred M. Zeder, vice president in charge of engineering, Chrysler corporation; J. M. Crawford, chief engineer, Chevrolet Motor company; E. A. Johnston, director of engineering, International Harvester company; L. V. Newton, automotive engineer, Bylesby Engineering and Management corporation, and D. G. Roos, chief engineer, Studebaker corporation.

For a military session this morning, Maj. H. A. Nisley, ordnance department, U. S. army, has been assigned the subject, "Developments in Ordnance Automotive Equipment." Lieut. Col. Brainerd Taylor of the quartermaster corps, will talk on "Military Theories and Development of Motor Transportation." Col. H. W. Alden will preside.

Tonight Georges Broulhiet will read an official communication from the Societe des Ingenieurs de l'Automobile de France. It relates to quality objectives for engineers.

In a transportation session tonight, Clinton Brettell of R. H. Macy & Co., inc., and Mr. Newton of Bylesby Engineering and Management Corp., will tell how economies can be effected in motor vehicle operation.

The close of the congress on Saturday will be concurrent with the opening of Automotive week at A Century of Progress.

Innkeeper Hurls Bandit Down Flight of Stairs

Roy Bloomer, 40 years old, owner of the Pines tavern, 6542 South Halsted street, saved himself from robbery this morning by hurling a bandit down a flight of stairs. Boomer lives over the tavern. As he started upstairs the robber followed him. Boomer pushed him down. The gunman fired several shots at him and Boomer returned the fire. Both missed.

Watchman for McCormick Estate Ends Life with Gun

George W. Wells, 60 years old, 7852 South Ada street, a watchman for the McCormick estate, was found shot to death in a rear room of the Harvester building at 606 South Michigan avenue early this morning. His gun was clutched in his hand. He evidently had killed himself.

TATTOO ON ARM SETS AT NAUGHT FAST THINKING

New York, Aug. 27.—(AP)—John Dello, 40, was the fastest thinker in Morrisania court today, but Magistrate George De Luca didn't appreciate his talents.

Dello said he had never been arrested before when he was arraigned on a charge of attempted pocket picking, but his fingerprints tallied with those of an Alfonse Sicco, who had a record of two arrests for jostling.

Dello, with a great show of indignation, denied that he was Sicco.

"What," asked Magistrate De Luca, "do those initials, 'A. S.,' tattooed on your right arm, mean?"

"American sailor," Dello shot back.

"Tsk, tsk," said the court. "Three months."

CONFESS FOUNDRY BURGLARY.

Otto Sebek, 17 years old, 3226 South Ridgeway avenue, and John Potapa, 18 years old, 3128 South Central Park avenue, confessed to police, following their arrest yesterday, that they took $2,000 worth of aluminum patterns two weeks ago in a burglary of the McCarthy foundry, 3401 South Lawndale avenue.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE NEW FARM RELIEF.

The agricultural administration at Washington seems to have learned one lesson from recent experience. The government for the most part is no longer attempting, as it did in the days of the farm board, to raise prices without at the same time reducing production. That is why cotton is being plowed under, wheat and corn acreage is to be reduced, pigs and sows are to be slaughtered for fertilizer, etc. Even in dairy products, where it looked for a time as if the farm board tactics would be applied, efforts are now being made to reduce production.

Still it can be predicted that the plan will not succeed. Mounting prices must result in reduced consumption. Inflation may mask the effect for a time, but not permanently. Eventually reduced consumption will threaten the piling up of surpluses despite acreage reductions. The movement of the hog market as soon as the government began its campaign of destruction was an intimation of what may be expected. The fact that the premium on the hogs to be destroyed is to be paid for out of a tax on pork products convinced prospective purchasers of hogs that they would sell less pork to the public. Therefore the price of hogs declined. The same price tendency was observed when the cotton processing tax became effective.

The agricultural administration is authorized to place compensating taxes on substitute food products. When it has placed a tax on all the meats and all the grains, all the fruits and all the vegetables, housewives will still have to buy those foods which are within their means. The family which might have eaten white bread will eat black bread and the family which might have eaten the tenderloin will eat hamburger. The farmer will be no better off and the American people as a whole will be worse off. Their standard of living will have declined markedly.

The fact that all this program is undertaken with the best of motives does not in the slightest alter the probability that it will fail. The best that can be hoped for is that the failure will not disorganize the whole economic structure.

GOV. SCHMEDEMAN ADVISES DAIRYMEN.

Mr. Leo Crowley, speaking for Gov. Schmedeman to the Milwaukee milk producers, defined Wisconsin's recurrent milk strikes as an attack on the welfare of the whole people in a vain effort to get something not very definite by a means not very clear.

Wisconsin has had two major farm disturbances within the year, each costing the farmers and taxpayers a good deal of money and each engendering fear, passion and hate among friends and neighbors. Farm picnics this summer are enlivened by speakers and promoters undertaking to lay the groundwork for a third.

There has been no sound answer to the governor's challenge to any person to show him a single constructive gain or advantage acquired through these miscalled farm holidays.

It is perfectly apparent that if there were a magic formula for recovering the lost income of Wisconsin dairymen Gov. Schmedeman would not have to be sandbagged by farm strikes to grasp it. Every political leader in the land would struggle to be the first to claim it.

Farm prices may reach any fantastic figure without advantage to the farmer if the consumer is without means to buy and the high prices result only in the further piling up of surplus.

If prices get out of line they inevitably turn the purchaser to goods that meet his capacity to pay even if admittedly less desirable. Accumulation resulting from increased prices apparently was the reason for a sharp decline in butter and cheese consumption and the consequent recent fall in prices, Mr. Crowley told Milwaukee producers. "Through the orderly processes of government you can receive the benefit of every constructive suggestion for the benefit of the farmer," he said. "A policy of sabotage and destruction or willful opposition will get nowhere. There is nothing any one can give to people engaged in such tactics."

Gov. Schmedeman has recognized the importance of the farm problem. The administration has worked its hardest to try to solve it. The farm strikes have provided an emotional outlet for one group, victims of a common misfortune, but they have not improved the conditions of the milk producers.

There will be better prices for farm products when buyers in the cities are better able to pay them. Dumping milk and interfering with peaceful passage on the highways will not speed that time one minute.

FOREIGN LOANS AGAIN.

Good business requires that credit shall be refused to those who are not good risks. Those who have had the opportunity to be dead-beats and have embraced it, and those who do not measure up to the standards of financial responsibility, which practice has shown to be necessary, must be denied accommodation if business is to continue.

When a creditor finds that practically all of his large portfolio of receivables are not collectible, it should be evident that his credit management has been terrible. No one but an idiot would loan more when experience has shown that repayment is certain not to be made or at best doubtful.

Foreign nations owe the United States government 10 billion dollars for money loaned to them. They are not paying it off, say they won't pay it, and are mad at us for asking them to do so. What we should have gotten for the 10 billion dollars at the very least is credit experience which should restrain us from loaning money in the future. No American possessed of normal mental faculties would be expected to consider for one moment throwing more money the way the 10 billions have gone.

And yet dispatches from Washington say that serious consideration is being given by our government to new loans to a foreign government, and one which has a record for having repudiated debts of a former régime, and of having seized a half billion dollars' worth of American property for which no restitution has been made. Some 40 plans are before the Reconstruction Finance corporation for loans to finance the sale to Russia of American farm and manufactured products. And already one such scheme has been put through. On July 2 it was announced at Washington that a loan of about four million dollars had been made by the Reconstruction Finance corporation on the security of a note signed by the Amtorg Trading corporation.

For all practical purposes this is another intergovernmental loan, since Amtorg is wholly owned by the Russian government. The Washington statement added that the loan had been guaranteed by the state bank of the U. S. S. R.

A leading advocate of the extension of further credit to soviet Russia in the hundreds of millions of dollars is Smith Wildman Brookhart, ex-Iowa senator, who has long been recognized as one of the trusted friends of Moscow. Mr. Brookhart enthusiastically refers to Russia as the "best credit risk in the world."

One should look askance at any proposal relating to Russia which was made by one of the stamp of Brookhart. But with the best of sponsorship this scheme would be objectionable. A loan of a similar character to France or England with whom our diplomatic relations are regular would certainly be refused because of the sorry experience we have had in getting back money loaned to foreign governments.

If the plans of the industrial concerns are sound private means can be found to finance them. The companies commonly mentioned as after the Russian business are big concerns with excellent banking connections. The fact that they want the United States government to take the risk of loss is indicative of the quality of the project.

A NOISELESS SUBWAY TRAIN.

A so-called noiseless train of ten cars is to be tried out in the New York subway within a few months. A more severe test can hardly be imagined. If the experiment proves successful, as every city dweller prays that it will, a demonstration will have been provided of how to eliminate one of the worst nuisances of urban life.

As a matter of fact, Chicago has already had one such demonstration and may shortly have another. The Illinois Central's electric service is not completely noiseless, but is a vast improvement over any other form of local transportation. Within a few months, the surface lines have announced, they, too, will try out a new noiseless street car.

City dwellers tolerated the outrageous clatter at first because it seemed to be an unavoidable accompaniment of the greater speed which was made possible by the electric car. It was hoped that the companies would quickly learn how to silence the cars. Twenty years and more have gone by and still the improvement in this particular remains to be made for much the most part. Meanwhile, partly in consequence of the discomfort of riding in a boiler factory, the car riders have turned to other forms of transportation, including the private automobile and the suburban train.

Quiet operation may win back a good deal of lost business. There is no doubt that the managements realize this and will make an effort to finance the necessary changes in equipment, but the problem is difficult. Street railways are not attracting investment of new capital these days.

So far as Chicago is concerned it may be said that no settlement of the local transportation problem can be regarded as at all satisfactory if it does not result in the installation of equipment as nearly noiseless as can be had. The traction fund now in the city's possession might be used to greater advantage in eliminating noise from the surface and elevated lines than in building a subway through the loop. Most car riders would gladly sacrifice a saving of five minutes in time if they could be spared the boiler factory.

Editorial of the Day

THE PASSING OF THE FEDS.

[Akron Beacon Journal.]

The federal prohibition raiders are no more. Few will mourn their passing. Like state and local members of the same profession, a majority of them were rated by a scornful public as spies, sniffers, spoilsports, and generally unpleasant fellows.

Unpopularity of the law these men were supposed to enforce naturally figured largely in the contempt with which they were viewed. It's our belief that the half of them retained for the highly useful work of warring on rackets will win an esteem they could never have achieved as dry agents.

Locally, it is interesting to note that while U. S. Commissioner W. J. Laub is pretty dubious about conditions now that the feds have been pulled off liquor, Sheriff Roy Potts confidently holds that he can handle enforcement in this county.

We are inclined to string along with Potts, especially in view of the common sense reservation he has made. "Naturally," says he, "it would take at least a fair sized army to enforce the prohibition law strictly. We do our best with our limited facilities, trying to protect the public."

That's much better than promising miracles, Ray. For even with a fair sized army prohibition can't be strictly enforced. We had better than a fair sized army in the field during the days when special deputies multiplied like guinea pigs and competed with federal, state, Akron, Silver Lake, Springfield, Lake, Peninsula, Kenmore, Lakemore, and Mogadore raiders for the honor of leaping the most counters in the rubber city.

Drinks were precisely as easy to get then as they are now. There's a moral in that.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

MARKET LETTER.

STOCKS ENDED THE WEEK WITH AN upturn, apparently in stronger hands. They will not pass to weaker hands until they have advanced higher and the public not only nibbles but swallows the bait, when, following precedent, there will be a "healthy" and corrective reaction. The upturn followed renewed rumors of inflation and sinking of the dollar in international exchange.

Business, on the average, is distinctly better. That affords basis for the advance. Whether it is enough better to stand NRA wage increases, assuming honesty and not "chiseling," is the question mark. The casual worker, as yet, listens to no more jingle in his pocket. More people, however, are working, which helps that much. Both business and individuals feel the multitude of additional taxes imposed to support our economical, in theory, government. Until the experiment is further advanced we favor a conservatively constructive position, still buying on the dips and selling on the rallies. We're a bull, but a scared bull.

Among individual issues, there was a run in Real Silk Hosiery. Simmons Bed rested comfortably above former levels. Murray Body still needs more drapery, but not window dressing. Gold Dust was pretty well washed up, but did not shrink. There was hoarding of McIntyre Porcupine without the usual quills. Buyers were inclined to board Omnibus on its World's Fair business. There was covering in Manhattan Shirt. Pullman had a call for early rising. American Radiator still needs more heat. A little dough was to be had in Purity Baking.

On the local bourse Standard Dredging worked around the bottom. There was a lucrative roll in Quaker Oats. Holders of General Box are still in a box, while Greyhound showed no speed. Swift enjoyed only mild acceleration. Much of the foam is off the brewery issues. Minority stockholders in Armour are squealing. Oshkosh Overalls recovered its price, ex dividend. Construction Material still has more material than construction. Commonwealth Edison suffers from rate talk shock.

On the curb are reports of more contract for U. S. Playing Card. United Gas needs a charge of just that. Life Savers responded to resuscitation. Humble Oil belied its name.

For the present discriminate in your purchases, if any. Dividend payers yield better returns than those paying no dividends. Repeal stocks like the alcohols and appeal stocks like the motors have fared better than the rest of the market. Car loadings are increasing, but riding the rails might become precarious in a crop shortage. Act cautiously. Better be safe than sorry. Market playboys still cling to the alcohols, tobaccos, motors, and ladies' apparel issues, with some General Food now and then.

STILL CHASING SCARLET.

FOR some reason or other the control of scarlet fever lags behind that of other diseases with which it is apt to be compared. Malaria has become of almost negligible importance, and typhoid even more so. Diphtheria will be in the typhoid class within ten years. The machinery is at hand for pushing measles off the roost.

Scarlet fever hangs on in spite of the showing made in other fields. It is not easy to show statistical evidence of improvement in Chicago's scarlet fever situation in the last twenty years, in spite of the several new methods discovered. This disease is due to a streptococcus, a group of bacteria with one common quality, the tendency to grow in chains, but with many points of difference. When a streptococcus colony is examined under the microscope the chains are generally snarled as a fishing line is apt to be. The streptococcus question likewise snarls like a fishing line, and picking the ravels out and untying the knots has not proved easy.

It is true that scarlet fever is far less important than it was fifty years ago. If the comparison is made with things as they were about 1880, of course, the improvement should satisfy any one. The dissatisfaction is with the fact that the scarlet fever problem has stood on the sidewalk and watched the parade go by—and has had to keep happy by thinking of the past.

Dr. M. Z. Veldee has been working on an improvement in the method of scarlet fever vaccination, hoping that it may wake the old gentleman from his reveries. His method consists in making a scarlet fever toxoid after the same general method used in making diphtheria toxoid. It differs from older products of the same nature in that it has been considerably concentrated.

The objectives he was aiming at were to get a vaccine that:

1. Would make children immune to scarlet fever.
2. That would not produce highly objectionable reaction.
3. That would be effective in three doses or less.

It is somewhat easy to get a person to come back for three doses of vaccine, but beyond that they will rarely go. If there is much aching, fever, and local and general discomfort after any vaccination, the subject is very apt to quit the effort. He thinks the immediate discomfort too great for the ultimate possible gain. He figures that there is not much chance that he would ever have the disease, and the reaction he is having is certain and very uncomfortable.

Dr. Veldee used the unconcentrated product on animals, checking the results by laboratory tests. Next, he tried it on over one thousand children, likewise checking the immunity by laboratory methods. He found the children to be immune by clinical experience as well as by laboratory tests. He found that the vaccination did not cause an undue amount of discomfort. The place of injection became somewhat red and swollen and there was a slight headache and a little fever, but these discomforts endured only a short while.

And that's about all there is to say now. If others confirm this experience the machine may get up steam to tackle the next grade. If the method works it should be possible to effect an erysipelas vaccine along the same line. And—much more important—one for acute articular rheumatism may be in the offing.

HIVES AND HEARTACHES.

Adele writes: Last night my boy friend was over, and all of a sudden in the middle of a pleasant conversation he started to scratch his neck and the left side of his face. And then it was terrible—he just scratched and scratched. It must have been agony, and lasted fifteen minutes. After that spell he went out into the fresh air and that seemed to help a lot. His face and neck, and even his arms a little, but his face and neck in particular, were very hot and he looked so all in that my heart went out to him and I wished I could help him, but what could I do?

What I want to know is this: If this young man and I got married and we had children, would the children inherit this eczema? I have been thinking of it all night long and it must be hereditary in my friend's family, don't you think? Is this contagious? I feel as though all my air castles have tumbled down, I'm so downhearted since last night.

REPLY.

My guess is that your boy friend had hives, caused probably by something he ate plus the heat. If he will find out what causes these attacks and avoid it he will be all right. It is not serious nor contagious nor inheritable. So much for him. Don't you think you need to get your feet on the ground? Sounds to me as though you had been reading and seeing too many thrillers.

BLOOD PRESSURE.

M. M. writes: What are the symptoms of high blood pressure?

REPLY.

The most dependable evidence is that supplied by a blood pressure test. Examining the heart, the interior of the eyeball, and the urine supplies good evidence. Among symptoms that suggest high blood pressure are dizziness, occasional head pains, sometimes head noises.

REPAIRS IN PROGRESS.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—[Friend of the People.]—Nos. 1452 and 1500 of our street are separated by a gangway. The foundation of 1452 was repaired several months ago and since then the ground between this building and the walk has been caving in and falling into its basement. This situation endangers the lives of both children and adults who must through necessity use this walk. The owner has been repeatedly notified of the condition of his property and has neglected to repair it. Can he be forced to remedy this dangerous condition? E. C.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Sweeping embargo to all the world, designed to give the United States absolute control of its exports for the period of the war, was proclaimed by President Wilson. The proclamation makes it clear for the first time that the United States is prepared to go to almost any limit to prevent goods from going to Germany. The embargo order absolutely prohibits after Aug. 30 the export of all articles of commerce to enemy and neutral countries. It is planned to look after the needs of neutrals by licensed exportations in so far as the United States can do so after caring for its own needs and those of its allies at war against the central powers.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The full financial program of the United States government for the fiscal year of 1917-'18, which practically will amount to the first year of the war, was revealed by Chairman Kitchin of the ways and means committee of the house, showing that it will require approximately 19 billion 300 million dollars to run the government during the year, or approximately fifteen times as much as in an ordinary year.

DEMING, N. M.—Seventeen Mexicans, captured by Gen. Pershing's punitive expedition in Mexico last year and accused of participation in the Villa raid on Columbus, N. MR. BRANDON ON DWIGHT.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—In your issue of Aug. 20 Porter W. Clemons in the Voice of the People confuses the public with a misstatement in indicating that the state spent $10,000 per inmate for building the Illinois woman's reformatory. Mr. Clemons seeks to build up a public attitude of protest against one of the best constructive efforts the state has ever made. Nobody, of course, will take seriously his intimation that Dwight is so fine that women will commit crimes to get into it, but unless corrected somebody might get the idea from his letter that he knew what he was talking about on the cost of the institution.

That the whole women's reformatory cost us nearly a million dollars makes no difference. There were 244 inmates there on Aug. 1 and another 150 can be received there without new construction, although, of course, I should greatly deplore the overcrowding which would result from a population of 400. The good, conservative and safe figures on the cost of the institution would be something like $3,000 per inmate. When you take into account the absolutely fireproof construction, which includes furnishings, equipment, and everything else in the institution, it is a very low figure even if we were not to dwell on the fact of the beauty of the place.

Dwight's job is to turn erring women around and head them in a new direction and then to lead them along that new way far enough that they will be less likely to turn aside. With the exception of the drug and alcohol addicts, recidivism is practically unknown among those who have the benefits of the women's reformatory. When we take into account the capacity of a bad woman to destroy men and take account of the further fact of the amazingly small number of women misdemeanants and felons we must conclude that Illinois is justified in leading America in this new and better program for women offenders.

While I have my pen in hand might I also say that THE TRIBUNE, as well as a number of other papers supplied with Washington statistical service, printed a few days ago a statement about the great increase in the number of women felons in Illinois? If somebody will take the trouble to look into this they will discover that the only thing that has happened is that the women who were formerly confined in county jails and were consequently not reported to Washington are now assembled at Dwight and are being reported. As a matter of fact, offenders are less numerous in Illinois today than they were four years ago. There are fewer girls at Geneva, there are fewer boys at St. Charles, and there are fewer men in prison in Illinois today than there were last Jan. 1, in spite of the fact that the gentlemen of the judiciary in Cook county are sending to prison this August what under normal procedure would be the September, October, November, and December crop.

Let us not despair. The social structure is on the mend in Illinois.

RODNEY H. BRANDON,
President Illinois Conference on Social Welfare.

VACATIONS.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—Has any one tried to figure out why so many concerns are using the depression as an alibi in order to avoid giving their employés the usual two weeks' vacation? TIRED.

WHEN THE WAITER BRINGS THE CHECK.

Hoboken, N. J., Aug. 23.—Why do restaurants, night clubs, etc., make only one bill for a group of diners? It would certainly ease the situation greatly if individual bills were made out. A general bill is laid on the table and then ensues an embarrassing interlude during which every one waits for the other to take up the bill, and as there are usually one or two in the party unwilling to accept their share of expenses the unlucky person who undertakes paying the bill receives nothing from these people. The women in the party find it necessary to resort to small talk if they can think of anything to say just in order to cover up the awkwardness of the situation while the men are settling the bill.

I have often wondered why some enterprising proprietor has not put into practice the above suggestion. I am sure that he would find the trade just flocking to his place of business and he would be more than compensated by the increase in business for the additional time it might take his waiters to compute individual bills. WONDERING.

ANOTHER TAX.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—All corporations in this state are receiving a letter from the secretary of state regarding the business corporation act which became effective July 13, which demands that they send in a blank which designates the registered office and agent of the corporation for service of process. Of course it states that there is a $1 filing fee. Why charge a fee for every little thing that a corporation does? Don't the employés of the secretary of state get their salaries? Don't they have the time to file these blanks without charging a fee for every little move?

Corporations pay a state corporation tax, and the blanks which are filed with the state tax state the office address of the corporation. Small corporations are hard hit with these many taxes.

IN PRAISE OF THE POLICE.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 22.—Chicago's Century of Progress leads all the cities of the world in attractions for 1933, but that is not all. Chicago leads the other cities in another field that is more striking to a visitor than the World's Fair. I refer to something that is rarely found in large cities. As a stranger in your city I admired first and foremost the courtesy of your police. They have embedded in their makeup a most hospitable attitude toward the visitors to your fair city. Willingly they are informative to those in doubt, not hard boiled and bullish. May I thank them for this kindness? RALPH P. WALLACE.

WHAT? ONLY FIVE!

Chicago, Aug. 25.—I am a young lady making a fair living, having to depend entirely on myself. I am maintaining a small apartment, as I do not prefer to live in a furnished room. It looks as if my relatives and acquaintances seem to think my place is intended for a free place to eat and sleep during the World's Fair. Last week I had five visitors from the farm who felt that they must be entertained at my expense. They did nothing to relieve me of the burden of the heavy expense. Do you think it fair to impose on a person who manages to just keep above water?

OUR SECRET AMBITION

BOARD TO ACT ON COMPLETION OF NEW SCHOOLS

Bogan Plan Calls for Use of Federal Funds.

Plans will go forward at the board of education meeting Wednesday for the completion of new school buildings in various stages of construction throughout the city. The program will provide vastly more adequate housing for thousands of school children in congested areas, according to Supt. William J. Bogan, the sponsor.

Mr. Bogan presented the board with a report suggesting that steps should be taken to obtain a federal grant and loan totaling approximately $10,000,000 for the projects. After the superintendent had assured the school trustees that this loan would not interfere with obtaining money from the federal government for teachers' salaries, the board voted approval of the plan.

Send Rogers to Capital.

The negotiations, which had hitherto been carried on by correspondence, were then started directly with Washington. Mr. Bogan sent Don C. Rogers, director of research and building survey, to the capital to discuss the proposed loan with Secretary of the Interior Ickes. Mr. Rogers is expected to report his progress at the board meeting.

As outlined by Mr. Bogan the Chicago school system could apply for an outright gift of 30 per cent of the funds needed and a loan for the remaining 70 per cent of the construction cost on liberal terms, such as a thirty year period of repayment and an interest charge of 4 per cent.

The superintendent has pointed out that in 1932 the survey conducted by Dr. George D. Strayer of Columbia university disclosed a gross shortage of 70,192 public school seats.

"On July 25, 1933, the board of education put into effect school housing policies," said Mr. Bogan, referring to details of the economy program, "which will eliminate the use of 336 temporary portables, discontinue 70 half day session classes and will utilize the existing school plant as nearly to capacity as possible.

Economy Plan Relieves Shortage.

"Even so, thousands of school children will be inadequately housed until the buildings now in process of construction are completed and certain other badly needed structures are erected."

School officials say the better housing for Chicago school children was brought about chiefly by eliminating the junior high school system and sending back seventh and eighth grade children to vacant rooms in the elementary schools. Another factor is the utilization of manual training and household arts rooms for regular classrooms in the grade schools.

One of the most salutary effects of the program is the elimination of the portables, nicknamed "dog houses" by pupils. Although the city building ordinances regulating the construction and maintenance of portables contemplated their usage for a two year period, the ramshackle school buildings range in age between twenty and thirty years each.

Use of Portables Costly.

John C. Christensen, school architect, has estimated that nearly a quarter of a million dollars will be saved to the taxpayers annually through the abandonment of the portables. He listed the total amount of appropriations as provided in budgets for the last four years as follows:

Estimated glass breakage	55,000
New seats and changing of seats	40,000
Maintenance and operating cost	692,000
Total	$1,984,736

"On this basis," said Mr. Christensen, "it will be found that the average cost per year for operating portables, exclusive of teaching costs, is $496,184. Through the elimination of 336 of these portables, as recommended by the superintendent, the yearly saving will be $240,922."

Mr. Christensen said that because of the curtailment of repairs and replacements of portables in the 1932 and 1933 budgets the continued use of a large number of these buildings would require an increased appropriation in the 1934 budget.

BURGLAR SLAIN AFTER HE SHOOTS A DETECTIVE

Rockford, Ill., Aug. 27.—[Special.]—A burglar was shot dead here early today after he was trapped in a store and wounded Detective Ralph Johnson three times. Johnson was wounded twice in the leg and once in the chest, but not seriously.

The detective trapped the robber in the Burr sporting goods store. The burglar used guns and ammunition from stock, firing three different weapons before he was slain.

A. W. Burr, owner of the store, found the rear door open and called the police. As they entered the burglar, who had been in hiding, began firing.

O'DUFFY TRICKS IRISH GUARDS AND HOLDS MEETINGS

Speaks to Gatherings in Banned Cork Area.

ENNIS, County Clare, Irish Free State, Aug. 27.—(AP)—While President Eamon de Valera held a large mass meeting here through a 90 minute downpour today, Gen. Owen O'Duffy played hide and seek with civic guards and addressed a secret gathering of his proscribed Blue Shirt organization, the "National Guard" at Bandon in County Cork.

After the Bandon meeting O'Duffy went to Beal-na-blath, but 50 civic guards met him there and prevented him from addressing a scheduled meeting of the national guard.

Meanwhile 100 men in the town of Killarney smashed all beer advertisements in licensed premises without interference by civic guards. Similar raids were carried out in Dublin public house, but otherwise the city was quiet.

Throughout the county there was a flood of oratory of almost general election intensity, with cabinet ministers and opposition leaders active in addition to the president.

De Valera Speaks for Democracy.

The question of the moment for Ireland, declared President De Valera, is "whether you are going to have a government of the people, by the people and for the people or a government controlled by an individual who appoints himself."

"Democracy," he continued, "has its weaknesses, but it is a more stable and natural form of government in modern times than any other, and I know the people of Ireland are devoted to it."

The president said a small group of people is trying to get into power by force but that there is no hope of any such system being voluntarily accepted by the Irish people.

Has Only One Fear.

"I have only one thing to fear," he declared. "It is that this attempt to bring back the bitterness of civil war may give rise to disturbances."

"Shoot the devils down," shouted one of the president's listeners at this point. "It is because we cannot afford the luxury of disturbances that this government is going to use all the power at its disposal to prevent them," De Valera continued. "The most effective way to deal with our opponents is not to listen to them, not to go to their meetings."

He told young people not to allow themselves to be taken into any military organization other than the organization maintained by the elected government.

O'Duffy Effects Ruse.

Gen. O'Duffy succeeded in effecting a ruse during a wild and boisterous day with rain whipping the moorlands and mountains.

Mists enshrouded the forces of 500 civic guards, a detchment of soldiers and an armored car which formed a tight cordon around the district of County Cork, made famous by the death of the national hero, Michael Collins, in which demonstrations have been forbidden.

Gen. O'Duffy motored at midnight to Bandon, near Cork, and held a conference with blue shirt leaders until daybreak. He slept for three hours.

Then, accompanied by a decoy car, O'Duffy raced toward Crookstown, another town in the proscribed area. His automobile gave the slip to civic guards who were assigned to follow his movements and by a detour he returned to Bandon where a gathering had been ordered secretly. He delivered his address without interruption.

Given No Interference.

Informed that crowds had gathered outside a police cordon near Crookstown, O'Duffy motored there again and addresed the group without interference from police. In the evening he returned to Bandon.

Hailed by crowds of blue shirted followers, O'Duffy stood in a hotel window while a band played the Irish national anthem. He kept his hand raised somewhat like the Hitler fascist salute. He said he plans to continue a tour of West Cork, and Counties Kerry, Clare, and Galway in the next few weeks after returning to Dublin tomorrow.

MEETING CALLS ON MAYOR KELLY TO EXPLAIN TAX

A mass meeting was held yesterday afternoon in a lot at 76th street and Constance avenue. Speakers called upon Mayor Kelly to make a further explanation of his income tax affairs. Mayor Kelly was not among the 1,500 persons present.

Two letters were submitted for the approval of those in attendance. One, addressed to President Roosevelt, petitioned him to send a formal request to the mayor demanding explanation of the latter's tax affairs and the other, addressed to Gov. Horner, asked that a special session of the legislature be summoned to impeach the mayor. Both were approved.

Andrew O'Donnell, a director of the Taxpayers' Civic Forum, presided. John J. Mangan, president of the South Town Taxpayers' association, was the principal speaker.

Sponsors of the meeting had planned to parade in front of the mayor's home at 4821 Ellis avenue. The plan was dropped when Police Commissioner Allman refused a permit for the parade.

LEGION'S WORK IN STATE CRISIS

Sees Business Advances; Tells Own Policies.

Rockford, Ill., Aug. 27.—[Special.]—Illinois department of the American Legion took possession of Rockford and Camp Grant today, providing 75,000 visitors. There were clown band concerts, costume parades, drill contests, and street revelry. There were memorial services for the world war dead, deliberations on questions of hospitalization and government aid for war veterans. Tomorrow there will be a parade and airplanes will fly over the city.

Walter W. Whitney of Peoria was elected chef de gare of the 40 and 8. He succeeds George Sugarman of Chicago. George Heckenkamp of Quincy was named grand chef de train; Harry E. Meador, Quincy, cheminot national, and George Sugarman, Chicago, sous cheminot national.

Musical Contests Today.

Tomorrow in the stadium the band of the Board of Trade post, Chicago, national Legion band champions a year ago, compete with the bands of Peoria No. 2 post and Jacksonville for the state championship. Drum and bugle corps qualifying today for the final competition tomorrow include those from Lawndale-Crawford, Mel Tierney, Logan Square, Victory No. 7 and Van Buren posts of Chicago.

Election of Charles C. Kapschull of Deerfield, Ill., now state senior vice commander, as state commander was predicted here this afternoon. The candidacy of the Rev. Father Frank J. Lawler is being boosted by central Illinoisans for department chaplain.

Ten thousand persons joined in the memorial service to the late N. B. "Chappie" Clinch, former chaplain of the 33d division at Camp Grant. This service was held in the natural amphitheater just west of the camp water tower. The corner stone of the Memorial Clinch chapel, to be erected at the camp, was laid by Howard P. Savage, Chicago, past state and national commander of the Legion. Scott W. Lucas, Havana, Ill., past national judge advocate, spoke at the services.

Gov. Horner Talks.

James P. Ringley, Chicago, state department commander, presided at the Shrine temple meeting tonight and introduced Gov. Horner. Amplifiers carried his words to those unable to enter the building. It was recalled that not only had Illinois' national army division, the 86th, been formed at Camp Grant, but units of the 33d, back from European battlefields, had been mustered out there.

"I have observed with interest and sympathy," Gov. Horner said, "the work of the Legion in many fields—whether it was the care of your invalided buddies, the important child welfare work it has undertaken, your efforts in rehabilitation and Americanization. I have seen you fight the battles of good citizenship, wherever the principles in which you believed were at stake.

No Danger of Communism.

"We saw that same fighting spirit of the Legion courageously take the lead in the battle against the un-American doctrine of prohibition and give the impetus to the movement which has steadily gone forward, and which is on the eve of removing from our national constitution and statute books laws which were abhorrent to all believers in the cause of liberty and our form of government. That fighting spirit has made Illinois proud of you, both as veterans and as citizens. There is no danger of communism with you on guard.

"It was that same fighting spirit that impelled the Legion to prompt acceptance of the national recovery program of our President and of the Legion's loyal declaration that regardless of the new sacrifices it entailed, its members would loyally support Franklin Roosevelt today with the same devotion that its members had served the nation under the leadership of our wartime President—Woodrow Wilson.

"Already, the effect of your united action behind the President is manifesting itself. Every day brings news of another stride forward to the goal of normal business and industry. Wages are going up. Factories that have long been idle are opening again. Unemployment is decreasing steadily. The buying power of the nation is improving.

"The pledge of coöperation that you, as members of the American Legion, made to President Roosevelt in March was a most magnificent example of your true patriotism."

Tells of Relief, Tax.

The governor said 1,300,000 persons had been out of work in Illinois, private and state charity exhausted, and federal help was necessary. He added:

"The time came when the nation could render no more aid unless the state would do its share, and it was necessary for the state to further seriously consider that problem. Money for this purpose could be only obtained from one source. That was some method of taxation. The ordinary sources of taxation could not provide the money needed. The greatest burden of previous taxation had always fallen upon the owners of real estate, the farmers, and the home owners. Not only could they not afford to pay more taxes, but they were unable to pay the taxes that theretofore had been assessed upon them."

Gov. Horner at that point discussed the sales tax that was declared invalid by the state Supreme court.

The governor then cited the new tax, now effective, and added:

"It will be enforced fairly and impartially, and with all the power the state has at its command. This is not a bluff. It is a straight, emphatic declaration of my attitude. But the result of the collection so far made, the state is assured, with federal aid of adequate revenue for those suffering from unemployment at the present, and later on, with enough revenue to reduce materially, if not entirely wipe out, the state tax upon real estate and tangible personal property."

Gov. Horner cited his administration's work for economy, asserting "Our budget, I am glad to say, is about balanced."

Cites Social Legislation.

The governor cited social legislation, declaring:

"In spite of violent opposition, we brought about the passage of the new minimum wage law under which boards are established to set and to maintain a fair rate of wages for women who are forced to labor."

Gov. Horner said of prohibition:

"Illinois was one of the early states to pave the way for the repeal of the vicious eighteenth amendment of the United States constitution, which had resulted in countless evils, including the loss of millions in revenue to the state and the nation and the substitution of the rule of the gunmen and the gangster for the orderly processes of the law."

Reviews Other Acts.

Gov. Horner then discussed the extension of regulation of insurance companies, public utilities, efforts toward safeguarding investors, and the breaking of the Cook county tax strike by a special law. In the matter of avoiding interest scandals, he cited:

"Another very important new law sponsored by this administration is that requiring all state officials to pay each day's receipts into the state treasury immediately. This law, if permitted to remain on the statute books, will prevent such scandals regarding public money as have occurred in Illinois in the past.

"The state administration sponsored and had adopted what unprejudiced judges have declared is one of the most progressive programs of humanitarian legislation that has ever been enacted. These measures will give Illinois up to date laws for the adoption of children; the segregation of criminals so that habitual offenders and those who have erred for the first time may not be brought together; the giving of power to the state department of public welfare to transfer prisoners from one institution to another. And provisions have been made for the bringing about of improvements in the methods of care and cure used in our state welfare institutions."

Thousand Set Sail

A thousand naval reserve officers and men from the six states comprising the Ninth Naval district left Chicago yesterday for a fifteen day cruise on the great lakes. The fleet, consisting of five naval reserve gunboats and four submarine chasers is commanded by Capt. Edward A. Evers, head of the Chicago reserve area, who said the battle maneuvers for the cruise would consist of an attack by the four "enemy" subchasers against the five gunboats, acting in defense of upper Lake Michigan.

15,000 Attend Annual Slovak Day Celebration

Fifteen thousand persons attended the annual celebration of Slovak day, held at Pilsen park, yesterday. The program, which was opened by a street parade, consisted of musical and vocal numbers by the Whiting band and choir, athletic drills, a popularity contest, and speeches by prominent Slovaks. The program was sponsored by various American-Slovak civic and church organizations in the Chicago area.

OFFICERS' LOAN CLAUSE IN BANK LAW IS PUZZLE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 27.—[Special.]—Bankers, anxious not to lay themselves open to criminal charges under the new Glass-Steagall banking act by lending their officers money, were told today by the federal reserve board that it could not help them out interpreting the law.

Up to Justice Department.

Banks have inquired of the board the exact meaning of the law which forbids loans to "executive officers." Arguing that definition of the term must rest with the criminal division of the department of justice, the reserve board has refused to help out banks by expressing its views.

"The federal reserve board is not specifically authorized to prescribe regulations on this subject," an official statement today said, "and in the circumstances, an expression of opinion by the federal reserve board on the question, who is considered an executive officer, would not afford protection from criminal prosecution if the department of justice, upon consideration of the matter, should take position that such a person was within the statute and should feel it necessary to prosecute for violation of this provision."

Designed to Curb Evils.

The section was written into the Glass bill to prevent large unsecured loans to officers of banks, such as were disclosed in the senate investigation of the National City and other New York banks.

In taking the position that it could not interpret the new law, the federal reserve board said that a general classification of officers as "executive" by their titles, would be ineffective. The board held that determination of "executive officers" must rest on the duties performed.

Held as Slayer of Girl Who Resisted Two Men

New York, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Benjamin Weiss, 30, of Brooklyn, was arrested today in connection with the slaying early Saturday of Rose Grygill, young Donora, Pa., waitress. Police said Weiss was identified by Rose Manetta, McKeesport, Pa., and Anna Perdok of Donora as one of the two men who tried to force their way into a room the girls shared with the slain woman.

LOCKS TWO IN VAULT.

Springfield, S. Dak., Aug. 27.—[Special.]—A lone, unmasked bandit escaped after robbing the Springfield State bank of $1,000, a few minutes before closing time Saturday, and locking E. B. Dwight, cashier, and Mrs. Vinta Kibble, bookkeeper, in the vault.

U. S. NAVY MENACE TO WORLD PEACE, SAYS JAP LEADER

OTTAWA, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Count Michimasa Soyeshima of Tokio said today in an interview that "the growth of the United States navy is becoming a menace to the peace of the world."

The count, a former member of the house of peers, who was here following upon attendance at the Institute of Pacific Relations at Banff, Alta., added:

"The fact that her Atlantic fleet is in the Pacific ocean is causing ill feeling in Japan. If the United States would remove her navy and repeal the Japanese exclusion act, it would do much to disarm the minds of the people of Japan."

He expressed the hope that Japan would return to the league of nations, adding that he believed the Japanese representatives at Geneva had taken too aggressive an attitude during the Manchurian discussion.

3 KILLED AS REDS ATTACK CUBAN LABOR MEETING

Battles Staged Inside and Outside Hall.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Aug. 27.—Political action and rioting were tonight's post-revolution display, with three killed and a considerable number wounded or jailed.

At one end of the Prado, Havana's grand thoroughfare, the ABC's [formerly a secret anti-Machado society] announced the formation of a new political party with a view to keeping old line machine politicians from grabbing offices when a new government is elected next Feb. 24. At the other end of the Prado the conservatives of labor fought a pitched battle with Reds.

The communists stormed a meeting of the National Federation of Labor, starting the greatest public riot in the last week. Soldiers and police rushed to the scene and by the time order was restored ambulances were busy and injured persons were being taken to hospitals.

Led by New York Reds.

The communists are said to have been led by half a dozen agitators from New York aided by a group of porristas [former government strong-arm gangsters], who are on the black lists of revolutionary groups for deeds of violence during ex-President Gerardo Machado's régime.

The police and military version is that the communists, numbering between 300 and 500, attempted to capture the labor meeting. The Reds met at their headquarters in Monte street facing the national capitol and marched to the federation headquarters almost a mile away, at Zulueta and Monte streets.

Guards on the balconies of federation headquarters opposite Fraternity square spotted them and gave the warning. Even then other communists and porristas were inside arguing over policies and the dispute soon precipitated a free for all fight with considerable shooting, apparently mostly into the ceiling.

Promenaders Fired On.

The invading communists were resisted at the door and fighting became general inside and outside. From the streets the invaders exchanged shots with the labor watchers on the balconies. Crowds of promenaders were caught in the thick of the mêlée. Meanwhile an orchestra of Cuban girls a few feet away kept on singing and shaking maracas, the rhumba gourds.

Maj. Arturo Boffils, chief of police, rushed to the scene with special riot detachments and hurriedly summoned army reinforcements. The arrival of police officials made the mêlée even more serious. From the balconies and from behind pillars radicals began shooting at the police and soldiers and yelling, "Down with police and the army!" and "Down with government!"

Crowds of screaming women rushed across the street into Fraternity square. Police and soldiers grabbed many rioters and jailed them in Principe hill fortress. The prisoners are reported to be mostly foreigners and dock laborers, rated the most radical element of Cuban labor.

Battle for Half an Hour.

Buildings adjacent to the besieged labor headquarters were taken over by the military and streets were blocked off. Strangely enough, after all the shooting and battling and rioting, lasting more than half an hour, only three were reported dead, although the list of wounded is expected to be considerable. The killed were a soldier, a labor leader, and a communist.

The new party declaration, made by Silvio Zudiare and Pedro Carrera, directors of ABC, said the intention of the organization was to form a party with a view of keeping ousted political elements from regaining control. It is to offer a platform based on the idea of "all for the betterment of Cuba." Its motto is "new men, new ideas and new procedures—political liberty, social justice, and popular control."

In reorganizing politics, the indications are that the election in February may narrow to a contest between two groups and possibly three.

Settle Rail Strike.

HAVANA, Cuba, Aug. 27.—(AP)—A ray of sunshine struc' through Cuba's low hanging labor storm clouds today as a temporary solution was effected of railway strikes tying up traffic in Camaguey and Oriente provinces.

Workers on the Cuba and Northern railways, brought into harmony with their employers through the arbitration efforts of Secretary of Communications Nicasio Silverio, agreed at Camaguey to return to their jobs tomorrow. Definite solution of their differences was postponed for 15 days. During this period consideration is to be given to the workers' demand that the wage levels of March, 1930, be restored.

Still continuing throughout the island were scores of less important strikes. Workers in Cuba's two most important public utilities, the Cuban Electric company and the Cuban Telephone company, were in process of organization along with labor throughout the island.

American Heads Guard.

CAMAGUEY, Cuba, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Col. Charles Muecke, American veteran of all Cuba's revolutions since 1895, today put himself at the head of 300 men calling themselves the "revolutionary civil guard" and offered his services to authorities.

Muecke, who achieved his title in Cuba's war for independence from Spain, took to the field against Machado several months ago despite his age of more than 60 years and the fact that he has only one eye.

He surrendered his arms to cooperate in United States Ambassador Sumner Welles' mediation efforts between Machado and his opponents.

Teacher Ends His Life by Tapping Power Line

Charleston, Ill., Aug. 27.—[Special.]—Harold Dalton, 23, of Borton, today electrocuted himself. He removed the aerial wire from his auto radio and wrapped one end about both wrists. He threw the other end, by means of a tire tool attached, over a high tension wire, carrying thirty-three thousand volts. Passing motorists saw the parked car and the fire. Dalton had taught school at Borton for the last three years, but failed to secure a contract for next year.

4 OUT OF 5 DIE FROM DRINKING POISON ALCOHOL

New York, Aug. 27.—[Special.]—Four of five participants in an East Flatbush drinking party—one a woman of 60—were killed last night and today by drinking commercial alcohol, the kind used to protect automobile motors in freezing weather.

The dead were: Anna Comma, 60, Jack Pennington, 47; Harry Williams, 48, host at the party which was held in his shack; and Mike Miscale, 55, all of Brooklyn.

Williams' hovel is a two room tumbledown in the old squatter colony known as Pigtown.

Pennington was supposed to be an expert at making potable spirits from the radiator alcohol. He would boil it, mix it with water, and prescribe lots of milk for a chaser. At the week-end party they never got to the milk stage.

Mrs. Comma was the first to die. She was brought to Kings county hospital late yesterday afternoon and died at 5:30 p. m. The police rounded up the other celebrants and took them to a nearby station house.

Williams and his pals convinced the detectives that they were able to take care of themselves, and were turned loose. They made a bee line for the shack and what remained of their 50 cents a gallon brew. Late last night passersby heard moans in the hut and summoned an ambulance.

BURIED TREASURE HUNT IN CENTER OF LOS ANGELES!

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 27.—(AP)—The age old legend that a large cache of precious metals and stones lies concealed under Fort Moore hill, in downtown Los Angeles, promises to enliven the excavation for a new county courthouse on that site.

For many months a crew of prospectors, guided by old Spanish maps and modern mining instruments designed to detect the presence of precious metal, dug unsuccessfully for buried gold. Today, R. R. Stewart, a resident of Huntington Park, asked for permission from the county supervisors to dig two shallow holes one for silver and one for platinum. Stewart said he expected to find the cache at a depth of eight feet.

The county has asked for government funds to finance the proposed courthouse, and if the money is granted steam shovels may clear up the mystery of the buried treasure.

WORLD ZIONISTS ASKED TO EXPEL ALL REVISIONISTS

Probe Connection with Murder Plot.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 27.—[Jewish Telegraph Agency.]—Testimony given in the Magistrate's court at Jaffa, Palestine, Friday, alleging that revisionist extremists had contemplated recourse to murder overshadowed all other issues here as the eighteenth world Zionist congress entered its second week of deliberations today.

A determined drive was begun by Zionist Laborites to have the revisionists, who form the extreme right wing of the Zionist movement expelled from the world Zionist organization.

The testimony was given in the preliminary hearing of three revisionist, Aba Achimier, Abraham Stavsky and Zvi Rosenblatt, who are accused of the murder in June of Dr. Chaim Arlosoroff, head of the political department of the Jewish agency for Palestine.

Laborites Walk Out.

The congress presidium held a secret session with the special commission of inquiry appointed by the Zionist actions committee to investigate Laborite charges against revisionists. The commission, it was learned, wishes to question only the Palestine revisionists who now are at Prague for the congress. So far they have refused to appear.

The Laborites, who with 40 per cent of the total representation are the largest single faction at the congress, last night walked out of the congress hall where Dr. Josef Schechtman, revisionist spokesman, addressed the assembly.

It was learned that the democratic revisionsists, a faction of the revisionist party headed by Meer Grossman, had abandoned the revisionist title and would henceforth be known as the Jewish State party. Establishment of a Jewish state in Palestine is the chief revisionist goal.

Palestine on Upgrade.

The development of Palestine has definitely emerged from the experimental economic stages into the productive and profit bearing stage, said a report of the executive. Referring to the trans-Jordan, the report contrasted the conditions there with the prosperity of western Palestine and described efforts on the part of some trans-Jordan leaders to induce Jewish settlement there.

The report said concerning the economic situation: "While in the majority of countries unemployment prevailed and still prevails, Palestine has become a country where immigration and construction are in full swing and where capital is seeking investment. The wave of immigration has not, as in former years, turned to Tel Aviv alone, but has invaded other places.

"Palestine, which was previously regarded by many as only an object of philanthropic and charitable endeavor, was suddenly revealed to wide classes of Jewish investors as a secure and profitable channel for investment. This revaluation of Palestine's practical importance is one of the main features of the present day situation."

Trade Figures Increase.

The report said immigration into Palestine increased 135 per cent over the previous year [1931]. Imports and exports increased 20 per cent. Jewish deposits in banks increased from 40 to 140 per cent.

A recommendation that a special investigating body be sent to Palestine after the adjournment of the congress to examine charges against a certain revisionist organization was made to the actions committee by the commission of inquiry appointed to hear charges preferred by the Laborites. The committee reported that no proof had been presented to it establishing any connection between the suspected group in Palestine and the world revisionist executive body.

Prof. Selig Brodetzky of Leeds, England, delivering the first half of the report of the political commission, attacked the revisionists, accusing them of acts harmful to Zionist policy. He expressed pessimism over the improvement of Zionist relations with England.

'RUNAWAY' POLES SET TO RESUME SAIL TO THE FAIR

Rest in Bermuda After Lashing by Gales.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Lieut. A. Bohomolec, Polish cavalry officer, and two companions rested here today before resuming their water voyage to Chicago in a 25 foot sloop, the Dal, in which they completed a perilous crossing of the Atlantic from Gdynia, Poland.

Bohomolec and his associates, J. Witkowski and J. Swiechowski, merchant marine cadets who recently finished their training, limped into Hamilton harbor with a jerry mast rigged to take the place of the one blown away in the severe buffeting they received. The roof of their tiny cabin was torn off by a hurricane they battled three days and their food supplies had been reduced to four tins of corned beef. Their water supply was almost exhausted.

Sleep Twelve Hours.

The three were so tired they slept twelve hours after being greeted by members of the Royal Bermuda Yacht club.

Bohomolec, a yachting enthusiast, obtained leave on the assumption that he was to make a cruise along the European coast. With his friends, however, he set sail with A Century of Progress Exposition as the secret objective.

They reached Copenhagen June 9 and then charted their course for Le Havre, France. Owing to gales in the North sea, however, they put in at Ostend, where they were delayed by repairs to the Dal. Later they reached Le Havre and continued to Plymouth, England. A strong wind there beached their ship, necessitating a complete overhauling.

Sailed for New York July 15.

After restocking their larder the three adventurers set sail for New York July 15. Keeping to the southern trading route, all went well until the hurricane ripped away the main sail. This was the storm which recently did heavy damage in Trinidad.

Left at the mercy of the storm, the small craft was pitched about as the crew manned the pump continuously. When the storm abated they found their few instruments ruined, but, repairing the damage as best they could, they proceeded slowly toward this port.

The trip to Chicago will be continued when the Dal has been reconditioned.

GUARD SLAIN IN PRISON BREAK.

Sugarland, Tex., Aug. 27.—(AP)—J. R. McCall, 44, guard at the Central state prison farm here, died today in frustrating an attempted break by fifteen convicts. Officials said McCall was shot through the chest by Beaumont King, 26, a convict, who in turn was shot twice by the guard. Physicians reported King had a reasonable chance to recover.

CAUGHT PUSHING GIRLS FROM CA[R] HELD FOR RAPE

Three men arrested early yesterday as they were ejecting two young women from their automobile were turned over to Du Page county authorities after the women charged their captors had held them all night in a lonely grove near Downers Grove and raped them.

The prisoners are Vincent Cardamone, 22 years old, 2140 De Kalb street; Michael Ambroso, 22 years old, 2222 Polk street, and Felix Daquila, 30 years old, 752 South Leavitt street. Policeman Charles Wetter of the Warren avenue station arrested them as they were pushing Miss Elizabeth Thompson, 24 years old, 225 South Leavitt street, and Mrs. Beatrice Antonette, 22 years old, 420 North Spaulding avenue, out of their automobile at Van Buren street and Kedzie avenue.

Pierce Arrow

ANNOUNCES

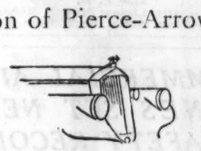
ITS FUTURE POLICY

PIERCE-ARROW is now owned solely by Pierce-Arrow. It is not allied with any other company. The Pierce-Arrow management will continue in the hands of the same Pierce-Arrow men, under whom the progress of the past five years has come. Among other things:—

Pierce-Arrow's proportion of all fine cars sold is now twice as great as in 1928.

Recently, a Pierce-Arrow Special 12 of 1933 won 14 world's records.

Since January 1930, the 45-acre Pierce-Arrow plant at Buffalo has been improved to the extent of over $2,000,000. Thus the skill of Pierce-Arrow craftsmen is given the finest facilities of all time . . . from the manufacture of Pierce-Arrow engines, all the way through to the construction of Pierce-Arrow bodies.



The future policy shall be as it has been for 32 years:

To be dissatisfied with present effort, no matter how successful it may seem... To strive to make every car finer than the finest car that has yet been made... To live up to the public's appreciation of Pierce-Arrow as:

DIVIDE STREET REPAIR CREWS IN EFFICIENCY MOVE

Hewitt Forms New Units with Surplus Workers.

Two new crews will be put to work by the city today on street repairs without increasing the amount of the pay rolls, as the result of an order issued recently by Commissioner of Public Works Hewitt. The order eliminated extravagant practices of former administrations and provides for a daily report on the amount of street patching done by the repair crews, according to the commissioner's report to Mayor Kelly.

At the commissioner's direction no asphalt crews will have more than 43 men assigned to them. Men will be taken from crews that have more than that number of laborers and organized into the two new crews that will go to work today. The commissioner expressed the opinion that 24 crews with a maximum of 43 men each will do more pavement repairing than was done formerly by the 22 larger crews.

Studies Work of Crews.

Mr. Hewitt's observation followed a survey of the work of an asphalt crew of 56 members. The commissioner counted only 51 on the job. An inquiry evoked information that four men had been sent to another job. Further inquiries convinced the commissioner that a force of 43 men is sufficient for an asphalt repair crew.

After fixing the number of men to a crew, the commissioner determined to find out the cost per square yard of repairing the streets. He found that in one day the cost in the 22 crews ran from 32 cents to $1.04. He immediately ordered that a daily record be kept on each crew, showing how many square yards of pavement were repaired and the total cost.

Gives More for Auto Fees.

It had been a practice, notably during the régime of a former Republican mayor, to use the street bureau as a patronage field, at times putting as many as 90 men in a crew. Observers of those unwieldy gangs state that some of the laborers would have to stand on the sidelines to keep from interfering with the work.

Street repairs are paid for out of the vehicle tax fund, to which automobile owners pay their vehicle sticker fees. By cutting the size of the crews and keeping a close check on costs, Commissioner Hewitt said he hopes to give the motorists more for their money.

NEW YORK JUDGE, BORN IN RUSSIA, IS DEAD AT 53

New York, Aug. 27.—(AP)—General Sessions Judge Max S. Levine died at his home tonight after a long illness.

Judge Levine, who was born 53 years ago in Moscow, came to the United States in the arms of his parents.

Reared in the squalor of the lower east side, Levine helped in his father's laundry business while attending school. He was admitted to the bar in 1903 and joined a law firm headed by the now prominent Max D. Steuer at a salary of $3 a week.

He entered politics as an alderman, serving from 1904 to 1912, and then became an assistant corporation counsel. Former Mayor John F. Hylan appointed him to the magistrate's bench and in 1925 Gov. Alfred E. Smith elevated him to the General Sessions court. He leaves a widow and two daughters.

CONGRESSMAN HENRY WATSON IS DEAD AT 76

Langhorne, Pa., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Representative Henry W. Watson, veteran member of congress from the Ninth congressional district of Pennsylvania, died at his home today after several weeks' illness of heart disease. He was 76.

One of the best known Republican figures in the national capital, Watson was reëlected last year for his tenth term, defeating his Democratic opponent in the face of other Democratic victories in the district comprising Bucks and Lehigh counties.

A follower of former United States Senator Joseph R. Grundy, he was first elected to congress in 1914 from the Eighth congressional district, comprising Bucks and Montgomery counties.

During his service in Washington he had served on many important committees, including the ways and means committee, of which he was a member for twelve years.

At a caucus of Pennsylvania's Republican members of the present house last February, Watson was elected chairman of the delegation.

U. S. PREPARES TO PROSECUTE KANSAS OFFICIAL

Topeka, Kas., Aug. 27.—(AP)—The federal government summoned its legal forces today for a prosecution of Tom Boyd, Kansas state treasurer, and two other defendants in the million dollar bond forgery scandal.

Arrested on charges of using the mails to defraud, Boyd, Ronald Finney, Topeka bond broker, and Leland Caldwell, Finney's former assistant, were ordered to jail for lack of bail. A United States commissioner set bonds of $50,000 each for Boyd and Finney and $35,000 for Caldwell. Boyd previously had been freed under $25,000 bail provided on state charges of embezzlement.

Federal prosecutors said evidence against the trio probably would be placed before an October grand jury.

Dan B. Cowle, assistant United States district attorney, said the mail froud charges were based upon a transaction between Finney and Jackson Brothers, Boesel & Co., Chicago brokerage house. Finney, Cowie said, supplied the brokers with $286,000 in allegedly forged bonds, ostensibly as collateral for his grain and stock market operations.

Boyd, who has said he "trusted Finney like a brother, but he lied to me," declined to resign two weeks ago in the face of a demand from Gov. Landon. Impeachment proceedings against the state treasurer have been considered by legislative leaders for presentation to a special session of the legislature expected to be called shortly Boyd's office has been in the hands of National Guardsmen for three weeks.

Jos. Huckins, Hotel Man, Dies in New Hampshire

Oklahoma City, Okla., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Friends here were advised today of the death of Joseph Huckins Jr., 63, president of the Huckins Hotel company, at his summer home in Effingham Falls, N. H. Heart disease caused his death. Huckins' father also was a prominent hotel man, at one time being interested in the Parker house at Boston and the Palmer house in Chicago.

J. W. Daniels, 92, Pioneer Western Educator, Dies

Portland, Ore., Aug. 27.—(AP)—John William Daniels, 92, pioneer western educator, died here today after a short illness. Mr. Daniels had been identified with educational work for 70 years and was the oldest living graduate of Bates college, Maine, prior to his death. For the last 25 years Mr. Daniels had been a member of the Hill Military academy faculty here.

Rheumatic Happy; Conquers Torture
German Specialist's Prescription Stops Pain at Once
So many thousands have found quick relief from the torturing pain of neuralgia, neuritis sciatica, lumbago and rheumatism through Nuritio that it is now eagerly sought by sufferers everywhere. It was discovered by a German specialist famous for the real speed at which his own prescription banishes pains and aches. He has finally been persuaded to place it at the disposal of the general public through Walgreen drug stores everywhere. Nuritio contains no opiates or narcotics and is absolutely harmless. If the very first three doses of Nuritio do not stop the most intense pain even of many years' standing—your money will be instantly refunded. If you want to feel again the joy of living, banish needless agony, that prevents sound sleep, go to Walgreen's at once and ask for Nuritio, under this positive money-back guarantee.

Miss Patty Calkins to Make Bow at Winnetka Tea September 10

Name Added to Long List of Debutantes from North Shore Suburb; Will Return to School.

BY JUDITH CASS.

ANOTHER Winnetka debutante for the early autumn! Certainly that conservative north shore suburb has more than it.. share of youth and beauty taking its place in adult society this fall, but the more the merrier, agree all the young people. The newest name to be added to the list is Miss Patty Calkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Calkins. She will make her formal bow at a tea at the Calkins' residence on Hubbard lane on Sunday, Sept. 10, from 4 to 7 o'clock.

Assisting will be a group of Winnetka debs and three girls who are coming from away for the party, classmates of Miss Calkins' at Sarah Lawrence. They are Miss Sarah Key of New York, Miss Elsie Ferguson of Newport News, Va., and Miss Patricia Oishei of Buffalo. The Winnetka girls in the assisting party will be Miss Barbara Bastien, Miss Dorothy Ott, Miss Allene Withers, Miss Eleanor Janney, Miss Jean Lamson, Miss Nancy Harris, Miss Harriet Fentress, Miss Marie Louise Gardner, and Miss Barbara Hobart.

After the tea there will be a buffet supper for the assistants and their beaux. Miss Calkins will not be here for the whole of her first season "out" for she is leaving the latter part of September to return to her studies at Sarah Lawrence.

The Calkins' elder daughter, Marion, who made her debut two years ago, is returning to Smith this fall.

The name of Miss Barbara Ann Sargent, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Sargent of Winnetka, belongs on the debutante list, too, but she is not to be presented until some time during the Christmas holidays. Miss Sargent will be a sophomore at Northwestern this year.

An engagement that is being announced this morning in the east is of interest to Chicago society because the young man's parents live here and he formerly lived here. It is the announcement of the engagement of Miss Helen Siewers, daughter of Mrs. William Albert Siewers of Scarsdale, N. Y., to Winthrop Warren Case, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Warren Case of Chicago.

Miss Siewers is a graduate of the Roger Ascham school in White Plains and of Vassar college, and Mr. Case is a graduate of Harvard, class of 1920, and of Harvard's business school. He is with the New York Times at present and lives in New York City. He and Miss Siewers plan to be married in the autumn. Mr. and Mrs. Case have spent the last year and a half abroad, but are at home now, living in an apartment at 21 East Elm street.

Jane Kidston Wedding Will Be Sept. 16.

In the mail came an invitation to one of the interesting early autumn weddings, that of Miss Jane Kidston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Howland Kidston of La Grange, to George Tracy Bunker Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Bunker, also of La Grange. The service is to be read by the Very Rev. Dean Goddard at 8:30 o'clock in the Emmanuel Episcopal church of La Grange on Saturday, Sept. 16, after which there will be a reception at the La Grange Country club.

The bride will be attended by Mrs. Wallace Jensen of Detroit, sister of the bridegroom, as matron of honor, and by four La Grange girls—Miss Dorothy Moyer, Miss Ruth Burdick, Miss Mary Gaston, and Miss Josephine Clark, as bridesmaids.

John P. Wilson Jr. of Chicago will act as best man for Mr. Bunker and ushering will be Albert Keep of Chicago, Samuel Durand of Milwaukee, Loyal Durand of Madison, William Crutcher of Louisville, Frank Stephan of Riverside, Wallace Jensen of Detroit, and Winfield Foster and James Kidston of La Grange.

Miss Kidston was graduated from Smith in 1931 and Mr. Bunker from the University of Wisconsin in 1926. Their engagement was announced last April.

Tennis Matches Open to Public.

Society is planning to turn out in force for the United States-Australian Davis cup team matches at the Onwentsia club in Lake Forest Sept. 12 and 13, but Charles S. Garland, chairman of the committee in charge, asks us to remind the public that the events are open to the public and that the primary reason for bringing them here is to give the tennis fans of Chicago the opportunity of seeing the world's leading players in action at a low price.

Grand stands containing approximately 240 box seats, 1,340 reserved seats, and 1,540 general admission seats are being erected on the courts. Tickets will go on sale today at the Onwentsia, Marshall Field's, the Chicago Blackhawk office, Carson Pirie Scott's, and Spalding's.

The boxes have been oversubscribed and more than 400 seats have been reserved already. Some of the socialites who will entertain box parties for the matches are Mr. and Mrs. Garland, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Belden, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Cudhy, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund J. Doering, Miss Jean Schweppe, Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed, Clifford M. Leonard, and Mrs. Carter H. Fitzhugh.

Among the prominent men to visit Chicago is the Right Honorable Sir Herbert Samuels, P. C., who is arriving Friday to spend four or five days here. This distinguished Englishman, who is a former secretary of state for home affairs in the British cabinet, will speak before the English-Speaking union at the Union League club on the day he arrives. His subject will be "Recent Developments in the British Empire." The British consul-general, Lewis Bernays, and Mrs. Bernays will give a dinner for Sir Herbert one night while he is here.

Many Vacationeers to Return Soon.

With the first of September almost here it won't be long until most of our fashionables who have been vacationing in foreign or domestic parts will be returning home. Those who went away early are returning earlier than usual so that they will have plenty of time for seeing the Fair, and even those who had a glimpse or even several glimpses of that interesting exposition are hastening back to see more of it.

Mrs. Howard W. Fenton and her daughter, Miss Honoré White—one of the prettiest of last year's debs—and Mr. Fenton's daughter, Mrs. Stanley Morrill, will be arriving about the first from a lengthy European trip on which Mr. Fenton accompanied them, although he had to return home about a month earlier than they are doing.

The Charles S. Dewey family, Mr. and Mrs., Miss Louise and Peter, are expected on Sept. 12 after a summer at their delightful château in Normandy.

Miss Florence Dibell Bartlett will be back in the city on Wednesday, after two months on her beloved ranch in New Mexico, which she finds ideal as a summer and a winter resort.

The Lester Armours, who are having some shooting in Scotland with the Wolcott Blairs, will be back in Lake Forest by the end of the first week in September.

Louise Neff on Eastern Trip.

Miss Louise Neff has gone east for a pleasure trip. She is in Massachusetts now visiting her uncle, and will probably contrive to see her brother, Richard S. Neff, who has been acting as counselor at a camp in the east this summer. Miss Neff will be at home Sept. 1, but her brother will not accompany her, for he is entering a medical school this fall.

Miss Frances Robinson, who has been visiting friends in Buffalo and Cleveland for several weeks, expects to return to her home at 1120 Lake Shore drive early in September.

F. Strother Cary Jr., who has spent most of the summer on the H F Bar ranch in Wyoming, returned to Chicago bringing with him two young men who were on the ranch with him. They are Robert Shelton of Glendora, Cal., who goes to Leland Stanford university, and Samuel Symington of Baltimore, who is at Princeton. Mr. Cary has already planned many good times for his guests during the two weeks that they are here. He has taken a box for the rodeo tomorrow night, and no doubt the boys will be wishing that they were right back on the ranch, and he has invited several friends to dine and dance with them at the South Shore Country club. Mr. Cary will be graduated from the University of Chicago in February.

Mrs. Stewart W. Towle Jr., who has been in this part of the country for weeks, recently returned to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. McNear, in Highland Park, after a visit of a week or ten days with her husband's family in Minnesota. She and her baby, Charles McNear Towle, will be here until the middle or the end of September, when they will return to Riverside, Cal., to join her husband, Lieut. Towle, who is stationed at March field.

When Dr. and Mrs. Kellogg Speed's three delightful daughters, Patricia, Helen, and Ann, returned from Camp Nagawicka in Wisconsin, they were covered with honors earned by diligent work at the camp this summer. Patricia received, among other awards, the Camp Nagawicka emblem for being one of the best all-round campers, and all three of the sisters earned Red Cross swimming awards.

Patricia, the eldest of the girls, is going to the Frances Shimer school at Mount Carroll, Ill.

100 Relatives Ask Share of 1861 Vet's $10,000 Pension

Taylorville, Ill., Aug. 27.—[Special.]—One hundred nieces and nephews, heirs of Clinton Taylor, civil war veteran, who received a check from the United States government for $10,000 as back pension 24 hours before he died, have appealed to the court for a division of the money. The case will be heard by Judge William Greer in the county court here Sept. 9.

Hosts to Visitors.

Open house is held daily from 10 a. m. to 7 p. m. in the club rooms of the Catholic Woman's league in suite 1008 of the Fine Arts building, 410 South Michigan boulevard, for the reception and assistance to visitors to A Century of Progress.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Aug. 27.—[Special.]—The secretary of state and Mrs. Cordell Hull returned tonight from Staunton, Va., where they have been visiting the latter's brother and sister-in-law, Col. and Mrs. Julius Witz, and her nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hays.

The secretary of the navy and Mrs. Swanson motored to the camp on the Rapidan for the week-end, where they occupied one of the cabinet cottages, built by former President Hoover's cabinet, close to the camp occupied by him and Mrs. Hoover on their visits there.

The Spanish ambassador, Don Juan de Cardenas, went to Newport yesterday to remain until after Labor day. Señora de Cardenas will remain in her former home in Rumania until Christmas.

The secretary of the interior will fly to Hyde Park tomorrow to have luncheon with the President in his summer home and will fly back again to Washington in the evening.

Acting Secretary of State William Phillips has left Washington to join Mrs. Phillips in their camp at Northeast Carry, Me., where they will stay for a fortnight, after which they will return to their summer home at Beverly, Mass., for another week before Mr. Phillips returns here.

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

A SUBHEAD of the sign on the Monte Alban treasure exhibit at the rear of the Mexican presidential train at the Fair mentions the word "jewels" in the description. The exhibition, loaned by the Mexican government, is valued at some five million dollars, although it is not likely that the government would part with it at any price. Anyhow, a well upholstered lady entered the other afternoon. She walked up and down the car, gazing at the gold pectoral plates, the jade nose rings and earrings, the turquoise inlaid filigree work that has been praised as surpassing the handicraft of Cellini. Then she approached Señor Gonzales, at that moment in charge.

"Where are the jewels?" she asked.

"The jewels, madame? They are here—everywhere," he said, waving his hand to include the entire exhibit.

The lady sniffed, and as she retreated, commented over her shoulder:

"Jewels is diamonds to me. Sparklers, if you know what that means."

Sparklers—
Oddment—
Hospitality—
Fiddler—
Cruelty.

LITTLE oddments of various sorts please us, and we hope they do you. For instance, a lady at a dinner party the other evening—she was Mrs. Rosalino Coelho Lisboa Miller, assistant commissioner to the Fair from Brazil, commenting that she had gained weight since her arrival in Chicago, and giving her weight in kilograms. Whereupon various gentlemen on either side and across from her spent the next few minutes trying to turn the kilograms into pounds to find out how much the lady weighed. It was 62 kilograms. Maybe you can do it.

THE guards at the Art institute are having pretty much fun these days. The World's Fair show, as every one probably knows by now, is on the second floor and there is an admission charge of 25 cents. The whole downstairs is free. Many out of towners tell the door guard who they are, apparently expecting to be Annie Oakleyed or get special consideration of some kind. The other day a very important looking lady bustled up to the guard.

"I'm Mrs. Lawrence of Waco, Texas. There are my two sisters, Martha and Tilly."

The guard bowed deeply and waved them in.

"Just make yourselves at home," he said.

WE HAVE a fine new source of Irish stories in a gentleman named Flynn, and here's a story he heard a few evenings ago over at the O'Gallaghers. It concerns an old Irishman who played the fiddle. Self-taught and playing only by ear he had no technical knowledge of music. His extensive repertoire consisted almost entirely of Irish dance tunes, jigs, reels and hornpipes.

An American born nephew of the old man thought it would be a treat for him to hear Kreisler play, and took him to hear him. The old man sat through the concert without a word and his nephew thought he was tremendously impressed. He eagerly awaited his comment after the concert, and was surprised that he made none. Finally he inquired:

"Well, uncle, what did you think of Kreisler?"

"The divil a much! That fellow can do everything with a fiddle except play a tune."

PATHETICALLY small, he looked up with great wistful eyes at the couple bending over him. He lay quite limp, in the cindery parking place near A Century of Progress. It was near midnight, and the couple searching for their car spoke softly to the exhausted puppy. He tried to thump a small tail, and the man impulsively stooped down to him. Seeing this gesture, a man and woman nearby spoke up:

"There's not a thing the matter with that dog. He's ours. He's been locked in the car since morning. Just stubborn or lazy."

Gaudy Stripes Contrast Autumn Suits.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

They're running around in circles buying new sweaters these days—all the clothes hounds who want something new, eye-filling as to color and color contrast and new ideas in necklines.

You will if you know your fashions slip into the fuzzy comfort of a 1933 sweater or sweater blouse just as soon as you manage. The newest arrivals are loud enough to be heard in Gary . . . gaudy striped affairs with stripes at least an inch wide, bold reds, blacks and kelly greens, racing dizzily around horizontally in knits and novelty weaves. They are just what you need for the first fall suits, just what you need as a startling contrast for dark browns, blues, greens, and black—frank, brilliant accents that are knockout with street clothes or the snappy slim new separate skirts.

After you have supplied yourself with new blouse sweaters, the colorful kind that stop traffic, you can spend the rest of your shekels for twin sweater sets, a pair of comfortable smart sweaters, one with a high round neckline that you pull over your head; the other the same exact color, the same fabric, in a buttoned style with long sleeves and pockets. You will find them in plum, prune, deep blue, gray and brown and sapphire blue suits and skirts . . . the lovely dull greens that team up with rich brown costumes and the scarlets that seem to be able to dash about with any colored suit or skirt.

It's easy to tell the newest sweaters. The sleeves have been reduced to long slender, unpuffed and unexaggerated affairs, the necklines are high and small buttons are used instead of trick clips or clasps or funny woolly loops. The wilder the color or color combination, the smarter and more fashionable the sweater.

BLOOD MONEY

By IRVIN S. COBB.

SYNOPSIS.

Uncas Cresap and his Chinese servant are found dead in the upper room of Cresap's boathouse on Kettle pond, near the eastern end of Long Island. Gilbert Jonathan Redd, Cresap's stepbrother, keeps a private written account of developments in the case. A blow on the forehead from a slender, sharp edged implement killed Cresap. The cause of the Chinaman's death is not apparent. Capt. Bray, a special investigator, is an old friend of Redd's. Redd is a former police reporter. Florence Dane, Cresap's niece and an orphan, lived with him. Redd was fond of Florence's mother. He bought a home near Cresap's in order to protect Florence. Cresap made his fortune in the far east. Redd freely admits to Bray his hatred of Cresap, who was a drunkard and a débauché. The Chinaman and a dwarf, Sabino, are the most important of the servants, and there seemed to be some secret bond between them and their employer. Bray finds, spread out on Cresap's desk, a new will, disinheriting Florence. As it is unsigned the old will stands. Cresap had disapproved of Florence's moneyless sweetheart, Grekory Thorpe, who had arrived the day before Cresap died, having driven east from his home in Ohio in response to an urgent wire from Florence. Thorpe can't be reached at the local hotel where he registered as George Thomas.

INSTALLMENT XIX.

THE INQUEST.

Bray and I got to the cottage just as his son, a spry looking undergraduate detective, arrived in a car for him.

"That would be Terence," he said. "Well, Gilly, it's back to the mines for me, and this day I'll need to have my brains grinding in two-three different places at once. I'm concentrating on the Thorpe end, naturally, but still and all, the way it looks to me, there's other dips and flanges that can't be altogether neglected whilst we're waiting for that end of it to clear up."

"I'm not trying to horn in on your racket," I said, "but one thing perplexes me—a little. Yesterday when you were ding-donging away at the rest of them, you left your runty friend and, if I'm one to say, your new confidante and adviser, out of it."

"O, that small leprechawn!" he exclaimed, one corner of his mouth atwitch. "No need to go seeking after that one. He delivered himself. You must've figured out that angle of it for yourself, Gilly. . . . Well, his alibi is on straight, I guess. I think I know where he was when the killing was being done. He wishes now he wasn't there. Me, too!" he lamented. "If only he'd been where he might have been, by now this pair of bracelets that're weighing down my hip pocket might be decorating somebody's wrists. . . . Well, even so, I'm still keeping a weather eye on Brother Sabino, because sometimes it's the gabby ones that talk too much for their own good. And then again, it's the close-mouthed ones that won't talk at all except you bullray them. Take Verity now: I've given him some grief and I'm sure to give him some more before today's sun goes down. . . . O, by-the-bye, Gilly, did you ever happen to hear any scandalmongering native around here dropping the suggestion of a hint that this here dead stepbrother of yours was in the way of being personally interested in any little rum-running game, or maybe I'd better say rum-landing game—that might be going on along this side of this island?"

Dr. Finch spent a longer time than any of them on the witness stand.

"No, I never did," I stated with sincerity, "but I wouldn't put it past him. If he knew a way to get his own liquor free and get maybe a profit out of selling it dear to others—well, that would be right down Uncas Cresap's street."

"Well then, keep your eye peeled and your ear close to the ground and maybe you will learn something. Even so, finding that Thorpe boy is the one best bet, the way things stand."

On the heels of that cipheresque farewell he took himself off.

It's nearly midday now and at last I feel that I could do with some sleep. I've just told Mrs. Bevil that I'm going to turn in and that I shall want no lunch and am not to be called until three o'clock. The inquest is to begin at three-thirty at the Town Hall. I don't think I shall be called as a witness, and I have Bray's pledge for it that Florence will not be called either. As a matter of fact, even if she were called she couldn't appear, poor child.

Immediately following breakfast, I telephoned over and talked with Hilda. And Hilda said she was quiet as the result of the sedatives she had taken. And just before Bray left, which would be about an hour ago, I also had Dr. Finch's office on the phone. We had Finch in just after she collapsed last evening and it was he who prescribed sleeping potions for her. Finch says she has had a severe shock—a mild way of putting it, I claim—and that, in his opinion, only absolute seclusion and absolute freedom, for the time being, from all annoyances, will stave off complete prostration.

Wednesday, Oct. 19, 7 p. m.

The inquest lasted less than an hour. The populace, who made up an overwhelming bulk of the mob at the Town Hall, and the brethren and sisteren of the newspaper fraternity, probably shared a conviction that they all had been cheated. Undoubtedly they shared it if they anticipated exposes touching on Uncas Cresap's amorous iniquities or conjectures on the jealous enmity existing between him and that creaky antique T. Cheever Pettigrew or the even more nutritious topic of the will that was not signed and now never will be. Those in charge showed a workmanlike restraint—except at one spot and in that Bray had no hand—by confining the proceedings, as nearly as might be, to a structure of basic facts.

There was one small stimulation—to give it a rank beyond its just deserts—and it came at an early stage. That was when young Motley made the announcement that Mr. Bodkin, as the legally empowered executor of Uncas Cresap, had posted an offer of five thousand dollars for information leading to the capture and conviction of whoever had killed Mr. Bodkin's late client, such amount to be paid independently of any reward offered by the state or the county.

Except for Sabino, no one from the Cresap house was present. He sat in the same row of chairs with me where covertly I could study his profile. I think this unsavory mannikin has the strangest eyes I ever saw in any human head. They aren't beady, as black eyes frequently are in men. They are big in the pupil and fully convexed in the ball; and if eyes are the windows of the soul, then his windows have jetblack curtains drawn across them. For there is no glint, nor even a glimmer from behind them; no informing light breaking through the irises. Sitting there watching him I finaly decided what it was they reminded me of. They reminded me of shallow, highly-glossed twin disks of molten lava. They aren't mirrors, ever. They're just two stagnant little pools and God knows what unseemly thoughts crawl like mud-puppies and wriggle like newts in those impenetrable depths.

At no time in today's rather commonplace proceedings did Florence's name crop up, for which I was glad, and only once was her sweetheart mentioned. Clabby was the first to testify. With the coroner to lead him, he told of being summoned by Verity, of hastily viewing the bodies and of telephoning hither and yon.

The next to take his oath was Terence Bray, and now, looking him over, I could see what a faithful fledgling replica he was of his dad. He admitted that his scrutiny of the death chamber had pronounced no telltale finger-prints or footprints. He tendered to the jurors photographs of his making, showing the relative position of the two bodies and the furnishings and the immediate surroundings.

The second pseudo-detective, Max Shapiro, succeeded his confrere and he made me think of an alert and inquisitive beagle. He reported that to date his quest for such a weapon as presumably was wielded against Uncas Cresap had covered the grounds, the boathouse, the outhouses, the garage, and other dependencies of the estate, the verges of the boundary waters and all shoaly areas of those waters—without result, though. He added that he was still searching diligently and I'll bet he is.

Dr. Finch spent a longer time than any of them on the witness stand. An examination of the contents of the stomach, taken with various contributory physical factors, led him, he said, to fix the time of Uncas Cresap's death about eleven-thirty Monday night. He would not profess arbitrarily to name that hour as the hour, but to the best of his knowledge and belief, backed by confirmatory laboratory tests, the crime had been committed not earlier than eleven o'clock and not later than midnight.

MATRON: WOMEN OF 40 LOOK smart with their hair brushed slightly off the forehead and waved down to the hairline on the neck. One or two soft curls on the sides of the face will soften the effect.

MITZI: YOU'LL HAVE TO KEEP on bleaching the roots to keep them light, but I do not recommend home bleaching. The results are never as satisfactory as when the hair is submitted to professional treatment.

Hillman Takes Job as Aid to Film Director

Wealthy Chicagoan Works for Columbia.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 27.—[Special.]—Edward Hillman Jr., wealthy young Chicagoan, who used to spend his time playing polo, being Marion Nixon's husband, is now spending it as an assistant director and a hard working one in "East of Fifth Avenue" in Columbia. Al Regell is the director. This is the film Columbia waited for months to find Dorothy Tree, New York stage importation, while she was paid for waiting. Others in it are Mary Carlisle, Wallace Ford, Walter Byron, and Lucien Littlefield.

James Cagney was ordered two weeks ago to grow a mustache for "The Finger Man," filming on which begins tomorrow at Warner First National. Cagney grew the mustache, but it came out a light, sandy, wispy red, and now they have to paint one on his lip anyway. Besides Cagney, Mae Clarke and Patricia Ellis are in the cast. This is one of three films which Warner's, relieved by the technicians' strike, is launching tomorrow, the others being "College Coach" with Pat O'Brien and Ann Dvorak, and "Shadow Dawn," Ricardo Cortez and Bette Davis. "The Finger Man" is a story by Rosalind Shaffer of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Glenda Farrell worked the last several weeks on two stories at two different studios at the same time. "Havana Widow" at Warners and "Man's Castle" at Columbia. Both comedy reels, but keeping the funny lines sorted out didn't mix her up so much as an occasional absent minded trip to report to the wrong studio. Miss Farrell has been offered the stage lead in "The Drums Professor," to open for the season on Broadway this fall.

Imagine the consternation of Travis Banton, Paramount's stylish style director, on receiving an order directing the wardrobe department to supply a pink blanket for the elephant in Mae West's "I'm No Angel." "A guy who would write an order like that must mean a blanket for a pink elephant," Banton said.

Margaret Linday's left ankle, which was broken, has healed now, but she had to do all her final scenes for "The World Changes," Warner's Paul Muni-Mary Astor-Gordon Westcott story, with the camera showing her only kneelength. She had to prop herself on a cane.

One girl who was a Wampas baby star three years ago, is running a speak easy near the Paramount and Radio studios. Another girl, who was a well known blonde actress during silent days, also is running a speakeasy in the same vicinity.

A makeup man at Warners became interested in counting Dorothy Coonan's freckles. He reports 182 on her face.

Helen Gahagan and Melvin Douglas abandoned their 'round the world voyage and returned from the orient because the stork sent a calling card for a visit about Oct. 1.

Mary Howard [Will Roger's daughter] is now receiving a larger volume of fan mail than any one else at Fox studio, even her dad. And she hasn't even been seen on the screen yet in her first picture.

Marie Dressler has been feeling ill again and gets a layoff at M-G-M., where she is regarded as a box office vein of pure gold.

MINUTE MYSTERY

By H. A. RIPLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

A PROBLEM FOR THE POLICE.

The new coöperative organization of police officials, having finished their business, were enjoying a banquet tendered by Professor Fordney. As toastmaster the criminologist arose and said: "Gentlemen, we are all in agreement that crime, the most lecherous stigma on Americanism, must go. We have discussed in detail the recent kidnapings, burglaries, holdups, and other felonies. Crime must not pay, and this new organization of honest, intelligent, and sincere police officers sounds the death knell to the racketeers and hoodlums that have levied a tariff on our country: one gangster alone annually collected two hundred times the salary of the President of the United States!

"Good police officers must be alert—they must be able to quickly solve obvious problems. That's all I'm going to say about crime tonight. Now, here's a story that illustrates what I mean. It was told to me and my friend, Hobart W. Gunning, this afternoon by Prof. H. G. Moulton, head of the Brookings Institution, Washington, D. C., and economic adviser to the Federal Reserve board. Here it is:

"An army 25 miles long was marching along a straight road. A courier traveled from the rear of the column to the general at the head of the army, handed him the communication, and immediately returned to the rear of the column. When he reached the rear it was at the exact spot that the head of the army was when he started on his mission. Both the courier and the army traveled at a constant rate of speed. Quickly now!

"HOW FAR DID THE COURIER TRAVEL?"

Canny Buying Secret of the Chic Ensemble

Harmonize Your Clothes, Makeup, Coiffure.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

In a recently conducted experiment at the World's Fair in Chicago I learned how many, many girls and women could be more effective if they went at their makeup, coiffure, and clothes problems in a less hurried way.

We are all more or less given to last minute purchases. A hat catches our eye in a window, or a frock. We can't rest until it gets into our closets—and then it turns out to be a mischoice. Nothing to go with it. It isn't as becoming as we first thought. Anyway, it's all wrong, and our conscience, as well as our so-called sense of taste, is bothered.

Since we all have to buy clothes and since we're not buying as many as we used to, and since dress is become the vital thing it is in today's appreciation of attractiveness in women, we ought to get right down to figuring out ways and means of making that money we do spend pay us the pictorial returns it should.

The same thing applies to makeup. We do spend money on cosmetics, but there could be more judgment applied here, too. Not with all women, but with a goodly number, at that. They rush in and buy a face powder because the box is attractive, or its odor is pleasing. The powder may be grand powder, too—for some other woman. We choose a rouge quickly and often it is selected for its color only, which may have nothing to do with its effectiveness on the particular purchaser's face. Lipstick, eyeshadow, and so on—all the same! Money spent on them and so little asked of this money spent.

Then, again, coiffures are often something arrived at in a hit-and-miss fashion, although I do think women are smarter on this point than on many others. But experimenting with a different style, say, keeping up with the latest trend in hair arrangement and thinking of hair in terms of one asset about which you really may boast—these are the things that make the woman more interestingly effective.

Thinking of hat and hair arrangement in one and the same breath is the trick of the woman whose head you admire. Dress and makeup, too, all thought out in a general ensemble! This is exactly what makes for style, chic, and smartness, and why one woman on a limited income can look rings around one with money to spend!

Club Lecture.

Mrs. Florence Fifer Bohrer will speak in the Chicago's Woman's club series tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock in the south lecture room in the Hall of Science at A Century of Progress. Her subject will be "Women in Government." Mrs. George A. Bass will preside.

A FRIEND IN NEED

Three Need Suits, Dresses.

"Dear Miss Brown: My husband and I are experienced kitchen help, and held our last position in a restaurant as cook and waitress, respectively, for 5 years. However, the shop went under during the depression and thus far we have been unable to secure work of any kind. One of our main drawbacks is lack of clothing. We are receiving relief, but of course have no money for extras. We are both extremely shabby, and my husband needs a suit size 40, and some white shirts size 15, while I can use clothing size 16 and shoes size 6. Our son age 15 also needs a suit. I know this seems like a very large order, yet we are really destitute in the matter of clothing.—Mrs. B. F."

Mrs. F. is a hard working woman and is obviousvly very much in need of wearing apparel.

BY ANNA NANGLE.

Let us all pray that "No Marriage Ties" is not the opening gun of another movie cycle. We've suffered through gangsters, chain gang, theatrical, political and newspaper films in batches and this one is about the advertising business, and when one little producer gets a new angle—well, you know what all the other little producers do!

Richard Dix is quite convincing as a happy-go-lucky young man with a taste for liquor, first viewed as his boss tracks him down to a speakeasy to fire him. Reason being that he was a sportswriter on a newspaper who forgot his occupation to the extent of missing the first Dempsey-Tunney fight. Then he enters the advertising business, and what he does to it is most successful financially, but such ethics—tch! tch!

The film takes its title from Bruce Foster's notion about marriage—which is not a new one by any means. Elizabeth Allen is quite attractive as the girl who believes, as he does, in freedom. Meaning—he enjoys said liberty, and she awaits his spare moments. Doris Kenyon fits in nicely as the successful business woman who entrances Bruce, until . . . see the Palace screen for further developments.

Mr. Dix works hard at playing Bruce and succeeds in being very entertaining except when the dialogue goes haywire. Which it does, with a bang, at every dramatic point.

Any man with as sophisticated a line of chatter as Mr. Foster spouts during most of the film certainly wouldn't be as stiffly melodramatic as the lines force him to be during the more or less intense situations.

The film offers quite a few laughs, a cast which David Landau and Alan Dinehart improve, and a neat slice of bologna.

WOMAN'S DRESS.

This smart looking dress has the front and back cut in one with the skirt panel, the finish at the neck is unusually pretty, and the sleeves, tucked into the armholes, are set into deep cuffs at the wrists. A novelty silk crêpe in tobacco brown, or the dull side of a black satin crêpe for the dress, with the shiny part for the trimming are pleasing suggestions.

The pattern, No. 2818, comes in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measure.

Biscuit Dough Makes Many a Savory Dish

It's Basis for Luscious Shortcakes, Cobblers.

BY MARY MEADE.

Just spent the most profitable day adventuring . . . and with the funniest companion! It all started out very simply with a baking powder biscuit—or rather dozens of them. I got my wires crossed and thought I had much company coming for breakfast today. Then, after the biscuits were all in the dough stage, lo, and observe my calendar announced that tomorrow was the day! And since practically the saddest thing I know is cold leftover biscuit, I proceeded to bake up that dough willy-nilly and see while I was at it just how many surprises I could turn out.

And, by the way, if you've gotten acquainted with any of the dry, prepared biscuit preparations on the market, why that's still another way to start. All you have to do for a rich biscuit dough is to stir ¾ cup of cream into 2 cups of prepared biscuit mixture and you have it. For a dessert foundation add also 2 tablespoons of sugar to the dough. For pastry, cut ¼ cup of shortening into 1 cup of the dry mixture, and then add enough ice water to make the dough hold together—about 3 tablespoons.

But that's running away from my first whopper batch of biscuit dough. So following are some of the things I did—and still more that I could have done if the makin's had held out.

DESSERTS FROM BAKING POWDER BISCUITS.

It would be heresy to mention any other masterpiece ahead of the great, the inimitable creation, strawberry short cake. My advice is this: Add 1 to 2 tablespoons of sugar to a recipe of biscuit. Bake the biscuits individually and split to serve. Above all, be generous with crushed and whole strawberries and glorious gobs of whipped cream. There are also other short cakes. Peach, raspberry, cinnamon apple, apricot, prune, cranberry—O, endless numbers. Sometimes serve them hot, sometimes cold.

Then other desserts. Cobblers have almost as many cousins. Simply prepare fruit—cherries, peaches, apricots or berries—for cooking. Heat 3 cups of them with 1 cup each of sugar and water. Blend 1 tablespoon cornstarch with a little cold water and cook with the fruit 3 minutes. Turn this into a buttered baking dish, dot with butter and dust with cinnamon. Cool and then cover with sweet biscuit dough. Bake 30 minutes in a hot oven [400 degrees F.].

Something else delectable is

APRICOT HONEY SHORT CAKE.

Soak dried apricots 1 hour. Then chop them and blend ¼ cup of them with ⅓ cup honey. Let stand 1 hour, then fill into hot split and butter individual short cakes. Top with egg meringue flavored with honey, into which a few cut up marshmallows have been folded.

Fruit rolls are easy as rolling up fruit rolls. Roll biscuit dough one-third inch thick in an oblong shape. Spread with finely chopped apples or desired fruit, roll up and cut the roll into pieces 1½ inches wide. Place these in a shallow pan in which 2 cups water and 1½ cups of sugar have simmered 5 minutes. Dot with butter and dust with cinnamon and sugar. Bake in a hot oven [450 degrees F.] about ½ hour or until golden brown. Serve with the sirup and cream.

In which we seem to have gravitated to desserts. But there are just as many excitements for the main course when biscuit dough plays the lead. Meat pies are a starter. Hot leftover meat and vegetables in gravy go into a serving dish. On top distribute crisp, thin baking powder biscuits. Or you may roll out biscuit dough to fit a baking pan, fill over it with the meat mixture and cut up more rollied dough into strips to cover the top. Bake in a hot oven till brown and done.

Lucile Paray Uses a Decollete That's New and Old on Lace Evening Dress

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—There is no let up in the rampage of ruffles around the shoulders that has been feverishly going on for some time. Paris dressmakers keep thinking up new methods of giving us ruffled treatment here, and the latest is to apply ruffles in a new way to the quaint dropped shoulder décolleté that was so stylish around 1860.

The black lace evening dress in our sketch shows one way of applying ruffles to the dropped shoulder line. The lace that Lucile Paray uses to make this dress is a new satin lace that is lovely in black. She cuts the frock in the poured-in molded line that Paris likes for evening, with a flare added to the back of the skirt near the knees.

Narrow circular ruffles of the lace, stiffened with horsehair, begin just above the waistline at the sides of the front, are curved up around the back of the arms and brought forward below the shoulders in front to give the dropped shoulder line. Ordinary lace shoulder straps are put on to guarantee the bodice against skidding off the shoulders. The high, winged effect that the upstanding ruffle gives will be one of the outstanding details of coming evening dress fashions.

Museum Announces List of New Members; Name Foreign Scientist

Names of Chicagoans recently elected to membership in the Field Museum of Natural History were announced yesterday by Stephen C. Simms, director. New associate members are Mrs. W. Woodbridge Dickinson, Mrs. Abraham Harris, Joseph J. Hornung, and Herman C. Bobel. New annual members are Miss Minnie Abel, Mrs. George W. Billig, James H. Buell, Mrs. Stanley Clague Sr., Sigmund W. David, Charles C. Holter, Mrs. Pearl Ecker Hubbel, S. C. Jennings, F. W. Kaempfer Jr., Charles S. McCoy, Granville Rice, Otto Sauermann, Mrs. Thomas G. Sexton, Harry W. Soloman, Mrs. Alfred Stern, Mrs. Abner Stillwell, and E. A. Webber.

Dr. B. P. Georges Hochreutiner, director at the Conservertoire et Jardin Botaniques at Geneva, Switzerland, has been elected a corresponding member. This is a class of membership bestowed on scientists or patrons of science, residing in foreign countries, who have rendered eminent service to the museum. Dr. Hochreutiners's election is in recognition of important assistance he has given the museum in a project for certain botanical work in conjunction with the Rockefeller Foundation.

I believe I'd be "leary" of a boy who treated me in this fashion. If I weren't good enough for decent treatment in public I'd withhold my charms from him in private.

Even Mothers Are Creatures Who Need Play

Escape from Home Duties Restores Perspective.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Today's article is not to be on the subject of children, but on that of parents and their need for recreation.

One mother writes me: "We never go out in the evenings, for my husband is tired after the day's work." Another says: "I never get any recreation, for there is no one to leave the children with." And still another remarks: "I know it is not good for me to be cooped up all day with the children and not be able to go to a movie or to get relaxation when evening comes, though I am usually too tired to go out even if I could."

But recreation is almost as essential for parents as for children. The word recreation means to be "made over."

A walk of an evening with one's husband and without one's children can be a quiet and blessed interlude after a particularly obstreperous day. A call on friends or neighbors can turn thoughts outward that have all day long dwelt on inner worries or irritations and problems. Or if you want an "escape," as the moderns like to say, there are always the movies. Parks are balm to the eye and to the soul.

If a more boisterous kind of entertainment is needed, the amusement parks can be substituted—and a hot dog and a cup of coffee can sometimes taste like food for the gods. Many cities have outdoor concerts by bands and orchestras, most of which are free. Any boat trip is a real change, and almost always cooling. If you can't manage a trip to Europe, a ferry trip is very nice—and only a few cents fare and no special clothes needed. If you are fortunate enough to have a car, other simple adventures are possible.

All the above suggestions are made with the idea of getting away from the house minus the children. For to the busy mother, particularly one who is living in the midst of noisy adventurous young children, the best recreation is a vacation from them. Oftentimes the problems that loom so large on our horizons assume their right proportions when we return to them after a period of rest and recreation. It helps us to get a truer perspective.

However, if you can't get away from the children for an evening, then take them with you and go. Your plans may have to be modified; you may have to trek home earlier; but—go. Even if you feel tired—go. For it is a scientific fact that a body tired through work can get rested through play. So, somehow, some time, get out and get away.

A new list of books for children under 7 is now ready and will be sent out by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

SOX WIN DOUBLE HEADER; CUBS SPLIT WITH BROOKLYN

SIMMONS' BAT BEATS A'S, 5-3 AND 9-8 IN 9TH

Hose Gain on First Divisions.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The White Sox beat the Athletics in both games of a double header yesterday, one of the contests, the first, being real baseball, for a 5 to 3 Sox victory over Rube Walberg, and the other a sort of clown festival in which the lads won despite the swooning of three Chicago pitchers and some of the other help. The comic affair, which ended 9 to 8, had its moments, however, including a technical knockout of the great Lefty Grove in the fifth inning.

AL SIMMONS.

As had been hoped, Al Simmons snapped out of his slump. In the first game, after twice allowing runners to die on third, he busted loose to put the Sox ahead by driving in the second and third runs with a double. He singled in the eighth and scored the winning run. He drove in Haas and Dykes with the first two runs in the second game, and in the fifth he polished off Grove with a single which drove in Dykes for the fifth run in Lefty's last inning of the day. Then in the ninth inning, he drove out his fifth hit of the afternoon to score Swanson with the winning run.

The double killing yesterday enabled the Sox to gain on every team that tops them in the league, though they aren't paying much attention to Washington and New York. The Sox now are 5½ games out of third place, 2½ out of fourth, and two out of fifth.

FIRST GAME

There was no scoring in the first three innings, although there were several topnotch scoring chances.

Cochrane opened the fourth with a homer into the right field stand. Swanson made a valiant effort to stop the ball before it cleared the wall, but it went over with an adequate margin. Foxx walked and McNair advanced him with a sacrifice. Johnson grounded to Appling and Foxx was sunk at third, Appling to Dykes. Higgins forced Johnson.

Sox Take a Hand.

The A's failed to get the ball out of the infield in the fifth, but not so the Sox. Listen: Berry singled and moved up on Heving's sacrifice. Swanson walked. The runners paused while Haas socked a long fly to Cramer. Dykes singled to right, scoring Berry with the tying run and sending Swanson to third. It was at this point that Simmons came up registering grave determination. He forthwith slammed a double to right, scoring Swanson and Dykes. The ball hit Appling's bat as he tried to dodge and rolled fair to Foxx for the third out.

Foxx doubled with two out in the sixth and Finney singled with two out in the seventh, but neither advanced. With two down in the eighth Cochrane made his second homer, also into the right field stand. Foxx then popped to Dykes.

Simmons Comes Through.

The Sox added two runs in the eighth. Simmons opened with a single to left and went to second on a passed ball. Appling singled to right and Simmons stopped at third. Kress grounded to McNair, who was playing in for a throw to the plate. McNair juggled the ball just long enough for Simmons to slide home with what proved to be the winning run. Appling and Kress advanced on Hayes' sacri-

Cubs Win; Bush Pitches 2 Hit Game; Dodgers Take 2d, 5-2

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 27.—The Cubs could do no better than take and then give today in their double header with the Dodgers, who are featuring Hack Wilson as a second baseman in their current contribution to baseball humor. The Chicagoans, mainly because of the presence of Guy Bush, took the first game, 2 to 0, but their eternal pennant hope was rudely handled in the second affair. They were beaten, 5 to 2, and the 220 pound Bud Tinning made up the bulk of the wreckage.

Bush's performance in game No. 1 was another masterpiece such as he has produced in several of his recent starts. He allowed only two hits which were paired in the fourth, and almost made possible a triple play. The producers of these hits were the only Dodgers to get to base in eight innings. But the Mississippian suddenly tired in the ninth, the result of only two days of rest since he blanked the Phillies on three hits. In the final inning he walked three men, but saved himself when he induced Wilson to bounce into a force-out.

Here's a Real Record.

Bush's record now is something to shout about. His win today was his fifteenth, against ten defeats. One run has been scored on him in his last 25 innings, the Braves having done that when they beat him recently, 2 to 1. In his last 45 innings, or five games, he has surrendered an average of one run per game. In his last three games only ten hits have been picked up against him.

Today Bush had to be good, because a fairly capable right-hander by the name of Van Lingle Mungo, was operating against him. Six of the nine Cubs who matched their skill against Mungo were total losses. The three others, however, put in a large afternoon. Gink Hendrick, an alumnus of the funny Brooklyn combination, topped the trio with four straight hits, but he couldn't figure in the scoring. Mark Koenig took care of the latter. Once he doubled and came home later on one of Ki Cuyler's two hits. And for the other run Koenig contributed a homer.

Koenig, since being restored to third base with the idea of giving the Cubs some needed punch, has helped with 14 hits in 35 times at bat.

Tinning Yanked Again.

Tinning's start in the second game came a cropper before the second inning had closed. The Dodgers let fly with a salvo of hits against the beefy pitcher and he was yanked without ceremony for the fifth straight time. Three runs grew from Tinning's failure and later the Dodgers scored two more off Leroy Herrmann. They weren't needed because the Cubs couldn't get started against Ray Benge, who used to annoy them when he was with the Phillies.

While the crowd regarded the antics of Wilson at second as a humorous experiment made necessary by a shortage of talent, Hack didn't let his work become comical. Hack handled 12 and tried to get in on a lot of others, but was shooed away by mates who apparently didn't have much confidence in his ability to handle popups. However, not one of the dozen chances accepted by the little round man was difficult.

GAMES TODAY.

FIRST GAME

Cuyler worked with Koenig to give the Cubs a one run sendoff against Mungo in the first inning. The big right hander invited the time honored jinx by fanning Billy Herman, the first batter. Koenig promptly drove his two bagger close to the top of the right field scoreboard. A few more feet and it would have been a homer. Cuyler aimed a double through the gap between third base and Stripp to send Koenig over the plate.

Koenig's homer, which cleared the right field screen with space to spare, came with one out in the third. After that the Cubs weren't able to make many serious threats against Mungo. One of the few came when Cuyler led off in the sixth with a single. The next three popped out. The seventh also opened with a hit, Hendrick being the producer. He was forced by Jurges, Bush was tossed out by Wilson, Billy Herman walked and Koenig bounced to Wilson.

Just Miss a Triple Play.

One of the two hits yielded by Bush was Boyle's single past Billy Herman at the opening of the fourth. Taylor singled into center and Bush apparently was in trouble, but not for long. Frederick hit a wicked liner, but Hendrick reached up and grabbed it. He hesitated for a moment before running to first to touch the bag and double Taylor. Then he whipped a throw to Jurges at second, but Boyle, who had gone half way to third, slid back safely. Hendrick's hesitancy at the start may have cost a triple play.

The weariness which overcame Bush in the ninth showed when he walked

FIND HITCHCOCK HAS CONCUSSION; OUT FOR SEASON

New York, Aug. 27.—[Special.]—Thomas Hitchcock Jr., top ranking player of American polo, is out of the game for the remainder of the season. He is confined to bed at his home with concussion of the brain, the result of the bad fall in the recent east-west matches at Chicago.

TOMMY HITCHCOCK.

Dr. Foster Kennedy, the attending physician, has ordered Hitchcock to bed for ten days and forbidden any more polo this season. This means Hitchcock will be unable to play in the national open tournament which starts next month at Meadow Brook.

Hurt in Second Game.

The injury of Hitchock came in the opening period of the second match, the only game which the east won in the recent series. Hitchcock, captain of the east team, was riding at about midfield with Elmer Boeseke Jr. of the west team. Coming on a ball there, Hitchock turned his pony as he struck. Boeseke collided with him and Hitchcock's pony went down. It was a very hard fall and Hitchcock's right leg was pinned beneath the horse, which fortunately rolled away from him in getting up.

No Complaint About Head.

After about 20 minutes' delay Hitchcock remounted and finished out the game. He also played all of the third match. His leg, twisted at the knee, brothered him, but he did not complain of the head injury. On his return to New York he went to his office, but continued to feel very tired and the right leg did not respond to treatment.

Finally deciding on an examination, he summoned Dr. Kennedy today. The physician discovered the concussion and warned the player that any attempt to play polo or any blow in the near future might result in permanent injury. Hitchock then announced his retirement for the season.

CUBS TO GET CATCHER FROM ALBANY CLUB

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 27.—(AP)—The sale of Gordon [Babe] Phelps, catcher of the Albany International league team, to the Chicago Cubs was announced tonight.

The Albany club received in return for Phelps clear title to Harry Taylor, first baseman, who has been here on option, and $5,000 in cash. In the event Phelps is retained after June 15, 1934, the Albany club will receive an additional $5,000.

40,000 Witness Crowning of Swimming Champions

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Chicagoland's swimmers—1,042 of them—competed in the fourth annual 10 yard swimming races yesterday at the Lincoln park lagoon. More than half of those registered for the meet sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, an unusually high percentage, took their swimming tests and received their merit badges.

Forty thousand, perhaps more, lined the banks of the lagoon, jammed along the fences, or watched the hundreds of swimmers from cars parked on the outer drive. By the time the ten championships were decided, there was no room left, the lower limbs of the trees holding their portion of the more adventurous.

The winners of the ten gold medals, five boys and five girls, were not determined until more than 100 races had been held. Throughout the schedule of preliminaries one set of swimmers entered the water before the preceding one had reached the finish line. In all except two events the winners of the preliminaries qualified for the championship races, semi-finals being held in the others.

Boys in Close Finish.

The closest final was in Class B for boys 13 and 14 years of age. Within 10 yards of the finish line, Harold Long of Kenosha, Wis., Edward Jarosik, Jewish People's institute, and Thomas Jacobsen of California park, swam on even terms. In the last few strokes, Long pulled ahead to gain the victory by the narrowest of margins. Jarosik was second and Jacobsen third.

Claudia Eckert of the Shawnee Country club set an all time record when she won the class E title for girls 19 and over. Miss Eckert has won a gold medal for four consecutive years, advancing to the next class each time. She completed her competition with yesterday's triumph. In class E Elizabeth Henry of the Lake Shore A. C. and Lena Zimmerman of the J. P. I. finished second and third, respectively.

Lake Shore Girls Win.

Lake Shore A. C. swimmers, most of them formerly with the Illinois Woman's Athletic club, won the girls' team trophy with 18 points. Shawnee Country club was second with 8 points. Howlett's championship gave the I. A. C. the boys' team trophy, since the majority of the point scorers in the five boys' races competed unattached. J. P. I. and Peoria, Ill., Country club tied for second place.

Little Harriet Vance of the Peoria, Ill., Country club was unfortunate in being placed in the second preliminary for girls 11 and 12 years of age. She finished second by a yard to Patsy Heekin of the Community Recreation center, who won the gold medal in the finals. The heat was the fastest of the preliminaries, being timed in 1:19.7. Had Harriet drawn any other heat she certainly would have placed in the championship race.

Peoria Country club made the best showing of the out of town teams.

The meet was favored with splendid weather. Occasionally the sun was obscured by clouds which afforded contestants and officials relief from the heat, although they had the advantage of a cooling breeze from the lake all afternoon. In other years the swimmers have not been as lucky, as those who have taken their 100 yard tests under a blazing sun will testify.

Stage Set Early.

The stage was set for the rush of contestants at 9:30 yesterday morning. Most of the clerks had reported at that time and the others arrived shortly afterward. Six tables were ready and the ten age classes divided proportionately between them. As the numbers were passed out to the swimmers those who wished to change their clothes at the Beat club were given large, heavy paper bags. These were checked and the racing numbers were marked on the bags. By this means the cloth numbers served as dressing room checks.

At 12:30 time was called. The clerks now put in an hour of the hardest work of the afternoon lining up the preliminary races. The first heat of class A boys led off and from then on for more than three hours an unbroken line of swimmers splashed down the 100 yard course.

No sports promotional requires such teamwork as THE TRIBUNE swimming races. Not only is the work of marshaling the contestants continuous, but there also must be coördination between clerks, starters, timers, and finish judges to keep the preliminary races in motion.

More than 100 Races.

Following the preliminaries in the five boys' classes semi-finals were held in classes B and C. Then came the five girls' divisions. More than 100 races were held for the 1,042 swimmers.

STARS ON PARADE IN WOMEN'S GOLF TOURNEY TODAY

One hundred and fifteen women golfers, comprising the greatest collection of feminine stars ever assembled, will begin a six day quest for the national women's golf championship today over the picturesque terrain of the Exmoor Country club in Highland Park.

Mrs. Charles Dennehy of Onwentsia and Mrs. Leon Solomon of Memphis, Tenn., will start the big parade when they tee off at 9 o'clock this morning.

Today's play will constitute eighteen holes in which the thirty-two low scorers will qualify for match play tomorrow. Match play will also be over eighteen holes, except the finals on Saturday, which will be at thirty-six holes.

Miss Van Wie Defends Title.

Not only are all of America's foremost woman sharpshooters on hand but representative Canadian and British stars will seek to wrest the title from native hands. Chicago's own premier star, Virginia Van Wie of Beverly, present holder of the national championship, heads the American contingent.

Other American stars constitute an impressive list, prominent among them being Mrs. O. S. Hill of Kansas City, three times holder of the western championship; Helen Hicks, 1931 national title holder; Maureen Orcutt always a strong contender in the big golfing sweepstakes; Charlotte Clutting of West Orange, N. J.; Bernice Wall of Oshkosh, Wis., and Mrs. Leo Federman of Great Neck, N. Y.

Don't Overlook Youngsters.

Any speculation concerning a probable winner of this year's event must also take into consideration a group of youngsters whose golfing star is definitely on the ascendency. A trio of relative newcomers in big time golfing circles are Lucille Robinson of Des Moines, women's western champion; Aniela Gorczyca of Fort Worth, Tex., southern women's champion, and June Beebe, who swept through to a number of important championships in the Chicago district this summer.

The foreign visitors who have ambitions of packing off the trophy to their native heaths are Enid Wilson, three times British champion, and Ada Mackenzie, three times holder of the Canadian open championship.

Take Final Practice Rounds.

In addition to Miss Van Wie and Miss Beebe, Chicago's hopes in the tournament center around Jane Weller of Northmoor, who holds the Exmoor women's course record of 78, and Jean Armstrong of Indian Hill; Rena Nelson of Exmoor and Mrs. Melvin Jones of Lincolnshire.

More than seventy of the tournament entrants participated in a final practice round yesterday. Most of those playing either did not keep a card or preferred to have their score kept secret. It was common practice among many to shoot several balls from particularly difficult spots on the course.

VETERAN SCOT GETS 282, PAR FOR 72 HOLES

Armour Second and Espinosa Third.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[PICTURE ON NEXT PAGE.]

MacDonald Smith, who has had the thirty-third annual open championship of the Western Golf association more or less wrapped up since it was put on the counter Friday morning, tucked in the corners of the package yesterday at Olympia Fields and knotted it up with a 72 hole score of 282. The figure was sufficient to equal par for the three days' chore over the No. 1 and No. 4 courses at the world's largest golf club.

TOMMY ARMOUR.

In winning the tournament from a field of 240 professionals and amateurs the 43 year old Scotch veteran, who now manufactures clubs in Nashville, Tenn., probably set a batting average for a single established tournament of the Western's type. Smith has competed in the Western only four times in his career and has won it three times. He first took it away in 1912 at Idlewild, just up the road from the scene of yesterday's triumph. In 1925 he returned to win it again at Youngstown, O. He came out to defend the title in 1926 at Indianapolis, but the field became so congested that he withdrew after the first round.

Leads from Start.

If Smith were in the race horse business the customers would forever be buying place or show tickets on his stable, for somebody always has been coming up in the last few strides to nip him at the wire. He has won his share of handicap races, but never has been able to come down in the big stakes. It was a different story in this year's Western.

The somber Scot was away fast and made the tournament almost a walkaway, refusing to relinquish any portion of a one stroke advantage he held at the end of the first 18 holes Friday. That was the day he went around the stubborn No. 4 course in 68 to tie the record set by Ed Dudley during the national open of 1928. The 68 left him with a one stroke margin over Abe Espinosa, the old champion in this Western league himself, who had done the No. 1 course in 69.

They exchanged courses on Saturday, with Smith doing a 71 on No. 1 for a 36 hole total of 139, while Espinosa was playing No. 4 in 72 to be two strokes back of Smith. Yesterday all 36 holes were settled on No. 4. Smith turned out a 71 for a 54 hole score of 210. Espinosa could do no better than a 73 for a 214. Smith followed through with an afternoon 72, while Espinosa was struggling for a 75 and a final figure of 289.

Armour Passes Espinosa.

While Espinosa was slipping back, Tommy Armour of Medinah, who won the Western crown in 1929, was putting on a typical Armour show. Nine strokes back of Smith at the end of 36 holes, Tommy crashed through yesterday morning with a 68 to be six strokes back of the leader. He couldn't quite follow the pace in the afternoon, however, taking a 72 for a total of 288. This gave him a one stroke edge over Espinosa for second place.

The trio of former champions were comfortably ahead of the rest of the field, the nearest being young Guy Paulsen, the Fort Wayne, Ind., professional, who is best remembered as having caused such a to-do in the 1931 national open. Paulsen, with 292, finished a stroke ahead of big Ralph Guldahl of St. Louis, who was runner-up to Johnny Goodman in this year's national open at North Shore. Following Guldahl was a Chicagoan, Frank Walsh of Bryn Mayr, who finished with 294.

WINNERS OF 100 YARD SWIMMING TITLES IN TRIBUNE MEET

Fastest of the younger boys. Filipp Kreissl of Evanston, left, victor in the 11 and 12 year old class, and Harold Long of Kenosha, Wis., champion in the 13 and 14 year old division. (TRIBUNE Photos.)

Repeaters. Michael Howlett of the Illinois A. C. and Claudia Eckert of the Shawnee Country club, winners in the divisions for girls and boys over 19. Miss Eckert now has won four medals and Howlett three.

MAC SMITH WINS WESTERN OPEN WITH PAR 282

of Texarkana, Tex.; Gunnar Nelson of Rockford, Ill., and Johnny Revolta of Menominee, Mich. — tied at 295. Among the 296 shooters were Ed Dudley of Wilmington, Del., 1931 champion; Willie Goggin, national P. G. A. runner-up; Joe Paletti of Chicago, Jim Fogerty of St. Louis, and A. F. Krueger of Beloit, Wis. Harry Cooper of Glen Oak turned in 298, and Leo Diegel, who supplied inspiration for Mac Smith, had a 299. Johnny Lehman of the home club led the amateurs in the field with 301.

A native of Carnoustie, Scotland, Mac Smith has one of the strangest records in golf, one of those always close but never a winner backgrounds, as far as national tournaments are concerned. It took Bobby Jones to keep him from winning the national open of 1930. In the British open he finished third in 1923, 1924, and 1925, tied for second in 1930, and was second in 1932. He has dominated such tournaments as the Long Island, Metropolitan, and Los Angeles open, and won the Canadian open in 1926.

Par—Out	544	443	434	—35
Par—In	444	345	344	—35—70

MORNING.

Smith—Out	444	343	444	—34
Smith—In	445	454	344	—37—71

AFTERNOON.

Smith—Out	555	443	344	—37
Smith—In	354	345	344	—35—72

Smith was one under par going out in the morning, scoring birdies at the first and fourth and three putting the eighth. He made a great try for a birdie at the tenth with a 30 foot uphill putt, but the ball trickled away from the edge. He got his par at the eleventh, but was over on the next three holes. He needed two putts from four feet on the twelfth green and the same number from three feet on the short 13th. He was trapped with his second shot at the fourteenth, and after exploding out needed two to get down. He birdied the 15th with a ten footer after nearly reaching the green in two and was content to play for pars the remainder of the way in.

Goes Over Par.

In the afternoon Smith was over par on two of the first three holes, three putting the second, and finding a trap at the third. He sank one of the short putts which he had been missing throughout the day for a birdie at the seventh, but needed three to get down at the eighth. He sent the gallery away from the tenth cheering a chip shot from off the edge of the green for another birdie. He was over par thereafter only at the eleventh, finishing the last nine in par 35.

Armour's card for the morning round which equalled the course record of 68 follows:

Armour—Out	444	442	334	—32
Armour—In	444	464	334	—36—68

Armour had a brilliant 32, three under par, on his first nine of the morning round, scoring three birdies and being even with par the rest of the way. He laid his approach to the first green well nigh stony for an easy putt and a birdie four. He followed par to the 150 yard sixth, where it appeared from the tee that he had an ace, although the ball was still four feet away when he reached the green. He dropped it for a deuce, and on the next hole chopped anotner stroke off par with an 18 foot putt for a third birdie.

In Trouble at 13th.

Armour sliced his drive to the twelfth into the woods, but after getting out, chipped almost dead for a par four. He was in trouble for the first time at the thirteenth, where his drive was on the edge, and then, after chipping up to within six feet, he needed two putts. The fourteenth was even more disastrous, Tommy needing six to escape it. He drove the woods at the edge of the creek, and after playing out, his third shot was short. He was on with his fourth, but missed a five footer. At the next hole he scored a birdie with a seven foot putt and ran one down from four feet at the 17th for another sub par hole. He missed a twelve foot attempt at the eighteenth for another birdie.

Scores for the final 36 holes:

Operate On Bronc Rider Hurt in Rodeo

The World's Fair rodeo, at the close of the third of the 17 day competition yesterday, settled into its stride with many records threatened as riders and ropers from 15 states, Canada and Mexico vied for $50,000 in cash prizes and trophies.

Harry Knight of Calgary, Alta., Canada, pressing hard in second place for leadership in the saddle bronk riding event, was injured during the afternoon contests and was taken to St. Luke's hospital, where an emergency operation was performed last night for ruptured bladder. Knight was hurt when bucked off Big Boy.

A Brahma steer turned on 'Shorty Hill of Farmington, N. M., during the evening contests and sent Hill to the emergency room for treatment. First place and $40 in this event went to Dick Griffith of Fort Worth, Tex. Second and $35 went to Johnnie Schneider of Livermore, Cal., and third and fourth money was divided between Frank Schneider and Eddie Woods of Emmet, Idaho.

The wild horse race still holds the favor of the crowds who watched thirty-three cowboys tussle with 11 wild horses in the center of the arena in an effort to put the winning team across the line. Pete Grubb of Blackfoot, Ida., and his team took first money, $25, in this event yesterday. The King Merritt team of Federal, Wyo., was second, and Al Hobson of Omaha, Neb., third.

The daily wild cow milking prize was won by Carl Arnold and his team of Buckeye, Ariz. Second place went to the team led by Mort Churchill of Fort Cobb, Ariz., and third to Arthur Beloit's team of Buckeye, Ariz.

Results in the bareback bronk riding gave first place, $40, to George McIntosh of Alberta. Smoky Snyder of Kimberley, B. C., won the second daily prize, $35, and third place and $30 went to Slats Jacobs of Merriman, Neb. Alvin Gordon of Helena, Mont., took fourth and $25.

Mrs. Moody Starts Home After Defeat

New York, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Shorn of her world tennis crown after an unquestioned reign of seven years, Helen Wills Moody headed for her California home today, but behind her she left raging a heated controversy over her unprecedented action in defaulting to Helen Jacobs in the final round of the national tournament.

Mrs. Moody made an abrupt departure from New York at midnight last night, a few hours after her stunning defeat at Miss Jacobs' hands in the afternoon.

In a formal statement made public immediately after she had abandoned the match in the third set, Mrs. Moody said she felt she had "spoiled the finish of the national championship" and wished she had followed her physician's advice and returned to California before the tournament began.

Champion at Her Best.

"I still feel that I did right in withdrawing," she added, "because I felt that I was on the verge of collapse on the court."

Mrs. Moody had been troubled by a serious back injury for several months and played through the tournament with a brace supporting the injured vertebrae.

Despite this handicap, she waded through early opposition without much trouble, but surrendered a set to Betty Nuthall in the semi-finals a week ago.

If it was apparent that Mrs. Moody was not in condition to give her best the fact remains that Miss Jacobs, in retaining the title she won for the first time last year, played the greatest tennis of her career. It would have taken Mrs. Moody at her very best to cope with the brilliant play and excellent strategy of the champion.

7,000 See Helen Quit.

Although she never had been able to win as much as a set from Mrs. Moody in seven previous meetings, Miss Jacobs faced the issue yesterday with complete confidence. Erratic during the early rounds, the Berkeley girl had all her strokes under complete control when she needed them most, and the manner in which she forced Mrs. Moody to run all over the court in the first set undoubtedly contributed to the latter's collapse. Miss Jacobs won that set at 8-6. Mrs. Moody flashed a fine rally to take the second at 6-3, but Miss Jacobs had run off the first three games of the final set when Mrs. Moody walked to the umpire's chair and announced she was through.

Miss Jacobs and the crowd of 7,000 looked on in stunned silence at a scene previously paralleled only by the default of Suzanne Lenglen after she dropped a set to Mrs. Molla Mallory in an early round of this championship in 1921.

BOYS		GIRLS
165	Class A, 11 and 12	80
217	Class B, 13 and 14	80
195	Class C, 15 and 16	90
80	Class D, 17 and 18	35
70	Class E, 19 and over	30
727	TOTALS	315

All the swimmers as they were lined up by the clerks were given a heart test by the corps of physicians. Several were rejected.

Lincoln park life guards in six boats patrolled the course. Guards from the American Red Cross patrolled the banks of the lagoon. While many of the younger contestants were hauled from the water, sometimes because they impeded the progress of the following heat and not because they couldn't complete the swim, none ever was in danger. That so large a field could be handled in record time with absolute safety for all speaks highly of the ability of the officials of the meet.

The bleachers on the starting barge opposite the boat club were jammed with contestants as the first swimmers climbed out on the wooden ledge above the water. Gradually as the other classes were called the bleachers fed a steady supply of swimmers to the clerks.

Both banks of the lagoon were lined with spectators. Cars were permitted to park on the west side of the outer drive. Probably most of the crowd on this side stayed for all the races, but on the west side of the lagoon thousands came and went principally because the place of vantage was not equal to that on the other side of the lagoon.

FORT SHERIDAN BEATS TEXAS FOR POLO TITLE, 8 TO 5

Fort Sheridan's polo team won the national intercircuit championship by defeating El Ranchito of Arlington, Tex., 8 to 5, at the Oak Brook Polo club field yesterday. Capt. C. A. Wilkinson led the Army squad, which several days ago captured the national 12 goal title by winning from Dayton, O. Lineup:

FORD SHERIDAN [8]. EL RANCHITO [5].
Lieut. G. Smith....No. 1.....A. B. Wharton
Capt. C. A. Wilkinson No. 2.....Alfred House
Capt. C. E. Davis No. 3.....Cecil Childers
Lieut. L. Smith....No. 4.....Luther Weeks

Fort Sheridan	114	020	—8
El Ranchito	011	012	—5

Goals—Capt. C. A. Wilkinson [5], Lieut. G. Smith, Capt. C. E. Davis, Lieut. L. Smith, Alfred House [4], Cecil Childers.

SPARTA OPENS SOCCER SEASON WITH TRIUMPH

The Sparta soccer team opened the soccer season yesterday at Sparta stadium by defeating an all-star Jewish team, 10 to 1.

Leading scorers were young Frank Petrik and Baba Vicek, both of whom counted four times. Joie Orr and Jerry Nudera were the other marksmen. At the half time the Bohemians were leading, 4 to 0.

WESTROPE GOES TO SARATOGA TO BOOT IN WINNERS

BY FRENCH LANE.

Jockey Jack Westrope, the riding hero of the Chicago racing season, climbed into a plane yesterday and expected to be at Saratoga in time to ride this afternoon.

At Saratoga he will report to one of the greatest saddle stars of all time, for his boss and tutor for a week will be Earl Sande, who trains the eastern division of Col. Maxwell Howard's stable.

Colonel Howard's trainer in the west is O. L. Foster, who according to all surface indications, is the holder of Westrope's contract. The contract is made out in Foster's name, yet the tongues wag around the race track to the effect that Colonel Howard, who is a wealthy paper manufacturer from Dayton, O., is the real holder of the contract.

Bradley Bids for Boy.

"If a wealthy man like Colonel Howard didn't hold Westrope's contract it would have been sold long ago," is the way the track regulars in Chicago solve the problem. High offers for Westrope's services have been made by Col. Edward R. Bradley and two or three other wealthy owners. These offers were turned down, to all appearances without even being considered.

After a week at Saratoga Westrope is scheduled to move on to the Rockingham Park track in New Hampshire, where he will ride throughout the early autumn meeting. Those of Colonel Howard's horses which have been racing in Chicago are to be shipped there.

Before leaving yesterday Foster, who appears to be making the plans for Westrope, hinted that the boy might be back in Chicago for part of the Washington park season, but that he would ride during the fall season in Maryland, where Sande again will become his tutor.

Fans Will Miss Him.

The rack track regulars in Chicago who have depended on Westrope to get them even many times this season will miss the youngster. He has averaged about two winners a day since he started riding here late in June, but has shown his greatest improvement during the last three weeks.

During his final days at Hawthorne Westrope showed more skill than at any time during his brief career which began at Oriental Park track in Cuba last February. He proved himself a good judge of pace, turned in some stirring hand rides down the stretch, and was able to finish stronger than he could a month ago.

Sande is sure to give him some pointers that will prove beneficial.

It is hardly possible for any of the youngsters or veterans riding at Hawthorne to catch Westrope in the race for the Hawthorne riding title. In 24 days Westrope rode 48 winners.

Chicago Derby Saturday.

The Hawthorne season heads into its final week today with the season winding up on Saturday when the old Chicago Derby, carrying $10,000 in added money, will be revived. This will be the first running of the Chicago Derby since 1925 when Caractus, at 25 to 1 in the betting, turned up as the winner over King Nadi and Silver Fox.

Among the 19 eligibles for Saturday's race are eight good ones from the east and eleven from the west.

The easterners eligible to the struggle are Mr. Khayyam, Golden Way, Sarada, Kerry Patch, Swivel, Inlander, Okapi, and Caesar's Ghost. The westerners are Royal Blunder, Esseff, Bamboula, Dusky Devil, Barn Swallow, Teralice, Advising Anna, Friend Charley, Big Red, Gay World, and At Top.

The 3 year old race is considerably muddled and so the Derby shapes up as a most wide open event. Should a muddy track prevail Inlander will be the favorite.

BOLSTAD WINS GOLF MEET.

Breezy Point, Minn., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Lester Bostad of Breezy Point, the defending champion and Minnesota open title holder, today won the Ten Thousand Lakes golf championship by defeating John Barnum, Edinburgh, Tex., in the 36 hole finals, 1 up.

SENATORS WIN, 14-1, THEN LOSE TO INDIANS, 6-3

Cleveland Makes Nine Errors in Opener.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 27.—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians, making a season end struggle for a place in the American league sun, broke even in a double header with the leading Washington Senators today. The Senators won, 14 to 1, in the first game, but the Indians came back to take the second, 6 to 3.

40,000 WATCH BRAVES DIVIDE WITH CINCINNATI

Boston, Mass., Aug. 27.—(AP)—The Braves' winning streak was halted at eight games as the Cincinnati Reds took the second game of a double header, 5 to 3, today before a crowd of 40,000. The Braves took the opener, 7 to 0.

Fred Frankhouse was unable to match the fine pitching of other members of the Braves' hurling staff and the Reds halted the Braves' pursuit of the league leading Giants with a 16 hit attack, the biggest assault experienced by Boston since the beginning of its spurt which carried the team to second place. GIANTS LOSE AND TIE.

New York, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Fred Fitzsimmons, hitting a homer in the eighth inning of the second game, today saved the New York Giants from a double defeat as the St. Louis Cardinals turned back the league leaders, 7 to 1, in the first game and then gained a 5 to 5 tie in the nightcap, which was called at the end of the eighth because of darkness.

Two were out and the Cards were leading by one run, as the result of a four run rally off Fitzsimmons in the first half of the inning, when the Giant hurler hit a home run into the left field stands. The tie will be played off as a part of a double header Tuesday.

The defeat reduced the Giants' lead over Boston to six games.

A crowd of 45,000, the largest of the year in the National league, packed the Polo grounds.

Katherine Rawls Breaks 300 Yard Medley Record

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Katherine Rawls of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., set a new record for the 300 yard medley swim for women over a 20 yard course on the basis of a time of 4 minutes 8.7 seconds recorded in an event held under auspices of the A. A. U. today. The old record of 4 minutes 20.6 seconds was set by Eleanor Holm at Cleveland on March 20, 1928.

Cubs Win, 2-0, Then Lose to Dodgers, 5-2

the first batter, Outen, who was swinging for Lopez. Hutcheson, batting for Mungo, also ran the count to 3 and 2, but hit the next one and Bush threw him out. Boyle didn't try to wait out Bush. He swung and sent a fly to Mosolf. The count went to 3 and 2 on Taylor and then came the fourth ball. This was duplicated by Frederick, filling the bases and bringing up the one time illustrious Wilson Hack swung fiercely but in vain at the first pitch. He swung at the next and bounced to Billy Herman to conclude the battle.

SECOND GAME

Tinning had his troubles getting through the first inning, so what happened to him in the second wasn't exactly a surprise. This began with Wright singling. Stripp beat out a hit to Koenig. Outen walked, filling the bases with none out. Boyle smacked a two bagger along the left field line, scoring Wright and Stripp and putting Outen on third. Tinning was relieved by Herrmann. He was greeted by Taylor's fly to right on which Outen scored the third and last run of the inning.

The Cubs, after being more or less impotent against Benge for three innings, came up with a pair of hits good for a run in the fourth. Koenig continued his high-powered offensive by opening with a double to right center. He went to third on Cuyler's infield out and scored on Mosolf's two bagger to right.

The Dodgers grabbed back this run in the fifth on Wilson's fly ball double which Demaree should have held, and a single by Leslie.

Babe Flops, Then Is Hero.

Babe Herman was re-introduced to his old admirers in the sixth, but the fans treated him like an alien. The Dodgers handled him worse than that. Koenig and Mosolf had walked and two were out, so the Babe was elected to swing for Demaree, who hasn't been doing much of late. The Babe swung all right. Three swings ended the inning. But he made the fans swallow their razzberries a moment later. In the Dodger sixth Boyle singled with one out and stole second. He went to third on Taylor's single which Billy Herman knocked down back of second. Frederick popped out and Taylor stole second. Then Wilson walloped a long fly to right. The Babe backed up to the scoreboard. It seemed that the ball was going to bounce off the wall and give Hack a chance to laugh at his old teammates. Just at the right moment the Babe shoved his gloved hand into the air, made a leap and clutched the ball. The Babe had suddenly become a hero. At least he thought so. When he returned to the bench he heard his first kind words in a month.

Dodgers Pick Up One.

The Dodgers could harvest only one run from three hits and an error in the seventh. Leslie singled to right and Wright sacrificed. Stripp's fly fell in short left for a double. Jurges picked up the ball and threw wild to second, thus letting Leslie go home from third where he had intended to stop. Outen then singled but Stripp halted at third. The next two men were easy.

There was nobody on base when Babe Herman came up in the ninth. He hit a double. It was his fifth hit in 36 times at bat. Jurges singled to score the Babe with the final run.

218,000 WATCH BASEBALL GAMES IN SEVEN CITIES

New York, Aug. 27.—(AP) — The major league clubs played before one of the largest crowds of the season today as a total of 218,000 saw games in seven cities. The largest crowd, 60,000, was at the Municipal stadium in Cleveland for the Washington-Indian doubleheader. Fifty thousand, the biggest crowd of the year in the National league, visited the Polo Grounds for the Giants-St. Louis twin bill.

The American league, playing a full schedule, attracted 114,000 fans, while the National circuit, with games scheduled only in three cities, drew 104,000. The attendance:

WORLD WHEAT PACT EXPECTED TO RAISE PRICES

ChicagoTradersRely on Adjustments.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Higher prices for wheat the world over during the next six months, and possibly for a longer period, are expected by many men in the grain trade. Conservative interests, however, are not looking for a runaway market, but a gradual, irregular upward tone, with better buying support on all breaks.

This prediction is based largely on a belief that the world's wheat conference, which reached an agreement in London on Friday, will bring about an adjustment in production and keep it nearer on a level with consumption. It is regarded as a good thing to have a tryout. Whether it will result in a broad speculative buying movement remains for the future to develop, but the disposition of the trade at the close on Saturday was more favorable to the constructive side.

Expect Surplus to Diminish.

World's wheat production and exportations are to be closely adjusted and a steady disappearance of the surplus is expected. When the latter is accomplished, better markets are to be expected. No one is predicting as to how high or how low prices may sell in the next twelve months, as crop conditions are too uncertain.

With a close adjustment of acreage control to consumptive requirements prices may not advance or decline materially from the present value. The gold value has to be taken into consideration as a most important factor. With all the world's countries working in harmony on a basis of production and consumption clearly understood, it might mean the passing of big speculative trading in wheat.

Cash Premiums Advanced.

Cash wheat premiums in all markets have advanced sharply within the last three weeks, due to millers buying cash wheat in the northwest and southwest. The movement from the farms and country elevators in the latter section is unusually small, while spring wheat in the northwest has been disposed of in a surprisingly liberal way, considering the small crop.

Large flour sales are said to have been made to leading consumers, and millers were well represented as buyers of futures, possibly to hedge against flour sales. It is understood that there will be no announcement of winter wheat acreage seeded this fall, as has been the custom of the department of agriculture for many years, the change being due to uncertainty regarding acreage under the government's domestic allotment plan.

Watch Southern Hemisphere.

Dry weather in Argentina and Australia is becoming a more important factor, as every day brings the trade nearer the new crop. This and many other bull factors stand out stronger than usual at this season.

September wheat closed Saturday at 89¼ to 89⅝ cents; December, 92⅞ to 93⅛ cents; and May, 97 to 97⅛ cents; recording gains of ⅛ to 1⅛ cents for the week. Prices for the week follow:

Corn Prices Lowered.

Sentiment among corn traders was more two sided. Those who consider crop conditions as sensationally bullish bought on all weak spots. Speculators who believe that there will be plenty of corn despite the poor outlook used bulges to put out short lines, and were liberal buyers to take profits on price recessions.

The market was active at times, a feature late in the week being the advance in cash corn as compared with September delivery from a discount to a premium. This induced cash holders of corn at eastern lake ports to sell freely, which cut off the demand from that section. The close was at net losses of 1¼ to 2 cents for the week, September being 51 cents; December, 56⅜ to 56¼ cents, and May, 62 cents. Prices for the week follow:

	September.	December.	May.

Cash Interests Buy Oats.

Cash interests are accumulating oats freely in the middle west and northwest. They are having a good demand for their products, and are preparing against any possible scarcity of supplies later. Speculators are buying because of scarcity of feed grain predicted for the next month. The market has sharp recessions after bulges, but the close on futures was at net gains of 1¼ to 2 cents, with September 38¾ to 38⅞ cents; December 41 to 41⅛ cents, and May 43⅞ to 43¾ cents.

Rye had surprising strength, leading all grains in the upward price turn except barley. Rye closed 5 to 5¾ cents higher on futures for the week, September being 73 cents, December 78½ cents and May 84½ cents. Spreaders who sold rye and bought wheat had to cover, helping to advance prices.

Rye Harvest Light.

Rye production this year has been extremely light, and 3 cargoes of Canadian rye were bought this week to come to Chicago, paying 15 cents a bushel import duty.

Barley prices were advanced on moderate buying, owing to light offerings, and closed 5¼ to 6 cents net high for the week, September being 54½ cents, December 60 cents, and May 64¼ cents.

U. S. Cotton Cut Expected to Aid Egypt

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 27.—Precisely to the same degree that such ordinary forces in the cotton market as the weather and other acts of God can be computed will President Roosevelt's reduced production campaign in the south benefit or harm foreign producers, notably Egypt.

Competent market observers and operators reached by THE TRIBUNE in the last two days incline to the viewpoint that Egyptian growers ordinarily would have to thank the United States for a price increase directly in proportion to the rise in the United States—if that is maintained.

Although Egyptian cotton is of the long staple variety and therefore does not compete with the average run of the American crop, still the world market is a delicate mechanism which reacts quickly to the same forces.

Egypt's Prices Follow U. S.

Egyptian cotton, like Indian, follows the American. As between Cairo and New York, a graph of the two sets of quotations forms a broken and delayed parallel. Egyptian prices move in sympathy with American, but from a few days to a week later at a level of upwards of 60 per cent higher.

According to the old trading theory, therefore, the same conditions would apply to cotton as to all other commodities at the time of the world economic conference. It was said then that if Mr. Roosevelt succeeded in raising American commodity prices he would elevate them universally and would consequently be doing the conference work all by himself. That certainly will apply in the pre-recovery cotton market.

But the NRA is an incalculable force in Liverpool, Manchester, Cairo, and Calcutta. World markets, particularly cotton, are less inclined to follow Mr. Roosevelt with the alacrity seen in New Orleans. Consequently foreigners are sitting tighter than they usually do.

Doubt Continued Big Demand.

Traders question whether American consumption figures will maintain their new high levels. Therefore, they are not following the United States on the usual pattern, although they realize that if the NRA fails they flop, too. As a result the breach between the American and Egyptian quotations has been narrowing. It was particularly evident between the end of June when the cotton code was announced and the middle of August.

Egyptian and all other producers are praying that the reduced acreage will create a higher market. But similar experiments have been tried along the Nile in the last few years. Then it was found that the acreage cut meant that the least productive land was taken out of cotton cultivation, that the average yield per acre mounted enormously, and that farmers concentrated on making their reduced plantings produce as much as possible.

Sale of Fertilizer Rises.

In this connection Manchester points to the fact that the sale of fertilizers in the southern states was up by 400,000 tons for the first six months this year against the similar period of 1932. The aggregate was 2,237,700 tons.

The market in England is keenly sensitive to the fact that the American crop approximates more than 1,250,000 bales over the estimate at around 12,300,000 bales. But at the same time it is heartened by the southern farmers' response to the President's appeal. For the time it was doubted whether the choice of cash payment for reducing acreage or option on the government's crop holdings would be taken.

If the code is rigorously observed and the world surplus is thereby diminished, then Mr. Roosevelt is leading Egypt into the promised land. Just to what extent the Egyptians will benefit is hard to compute. Their share of the world supplies is negligible alongside America's. Since 1926-'27 the Eyptian returns have followed the American faithfully.

Record of Production.

That year American production was 17,755,000 bales and Egyptian 1,695,000.

In 1927-'28 the respective figures were 12,783,000 and 1,250,000.

In 1928-'29 American was 14,297,000 and Egyptian 1,660.

In 1929-'30 it was 14,548,000 and Egyptian 1,750,000.

The same ratio applied the following year, but in 1931-'32 the United States had a bumper crop of 16,629,000 bales, while Egyptian production dropped to 1,288,000 bales.

Therefore, the Egyptian, being scarcer, led the price increase this year, climbing faster in May and June than American. But since restricted production was adopted in the United States, this lead has been steadily dropping off.

Nevertheless, if the American ploughing under reduces the world supplies of cotton and the Egyptians grow the average amount, their profits are certain to increase. To what extent will be determined by the world market's conclusions on the American program. It is apparent that with small production the Egyptians benefit more from the American program than from the United States. If the American estimated crop of 12 million odd bales brought 10 cents a pound, it would fetch around $600,000,000. The Egyptian crop of 1,500,000 bales at 16 cents, however, would be worth $120,000,000.

How Egypt May Profit.

But considering that the American planting of 30,000,000 acres is reduced to 20,000,000 under the President's scheme for the coming year, and the Egyptian acreage is stationary, then the following return would result if the American crop were reduced to 10,000,000 bales and the price were increased to say 12 cents:

At that price the American crop would still be worth exactly the same $600,000,000. At the same time the Egyptian crop of 1,500,000 bales, if it enjoyed the normal increase, would reach 19.2 cents per pound and would appreciate by $24,000,000 to $144,000,000.

In such eventuality the American gain would be nil although the cotton acreage was reduced one-third and the prices were up 2 cents a pound. The Egyptians, if the market followed its normal course, could make $24,000,000 without doing anything.

LARGE WHEAT SURPLUS PROVES U. S. PROBLEM

161,000,000 Bushels to Be Moved.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 27.—The United States must export or otherwise dispose of 161,000,000 bushels of wheat during the 1933-'34 marketing season to reduce the carryover to normal size, according to estimates by the bureau of agricultural economics. Whether the tariff reductions and quota changes promised by importing countries in the wheat agreement signed in London would permit this country to export such a quantity was considered doubtful by officials.

A total of 886,000,000 bushels will be on hand for consumption, export and carryover during the coming year, according to estimates based on the latest reports received by the department of agriculture. About 600,000,000 bushels will be used for food, feed and seed, and 125,000,000 bushels would form a normal carryover.

Under Last Season.

The world supply of wheat will be about 6 per cent under that of last season, the bureau said, leaving out of account Russian wheat. The total, without Russia, was placed at 250,000,000 to 300,000,000 bushels.

"The wheat price that can be maintained in the United States," the department said, "depends in part on the domestic supply situation, as well as upon the value of our currency and the world wheat supply situation. Ordinarily, when the United States has a considerable surplus of wheat for export, the price of wheat in Chicago is from 10 to 20 cents a bushel under Liverpool.

Prices Are Limited.

"When our supplies are short, or for some other reason our prices are on a domestic basis, prices in the United States can rise only about the extent of the tariff and the cost of transportation above the Winnipeg and Buenos Aires markets for comparable grades of wheat. In other words, the price of wheat in Chicago ordinarily cannot rise above Liverpool to the extent of the tariff [42 cents a bushel] without encouraging surplus-producing countries to turn their shipments to the United States.

"When Liverpool prices rise to as much as 30 cents above Chicago the margin between prices at our coastal markets and Buenos Aires is likely to be wide enough to cause imports from the Argentine."

The agriculture department's estimate of the situation said that speculative expectation of inflation has been wearing out in the face of the appreciation of the dollar in foreign exchange. This expectation was given as one of the principal reasons for recent high wheat prices, coupled with short crops in Canada and in the United States east of the Rocky mountains.

Hamtramck, Michigan, Plans to Refund Bonds

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 27.—Holders of bonds and notes of the City of Hamtramck, Mich., have been notified by Peter C. Jezewski, mayor, that the city has adopted a refunding plan and has appointed Stranahan, Harris & Co., Inc., its refunding agent. The city has been in default on its own indebtedness, both as to principal and interest, since July 1, 1932. Mayor Jezewski explains that the accrual and defaulted interest and principal together with slow tax collections and bank closings, make it "absolutely impossible" for the city to resume its debt service requirements without refunding.

WORLD FAIR MAGNET DRAWS MANY BUYERS TO CHICAGO STORES

The continued influx of out-of-town visitors to A Century of Progress strongly accelerated Chicago retail business last week, according to trade observers of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Daily checkups by A Century of Progress officials show 7 out of every 10 persons at the Fair hailing from outside Chicago, and many are no doubt making purchases here, fearing the possible rise in commodity prices after Sept. 1, it is indicated.

Not only have the large and small retail establishments been cheered by the unbroken demand for merchandise, but hotels, restaurants, transportation companies, and other businesses show equal enthusiasm.

In the wholesale field, the ready-to-wear and textile interests showed a marked slump. The strike of several thousand local ready-to-wear workers and the apparent unwillingness of retailers to make heavy commitments before ascertaining the public reaction to higher prices were given as the main factors in the letdown.

Employment kept up its steady climb, one large retailer operating under the NRA announcing an increase in personnel of almost 5,000 over the same week a year ago. Wages were also at higher levels.

SALES OFFICIALS OF CHEVROLET HOLD MEETING

Some 300 officials of the Great Lakes region of Chevrolet will attend a two day convention, which will open this morning at the Hotel Knickerbocker. H. K. Klinger, vice president and general sales manager of the Chevrolet company, is due here from Buffalo this morning to attend the convention. He will be accompanied by ten executives of the sales department from the Detroit offices of the company.

L. K. Cooper, Great Lakes regional manager, and H. K. Bragle, zone manager, will be the hosts to the visitors. Among those who will attend are all zone managers, assistants, office staffs, and field travelers from Fargo, Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Davenport, Des Moines, and other points in the Chicago district.

Mr. Cooper stated yesterday that the convention will discuss the company's fall merchandising plans and lay the groundwork for an expanded 1934 program. Each year similar meetings are held at the company's eight regional centers throughout the country.

A Secretary Grieves—and with Reason

The secretary of a wealthy business man rushed into an insurance office the other day and pleaded with the agent to find some way of reinstating a $500,000 policy which her employer had had with the company but which, due to her own carelessness, had been allowed to lapse. "Mr. Blank," she said, "is in the hospital with a bad heart and a kidney ailment. He doesn't know that I let the policy lapse. I just discovered it."

Federal Railroad Coördinator Joseph B. Eastman demonstrates that he understands the psychology of railroad executives. In a questionnaire mailed to 3,000 railroad officials he has asked for their honest opinions and criticisms of the railroad freight rate structure as built up by the interstate commerce commission. Well knowing how reluctant the railroaders are about openly criticising policies of the regulatory group, he asks that replies be strictly anonymous. "Please don't mention your name or even the name of the railroad you work for," he says. "I think," says one old time railroad man, "Mr. Eastman will get replies that are 90 per cent sincere. If the boys had to sign their names the answers would probably be 10 per cent sincere."

The Saturday closing of the stock markets, the NRA shorter hours, the August vacations, and the uncertainty concerning the administration's various economic schemes have combined to make week-end markets more stagnant than they have been for years. A general pickup in activity is expected after Labor day. At present most of the executives who aren't away on vacation disappear Friday night and don't show up until Monday morning.

An elderly lady from Kansas came into a loop hotel and asked the desk clerk for a room with a bath. "Sorry, lady," he replied, "but the only room left is equipped with a shower only." "That's all right," she replied after some hesitation, "I've always wanted to see what one of those things looked like."

Why limitations on fluctuations in grain futures has driven many leading operators to sit on the sidelines and wait for further developments was explained by one of the most active grain men yesterday. "With limitations on fluctuations the market cannot show that it has developed a definite trend either up or down. Under such conditions I do not feel justified in taking a decided stand. I will not trade freely until the limits are removed."

15 States to Be Represented at Confectioners' Meeting

Fifteen states will be represented when the Confectionery Jobbers' alliance holds its next national executive merchandising and buying conference in Chicago the last week in August. A two day session will be held on Monday and Tuesday, Aug. 28 and 29, at the Medinah Athletic club.

TAXES ON BEER SAVE EVERY PERSON IN U. S. 44 CENTS IN 15 WEEKS

New York, Aug. 27.—Beer has produced enough federal revenue to save each man, woman and child in the United States 44 cents in federal taxes in the fifteen weeks since its legalization April 7, according to a statement today by C. D. Williams, secretary of the United States Brewers' association.

"When the federal beer bill was signed," said Mr. Williams, "government officials predicted that beer would pour from $100,000,000 to $125,000,000 into the national coffers during its first twelve months. The figures released by the treasury department this week show receipts in federal beer taxes of $54,119,739 from April 7 to July 31, the equivalent of 44 cents for everybody in the United States, or 74 cents for every person of voting age.

"In other words, beer has produced in fifteen weeks approximately half of the reduction in the government financial burden it was expected to produce in its first full year of public enjoyment. This is in addition to the millions of dollars it has brought to states and communities in taxes and other forms.

"If the present rate of beer consumption is continued its federal tax revenue will have reached $185,000,000 by April, 1934, truly a welcome contribution to the public purse. The American people never paid a tax with greater enthusiasm."

JOHNSON URGES NATION'S BANKS TO JOIN EAGLE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 27.—The 14,000 fully licensed banks of the country are urged by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, national recovery administrator, to become "double eagle or government partnered banks" under the R. F. C.'s plan for purchasing of preferred stock of banks in a copyrighted article in the current issue of the Bank Director.

If business is to prosper, Gen. Johnson declares, it must have banking accommodations comparable in volume to those of prosperous times. As a measure of the present lack of accommodations for industry he says that in about 14,000 banks, exclusive of mutual savings banks, approved as sound and licensed to do business without restrictions as of Aug. 12, deposits, on the basis of Dec. 31, 1932, figures, were only $31,737,728,000 compared with an average of $46,000,000,000 for the whole banking system in the calendar year 1926. Manifestly, he asserts, the figures of bank loans and circulating deposits must be restored at least to the levels of 1926 if business and the banks are to register a healthy recovery.

Tells Gain in Sales of Air Conditioning Equipment

The sale of General Electric oil furnaces and air conditioning equipment in the first seven months of this year has exceeded the total sales of the previous year, according to J. J. Donovan, manager of the G-E air conditioning department.

Steel Output Back to 48% Level of June

Despite the dissipation of some of the uncertainty over the effects of NRA on the industry, steel mill specifications and the national steel works average declined last week, according to Steel. The sharp descent of three points in the average to 48 per cent has leveled operations to about the rate in the second week of June.

At Cleveland the rate has been reduced 5 points to 72 per cent; at Youngstown, 7 to 53; at Buffalo, 12 to 41; at Pittsburgh, 3 to 43; in eastern Pennsylvania, 1½ to 39. On the other hand, output advanced 2 points to 85 in New England.

Expect Rise Next Month.

"With seasonal influences operating in practically all consuming fields, the market still lacking the stimulus of higher prices, and the government's public works program maturing with disappointing slowness, it appears this trend will extend into September," says Steel. "Some time in that month the downward swing is expected to collide with a general rise in prices, which steel makers hope will arrest the decline."

Meanwhile the industry is filing prices intended to apply under the code for the balance of this quarter. In many heavy finished steel products no changes in the present official quotations will be made, it is said, but in some of the lighter products advances seem impending.

Pig Iron Price Raised.

An increase of $1 per ton on pig iron in all eastern districts is the first in raw material to take immediate effect under the code. It is likely, says Steel, that producers in the southern and other markets will also raise the price of pig iron.

New orders for some of the leading steel producers so far in August are only 25 to 50 per cent of the tonnage in the like period of July, reports the magazine. But stocks are being reduced—"another hopeful indication for an early revival in buying." There are encouraging prospects in both tin plate and heavy finished steel. Releases already in hand for October insure continuation of tin mill operations close to 95 per cent, declares Steel. A group of independent oil producers has formulated plans for an 800 mile pipe line from the mid-continent fields to Chicago—a project which will require 75,000 to 100,000 tons of steel.

Building Projects Impending.

"Construction projects requiring thousands of tons of steel in many cities are being held up pending efforts to obtain federal loans," reports Steel. "In some important instances, however, it is announced the projects will proceed eventually regardless of whether loans are obtained. Structural awards for the week, 4,022 tons, also reflect the delay in numerous federal projects."

Shipments of pig iron and foundry coke are establishing new high records for the year. Although another blast furnace has been lighted at Toledo in consequence of the increased demand for merchant iron in the Ohio-Michigan region, the improvement has been more than offset by the banking of four Carnegie stacks because of the falling off in steel requirements.

Iron and steel exports for July fell by 14,270 gross tons to 88,311 tons, while imports rose by 18,437 tons to 52,805 tons.

Steel's iron and steel composite has advanced 8 cents to $30.10, and the scrap composite 4 cents to $11.58; the finished steel composite holds at $47.50.

National Bellas Hess, Inc., Reports $48,910 Income

The first fiscal year report of National Bellas Hess, Inc., under the new management, shows net operating income of $48,910 for the ten months ended July 31. Net sales for the period were $4,741,386.

WALL ST. SEES STOCKS LINKED WITH INFLATION

Expects Wide Buying to Continue.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 27.—To those of the speculative community who do their thinking in terms of inflation—and the tribe seems to be on the increase—the stock market's immediate future is fraught with much promise.

It seems to be pretty generally accepted that dollar depreciation is coming sooner or later in spite of the occasional assurances from high official quarters that the step is not contemplated "at present." Many astute observers believe the experiment, if and when it is undertaken, is going to carry far—probably much farther than some of the price fixing experts now advocating it anticipate or desire.

Expect Prices to Climb.

Comment in well informed Wall street circles currently betrays a well grounded belief that the share market is in a way to approximate or even top its best levels of 1931 on the momentum already provided by the government's credit expansion activities and without the tremendous incentive it would receive from revaluation of the gold content of the nation's monetary unit. What the issuance of fiat money would do no one dares to guess.

Most observers expect the recovery initiated last week on the strength of the federal reserve's open market operations to carry well into the new week and possibly over Labor day. The broad buying of Thursday and Friday showed that some such view is held by a considerable proportion of the active trading element for the improvement was the most notable that has taken place since the collapse of the rebound that immediately followed the mid-July reaction.

Move Out of Trade Range.

Having broken out of the trading range in which it had fluctuated between July 24 and Aug. 22, the list is now headed for the so-called resistance level established when the overbuilding of the liquor stocks precipitated its downfall last month. THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S index of fifty representative issues on that occasion was carried to the year's high of 98.05, which represented an appreciation of more than 100 per cent in average values from the pre-bank holiday "despair" levels of early March.

Around that level, however, confirmed students of the chart think a technical reaction may be expected. Just how severe it may be the prophets do not presume to estimate. The state of the business recovery movement and developments at Washington might reasonably be counted upon, it is said, to have some influence on the extent of the setback. The present level of the market averages is around that of September and October, 1931.

Substantial Buying.

The substantial character of the buying which has been coming into the market since word of the reserve's credit expansion endeavors got around early last week may be judged from the decline in brokers' loans in the face of the advancing prices on the exchange. Thursday's statement revealed a drop of approximately $41,000,000 in these security loans. The figures indicate to the satisfaction of brokerage house experts that much of the buying represents investment for the long pull.

Firestone Tire and Rubber.

Investors' Guide: I am thinking of buying some Firestone. Any information you can give me in regard to same will be appreciated.—M. H.

Answer: Firestone Tire and Rubber company is one of the four largest tire producers. Numerous manufacturers of automotive vehicles use Firestone tires for original equipment, but the bulk of the company's business is in the more profitable replacement field.

In 1929 it set up a chain of service stations, primarily to sell its tires, but also to provide complete car servicing. These outlets have enabled the company to increase its share of available business and to maintain operations at a comparatively favorable rate.

Loss for the six months to April 30, 1933, was $1,576,000, against net profit of $1,640,000, or 4 cents per common share, for the corresponding period of the preceding fiscal year. In connection with the statement Harvey S. Firestone, chairman of the board, said: "This loss is caused by general business decline, bank holiday and cut price tire war. Outlook for the future is encouraging." On May 22, 1933, he said that May replacement sales would be the largest for any month in the company's history.

Although unit sales in 1932 just about equaled those for 1931, lower prices and the tendency of purchasers to buy cheaper grades reduced sales for the year ended Oct. 31, 1932, to $84,337,000, against $113,797,000 in the preceding year.

Lower material costs and operating economies enabled the company to report net income of $5,152,000, or $1.07 per common share, against $6,029,000, or $1.26 per common share, for the year ended Oct. 31, 1931. Net income for the Oct. 31, 1930, year was $1,541,000, which failed to cover preferred dividends, against $7,695,000 for the 1929 year.

On Oct. 31, 1932, cash alone of $13,168,000 compared with total current liabilities of $3,923,000. Funded debt totals $19,430,000. There are outstanding 474,181 shares of $100 par 6 per cent preferred and 1,986,189 shares of $10 par common. The common pays 25 cents a quarter.

No Interest.

Investors' Guide: Please tell me if interest payable in August on the Bavarian bonds and the Nuremberg bonds has been paid.—Miss K. H.

Answer: The interest due Aug. 1, 1933, on the external bonds of the Free State of Bavaria and of City of Nuremberg was not paid.

Continental Gas & Electric Corporation

Bankers Building, Chicago, Illinois

The Board of Directors of Continental Gas & Electric Corporation has declared the following dividend on the stock of the Company:

TIME LOANS

($50 to $1,000 or more)

All you have to do is to owe some money that you can't pay all at one time . . . to realize what an important place we occupy in this community . . . as we make thousands of "time" loans . . . from $50 to $1,000 and over.

Our rates are low —they should be.

NAZI REGIME IMPOSES STAMP ON LEIPZIG FAIR

LEIPZIG, Germany, Aug. 27.—(AP)—The new Nazi régime has set its distinctive stamp upon this year's autumn fair, which opened today under new conditions which had not matured when the spring fair was held here early last March. This time it appeared more a national than an international affair.

In agreement with the declared policy of the Hitler government to build up the business of the small trader and craftsman, and to boost the domestic market, the character of the present fair is determined by the so-called "brown messe," the first of its kind. It is situated in a cluster of five large exhibition halls, where stands have been let at exceptionally reduced prices.

None but certified Aryans, however, are permitted to be stallholders, and they have had to furnish proof that their wares are all-German made or consist at least of 80 per cent home produced raw materials. Their working capital is wholly German also. Especially prominent are shows of home raised agricultural and dairy products.

SALESMEN.

The recent purchase of a new factory and seven acre tract shows our confidence in the future of this business.

1932 was the biggest year we ever had. 1933 will be our fourth consecutive record sales year. We will immediately employ a few more men for some of our local branch offices in this area.

These positions are permanent and substantial, with no layoffs or dull seasons. Men who have learned how to do this work successfully are earning more than ever with us, and this also holds true in our branch offices from coast to coast.

To be given this same chance, you must be responsible (however, you make no investment or deposit). You must also be accustomed to working hard, and apply yourself to the study and daily practice of the methods which made 1932 the biggest year our men ever had. You will probably have to forget your previous notions about selling, because we all know that obsolete ideas do not work today, whereas men ARE successful following Electrolux methods. In fact, most of our most successful men had no previous experience in sales work.

If you consider yourself responsible, adaptable and energetic, and if you have placed yourself in a position to earn a really worth while and substantial income for 1933, come in and arrange to have us prove the truth of our statements.

We have many men who started here in 1932 who previously knew nothing about our methods, or about our invention which has created such complete dominance throughout Europe and America, and which is so rapidly approaching complete domination in the United States. During the past year we have published many examples of the success of men who started this work, also the success of men who started with us 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6 years ago and who are continuing to increase their earnings today. The unprecedented salability of our new mechanical specialty (not a refrigeration) is one of the reasons why our men are as successful as they are. A former furniture salesman made $250.00 last month; a former coal dealer over $500.00; a former piano maker, $850.00; a young Irishman who came to us without a decent pair of shoes to his feet, made over $600.00 last month.

H. E., the second week in this business, made $51.00 in 4 days last week; R. O. made $48.50 in 1 day; W. E., $51.00 in 1 day; O. H., $65.00 in a single day; O. K., $86.00 in this work made over $20.00 a week and another man, also a Mr. B., made $35.00 in a half week, and a Mr. B. made $45.00 up to $55.00 up to $140.00 a week; T. D., former mechanic; T. P., formerly operating a line of automobiles on the gold coast; C. G., formerly a salesman; F. J., antique dealer; W. W., coal mine executive; S. T., department store executive; A. B., also from the trades. Only 2 of these men knew salesmanship, yet all are successful.

While learning, new men must be satisfied with modest earnings schedules, as these positions are permanent and substantial.

If you want to sell your ability to do what other men have done, plus open mindedness and hard work, and if you want to get the highest reward such qualifications command, come in for personal interview with complete executive, Monday morning, 28, 9 to 1, at Rm. 910 Engineering Bldg., S. W. corner Wacker-dr. and N. Wells-st.

Miscellaneous.

As members of the NRA —and a business increase of over 400% as against the corresponding period of 1932—

we are forced to expand our organization in Chicago and the Middle West. We will place six men to represent our products. INVESTIGATE IMMEDIATELY.

Three new inventions have added to our sales volume tremendously, and because of the exclusiveness of these products and our unique method of merchandising, our sales are comparing favorably with 1929 figures.

Cash bonus paid to our representatives is almost unbelievable—you must see and analyze the following CASH paid to a few men LAST WEEK HERE IN CHICAGO.

E. P.	$322.90	H. J.	$145.30
S. P.	244.43	F. D.	123.79
W. E.	207.83	P. L.	99.50
W. R.	167.35	A. B.	74.91

We invite the verification by anybody of the above weekly cash incomes.

The men selected will establish themselves in a BUSINESS OF THEIR OWN using our money. You won't make a fortune, but you should net from $38 to $71 a week after a short period of training.

ABSOLUTELY NO INVESTMENT. We pay the rent, light, heat, stenographer, etc., place you where the business is, and pay you weekly.

We can only spare time to interview men of good appearance and who have a sincere desire to locate permanent connection. This is no stopover proposition. Make up your mind to investigate this profitable business immediately.

Monday a. m. 9 to 12 ONLY. No interviews after noon. Apply Room 618, Mather Tower, 75 E. Wacker-dr.

We can use a few men in Gary, Hammond, South Bend, Rock Island and Peoria. Write for appointment.

2 MEN

with selling experience, for floor and territory selling in and around Chicago. We have increased our business and you have an unusual opportunity to advance with our organization. Our new men are making money. This is a year round, permanent job in an industry which is growing each year. We have the most saleable product in addition to the most wanted household product in the line of work. Highest remuneration for this kind of work. Apply 9:30 a. m. to 12.

Boat Crash Victims Identified as Cleveland Attorney, Wife and Son—Crowd of 40,000 Sees Tribune Swim Races

WOMAN WHO LOST LIFE IN BOAT COLLISION.
Mrs. John H. Schultz of Cleveland, wife of attorney, who with husband and son, John Jr., was killed when speedboat and cabin cruiser collided.

CROWD OF 40,000 LINES SHORES OF LAGOON IN LINCOLN PARK TO WITNESS 4TH ANNUAL CHICAGOLAND 100 YARD SWIMMING RACES SPONSORED BY TRIBUNE.
General view of The Tribune swimming event yesterday in Lincoln park, which was the largest meet of its kind ever held in the United States. The entry list totaled 1,940, most of them novices seeking the merit badges which were awarded to every swimmer who negotiated the course. The racers were divided into ten divisions of boys and girls and gold, silver and bronze medals awarded the individual winners. In addition there were two team trophies. The event started at 1:30 p. m. and the crowd continued to grow as the races progressed.
